Dock Strike Spreads to Montreal And Halifax

Mayor O'Dwyer Confers With Ching, Indicating U. S. May Take Hand

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—The East Coast port paralysis caused by a strike of 65,000 AFL dock workers spread into Canada today.

It also caused sailings to be canceled for the largest liners of the United States and Britain.

AFL longshoremen in Halifax and Montreal were ordered to refuse to handle any ships diverted to harbors there as a consequence of the walkout at most of the major ports along the U. S. eastern seaboard.

At the same time, sailings of the liner America, the United States' largest passenger vessel, and the Queen Elizabeth, British liner, which is the world's largest, were canceled.

Little Prospect of Settlement

The America had been scheduled to sail from here for Europe tomorrow. The Queen Elizabeth had been due to leave Southampton, England, for New York Wednesday.

There was little prospect of any immediate settlement of the dispute.

Its extension to the two Canadian harbors heightened the effect of the 6-day-old walkout on shipping companies. Some shippers had begun to divert their vessels to Halifax as a substitute transatlantic port just after the strike began.

J. J. Campbell, head of the Halifax longshoremen, said the port's 2000 stevedores henceforth would refuse to work on diverted vessels. The same order went out in Montreal.

Food Ships Get Green Light

"We will not become scabs," Campbell said, adding that the union edict applied only to vessels diverted to Halifax.

"We will have no 'hot' ships here," said a union spokesman in Montreal. "Stevedores in Montreal are not strikebreakers."

Meanwhile, New York's Mayor William O'Dwyer received union assurances that the strike would not be allowed to interfere with the delivery of vital food and fuel supplies here.

Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Association, assured the mayor during a conference today that tugboats would continue normal food and fuel delivery operations in New York Harbor.

Ryan also said shipments of Army cargoes would not be affected but he repeated the union refusal to handle Marshall Plan shipments abroad.

An indication that the Federal Government might take a major hand in the dispute came from O'Dwyer who said he had talked by telephone with Cyrus S. Ching, director of the United States Mediation and Conciliation Service.

Ching, the mayor said, agreed the stoppage now constituted a matter for the Government to settle. There was no indication.

Marshall Plan Aides May Appeal to AFL

Marshall Plan officials may ask AFL longshoremen to handle ERP cargoes at strike-bound East Coast ports if the waterfront tieup is prolonged, Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul G. Hoffman said yesterday.

Hoffman noted that only such bulk cargoes as grain and coal could be accorded this treatment, since it would be impossible to separate other ECA cargoes from non-ECA-financed shipments.

"However, if we can continue to get wheat and coal through, that would take care of the most urgent European needs," he said.

Crusade in Europe

Eisenhower Reveals Details Of Patton Slapping Incident

By Dwight D. Eisenhower

The first troops scheduled to reach the island were the airborne contingents. The route of some of these lay directly across Malta and a number of us went out on the hilltops to watch them pass. In the wind and storm it was difficult for them to keep direction.

Our plotting board in the air operations room showed that many planes and tows were blown far off course, but generally the columns kept on target and when the one we were watching had passed overhead, we returned to headquarters to await reports. Most of us turned in to catch a few hours of sleep.

The first messages in the morning were a mixture of good and bad. A number of the gliders participating in the airborne attack on the British front had been cast loose too far from their targets and the high wind had dropped some into the sea.

We feared a heavy loss of life and, though statistics later showed that casualties were less than we feared, it was still a tragic incident. On both flanks the landings from the sea seemed to be proceeding well with only moderate opposition.

Up to that moment no amphibious attack in history had approached this one in size. Along miles of coast line there were hundreds of vessels and small boats afloat and ant-like files of advancing troops ashore. Overhead were flights of protecting fighters.

Patton pushed vigorously forward to the center of the island, while with his extreme left flank he threw mobile columns around the western perimeter of the island, entering Palermo within 12 days after the initial landing.

A Shrewd Warrior Who Valued Speed

He was a shrewd student of warfare who always clearly appreciated the value of speed in the conduct of operations. Speed of movement often enables troops to minimize any advantage the enemy may temporarily gain but, more important, speed makes possible the full exploitation of every favorable opportunity and prevents the enemy from readjusting his forces to meet successive attacks.

Patton employed these tactics relentlessly, and thus not only minimized casualties but shook the whole Italian government so forcibly that Mussolini toppled from his position of power in late July.

By the end of July the Italian garrison, except for a few small elements under the direct dom-

Patton Under Intense Strain

In today's installment of "Crusade in Europe," General Eisenhower recounts the incident of General Patton slapping a sick soldier, and the repercussions. The following is an excerpt from Eisenhower's account:

"Patton's offense, had it been committed on the actual front, within an assaulting platoon, would not have been an offense. It would merely have been an incident of battle—no one would have noted it, except with the passing thought that here was a leader who would not tolerate shirking.

"But because of the time and place of his action Patton's offense was a serious one, more so because of his rank and standing. Thus to assault and abuse an enlisted man in a hospital was nothing less than brutal, except as it was explained by the highly emotional state in which Patton himself then existed.

"His emotional tenseness and his impulsiveness were the very qualities that made him, in open situations, such a remarkable leader of an army."

Compromise Plan Ready On Berlin

Neutrals to Propose Concession Approach If Mediation Efforts Of Lie, Evatt Fail

Paris, Nov. 15 (AP).—The six "neutral" nations of the United Nations Security Council completed tonight a new compromise proposal on the Berlin crisis calling for concessions from both sides.

A reliable informant who disclosed this said the six nations were prepared to present the proposal if current mediation efforts by top U. N. officials fail.

These efforts came last week in the form of an appeal for immediate direct negotiations on the Berlin question by Trygve Lie, U. N. Secretary General, and Dr. Herbert V. Evatt of Australia, president of the General Assembly.

The foreign ministers of the United States, Britain and France were scheduled to meet Tuesday to draft answers to the appeal. Their reply was expected to amount to a rejection of the plea, which called for negotiations between Russia and the Western powers to end the Soviet blockade of Berlin.

The new compromise, proposed by Argentina, Belgium, Canada, China, Colombia and Syria, would call on Russia to modify its demands for a simultaneous lifting of the Soviet blockade and a settlement of the currency question. The Western nations would be asked to negotiate while the blockade was still partly in effect.

Propose New Committee

An entirely new factor would be a proposal to have the Security Council name a special committee to supervise lifting the blockade.

This new approach to the problem reportedly was drafted late today at a meeting between Argentine Foreign Minister Juan Atilio Bramuglia, November president of the council, and representatives of the other five neutral council members. It was expected to be presented in a few days to Russia, Britain, France and the U. S.

The new compromise plan specifically calls for:

1. Lifting of all travel restrictions on motor roads in Berlin—but not on the railways or canals—within 48 hours after receipt of the communications to the governments involved.

2. Lifting of the railway and canal restrictions by stages, along with negotiations on the currency issue which are to begin as soon as the highway blockade is lifted.

3. Travel restrictions are to be lifted entirely and the currency problem is to be settled simultaneously on December 20.

If travel bans are removed, highways and rail communication to Berlin would be open and there would be no further need for the

Tells of $500 Auto Bonus—Gift Denied

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

MACY PROBE UNDER WAY—George G. Gilbert, jr., of 1025 Connecticut ave. nw., president of Water Systems International (left), yesterday told a House Committee investigating the automobile gray market that he paid $500 extra to R. Harry Kearney, jr., (right), coowner of the Kearney Oldsmobile Co., 7 New York ave. ne., (right) his friend, for an automobile. Kearney told the committee he did not get any money from Gilbert or anyone else. He did, however, admit he got a tip on a horse from Gilbert but did not win $500

House Group Told Used Cars Sold To Other Dealers At $300-700 Profit

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Big profits on trade-in automobiles failed to show up on the books of the Kearney Oldsmobile Co. of 7 New York ave. ne., a congressional subcommittee hearing disclosed yesterday.

In the wake of testimony about the unrecorded profits, Raymond J. Kearney, partner in the firm, refused to talk about an Internal Revenue Bureau investigation of his firm.

Kearney, upon coaching from his attorney, Charles E. Ford, stood on his constitutional right not to answer a question about the Internal Revenue Bureau investigation.

Trade Practices Revealed

Said Kearney, "I refuse to answer anything regarding income taxes because it might incriminate me, and that is a matter between the Internal Revenue Bureau and me, and it is not a public issue."

Through a tense five-and-a-half hour hearing at the Capitol, the House subcommittee investigating questionable trade practices turned up this information about what has happened to some Washington car buyers this year:

1. Seven persons traded in their old cars to get new Oldsmobiles from the Kearney firm, and their cars were resold to other second-hand dealers for markups ranging from $300 to $700.

2. Four other persons said they paid $500 "tips" to salesmen for the Kearney Company to get delivery on new cars. One of the salesmen who admitted receiving tips, William Manuel, was ordered to bring to the hearing today records to show his receipts.

District Probe Touched Off

The congressional inquiry touched off an immediate District investigation of one angle.

Mrs. Lea Lichtenberg, cashier and title clerk for Kearney, testified that she had not in a good many years made the required weekly reports of used-car title transfers to the District director of vehicles and traffic.

Milton Korman, assistant corporation counsel assigned to observe the hearing, indicated the transcript would be studied in detail, and discussed with District Corporation Council Vernon E. West.

Another investigation will be made by the Oldsmobile Division of General Motors Corporation, the subcommittee was told by H. F. Banks, assistant general sales manager for the division. He said the Oldsmobile firm had previously ended or failed to renew franchises to some dealers.

To Study Testimony

"We are very much interested," said Banks, "we want our customers treated fairly in a high-grade business way. We're going to evaluate this testimony. The final outcome will be decided by the executives of our home office in Lansing, Mich."

An early highlight of the hearing was a dramatic confrontation scene when two witnesses gave diametrically opposite testimony about one of the $500 tips.

George G. Gilbert, jr., 5409 30th pl. nw., president of the Water Systems International, at 1025 Connecticut ave. nw., testified he paid $500 to R. Harry Kearney, jr., brother and partner of Raymond.

All Americans Are Warned To Leave China

U. S. Officials Act As Communists Claim Capture of Suchow

Nanking (Tuesday), Nov. 16 (AP).—The American Embassy today warned all Americans to leave China as the Communist radio claimed the capture of Suchow, gateway to Nanking.

(The government spokesman immediately denied the loss of Suchow, main defense point for China's capital, and declared that actually the Communists were retreating.)

There are an estimated 7000 American civilians in China. The figure does not include personnel of the embassy, Economic Cooperation Administration, Army and Navy.

The United States consulates at Tientsin and Peiping have been urging American nations—businessmen and missionaries, mostly—to leave north China before it is too late to arrange transportation. Communist troops are ex-

Elizabeth, Baby Are Doing Well; Prince's Name Is a Royal Secret

London, Nov. 15 (AP).—Princess Elizabeth and the bonny day-old Prince of Edinburgh were said to be doing well tonight.

Throughout the nation and the far reaches of the commonwealth and empire Britons celebrated the birth of the infant who probably will be their next king. There were cannon firing, bell ringing, toasts and cheers. Trumpets and bands blared.

The prince, second in line to the throne, weighed 7 pounds 6 ounces at birth last night. Physicians said that was almost the perfect weight for a male first-born.

Sir John Weir and Sir William Gilliatt, who assisted at the birth, called at Buckingham Palace tonight to see the princess.

Outside, crowds pressed 10 deep against the railings of Buckingham Palace tonight shouting "we want Philip."

When the father of the new-born British prince did not appear they began singing lullabies—"Go to

John Masefield Dedicates Poem To Royal Baby

London, Tuesday, Nov. 16 (U.P.).—John Masefield, poet-laureate of England, wrote a poem for Princess Elizabeth's son, published in the Times today under the title "A Hope for the Newly Born." It read:

"May destiny, alloting what befalls,
Grant to the newly born this saving grace,
A guard more sure than ships and fortress walls,

Thomas' Plea Is 'Not Guilty'; Trial Jan. 10

Representative Freed On $1000 Bond After Being Fingerprinted

Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) pleaded innocent yesterday in District Court when arraigned on charges of fraud and extracting "kickbacks" from employes.

Nattily dressed, Thomas was red-faced and appeared nervous when he came before Judge Richmond B. Keech, who took the plea.

Thomas declined to comment to reporters in the court.

His arraignment was originally scheduled, along with that of his co-defendant and former secretary, Helen Campbell, of 1758 Lyman pl. ne., for today. However, Thomas was in Washington and wished to return to New Jersey as soon as possible, so the change in schedule was arranged, according to Defense Attorney William H. Collins.

Miss Campbell is to be arraigned this afternoon.

Trial in the case was set for January 10 after United States Attorney George Morris Fay asked for an early date. Any motions Thomas' attorney wishes to file must be in by November 29, Judge Keech said.

A probable motion will be for change of venue. It will be based on the possible difficulty in obtaining a fair jury unacquainted with the facts here because of the amount of publicity Thomas has received.

After the arraignment, Thomas was taken to the Marshal's office for fingerprinting and record. He was then released under $1000 bond.

Inauguration Planners Meet On Thursday

Ball Scheduled Jan. 21; 4-Day Holiday Slated For U. S. Workers

Preparations for the inauguration on January 20 will go into high gear Thursday when committee chairmen meet in the District Building.

The meeting, set for 3 p. m., was announced yesterday by Melvin D. Hildreth, general inauguration chairman, following a discussion with the District Commissioners.

Hildreth plans to ask for designation of an Inauguaral Week for the celebration, with Federal workers having Thursday through Sunday off.

Inaugural Ball Planned

Also planned, Hildreth said, is an inaugural ball January 21 at the District Armory.

Hildreth said he anticipated that the Inaugural Committee will have as much money as in 1941 when the Democratic local committee put up $100,000. He said Robert V. Fleming has been designated finance committee chairman.

The Inaugural Week would begin on Sunday, January 16, with city-wide religious observances. Hildreth plans to name a joint Protestant, Catholic and Jewish committee to plan this phase.

Exhibits Planned

Exhibits would be on display at the Smithsonian Institution, schools and libraries for the three days preceding the inauguration. In addition, each of the nations of the Western Hemisphere will be asked to inscribe the name of an American patriot on white wooden pillars, which will flank Pennsylvania ave. from Fifteenth to Seven-

Election Called Illegal

Montgomery Charter Foes Try To Block Jan. 6 Council Vote

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Legal strategy aimed at blocking the scheduled January 6 election of council members under the new Montgomery County charter has been devised by opponents.

The opposition tactics, it was learned last night, will take the form of a suit based on a provision of the Maryland Constitution, which specifies that election for both State and County officers must be held every four years. The scheduled January 6 election for council members under charter would be for county officers only and, hence, in conflict with the Constitution, charter foes claim.

A County election was held in 1946 and another would not normally take place until 1950.

Strategy for the new attack was devised at conferences among lawyers who had issued three statements challenging legality of the charter and predicting the "home rule" document would be a source of " much litigation."

Master-minding the legal attack is F. Barnard Welsh, a Republican leader and attorney for the County Commissioners.

Welsh said last night he would advise the County Commissioners at their meeting today that "it is quite possible to enjoin the holding of an election" January 6 on the grounds of the Constitutional provision. Such a suit would prevent a charter council election until 1950, Welsh told The Washington Post.

Asked if a suit would be filed, Welsh replied, "It's up to the commissioners."

But David E. Betts, one of nine lawyers who opposed the charter before the November 2 election, at which it was adopted by a 3600 majority, expressed the view that "if the County Commissioners don't file suit, there is not much question but what someone else will."

Betts was associated with Hubert A. Schneider, Bethesda attorney who last summer unsuccessfully conducted a suit against the charter to the Maryland Court of Appeals. More recently he has been retained by County Treasurer John B. Diamond to investigate the legality of the treasurer's turning over county funds to a successor. Diamond's job, under the charter, is abolished. Diamond has served two years of a four-year term.

Asked if he would file suit on Diamond's behalf, Betts said he had not yet decided.

"But I am becoming convinced that such a suit would be sound, if based on a constitutional provision that all elected State and county officials shall hold office for four years," he said.

Betts added that if a court should rule the charter council was not a "duly elected body according to law," it would be impossible for Diamond to turn over any funds.

At least two of the five County Commissioners, Brooke Johns and Wesley I. Sauter, are vigorous charter opponents. The other three are opposed to charter, but have not been outspoken in their opposition.

In an earlier development yesterday, Carey Quinn, attorney for the board of elections supervisors, said he would advise the three-man election board today that charter council candidates must have some sort of label on the ballot.

The candidates may run as Democrats or Republicans, or "charterites," he declared.

President Interceded

Mrs. Power Due to Receive VA Insurance Check Today

Thanks to intervention of President Truman, Mrs. John S. Power, 3432 Baker st. ne., should receive in today's mail the first payment on the Army insurance of her husband, a veteran, killed on Government duty 10 months ago.

President Truman, vacationing in Florida, interceded Friday after her story of Government delay and red tape was revealed by Jerry Kluttz in The Washington Post on Thursday.

Mr. Truman ordered Secretary of Defense James Forrestal and Veterans' Administrator Carl Gray to investigate.

Friday evening a VA representative visited Mrs. Power with final papers. Yesterday a voucher was hastened to the Treasury Department, which was to mail the check to Mrs. Power, a VA spokesman said.

Meanwhile, a reporter who phoned VA to find out the status of another claim filed by Mrs. Power was referred by the Washington central office to the Richmond office, then back to the Washington central office.

The Washington office said the papers were forwarded to the Richmond office. The Richmond office said the papers were back in Washington.

Finally it was learned the claim for a death pension, cannot be cleared until Mrs. Power produces proof her husband was, in fact, deaf in the left ear at the time of

Unexpected Holiday

Georgetown Prep Is Closed After Polio Strikes Two Boys

Georgetown Preparatory School, Garrett Park, Md., was shut down yesterday as the aftermath of a polio outbreak late last week.

The unexpected closing, which attaches emphasized stemmed from educational rather than medical reasons, gave 253 students an unscheduled pre-Thanksgiving holiday.

On another kind of school holiday at Georgetown University Hospital were two other students—Henry O'Brien, 17, of Pittsburgh, and Lawrence Kennedy, 16, of Mount Kisco, N. Y.

Physicians described the boys' conditions as "good," but said it was too early to judge what type of polio they had contracted.

According to the Rev. William F. Maloney, S. J., headmaster of the 168-year-old Jesuit school, the older boy became ill last Friday morning and the second youth Saturday. The two friends were on the same football team, Father Maloney said, and both lived on the second floor of the main building.

Of the 255 boys who attend the school, 115 board there, Father Maloney said. They range in age from 12 to 18.

Although doctors recommended that the school remain open, Father Maloney reported, he wrote to each of the youngsters' parents, advising them "of the situation." Yesterday morning, about a dozen students "stayed away," he revealed, and during the day many parents said their sons would be kept out of school.

The unanticipated time off will be made up in shorter Christmas and Easter vacations, he said.

PEOPLE In The NEWS

By Sam Stavisky

St. Laurent, Canadian Prime Minister, Political Phenomenon Who Rose Fast

Louis Stephen St. Laurent, who became Prime Minister of Canada yesterday, is a political phenomenon. He ascended to the political peak in less than seven years—and against his natural inclinations.

For many years this sky, bilingual son of a French-Canadian father and Irish-Canadian mother devoted himself to learning, teaching and practicing law. He had no interest in party, no ambition for politics.

In December, 1941, St. Laurent (pronounced "Sahn Lorahn") was abruptly called into the government as minister of justice and attorney general. The gray-haired, stocky, distinguished-looking lawyer—reputedly earned $100,000 a year as a corporation counselor—reluctantly accepted the bid, but only as a wartime public service.

Mackenzie King's Choice

Politically wise Prime Minister Mackenzie King had turned to politically naive St. Laurent because (1) Ernest LaPointe, his minister of justice, had died; (2) LaPointe had been the Liberal Party's chief minister of goodwill with Canada's one third French-Canadian population; and (3) it was felt that St. Laurent could fill both vacancies more than adequately.

Thus on the eve of 60, St. Laurent entered the political arena. He more than justified the confidence placed in him. The barrister prepared to leave the government after the war, was persuaded to stay on, was named Minister of External Affairs in 1946, and thereafter groomed to succeed the man who'd first plucked him out of political obscurity.

Few Canadians know much about their new Prime Minister, and the English two thirds of the population has a difficult time of pronouncing his name. He's still reserved and retiring, and though no one seems to have any doubt that he'll make a fine premier, there appears to be some question as to his ability to lead a political party.

Libertals in Since '35.

The Liberals have been in power in Canada since 1935 and today still retain a slim majority over their combined opposition: Conservative Party to its right, Progressive Party to its left, Social Credit Party, which seeks monetary reforms. The Liberal Party is considered middle-of-the-road, with a left-of-center program and, in St. Laurent, a right-of-center leader.

Louis St. Laurent was born in Compton, Quebec. His father was a well-to-do storekeeper. His parents hoped he'd enter the priesthood, but the youngster turned to law, took his degree at Laval University, Quebec.

A brilliant student, Louis turned down a chance at a Rhodes Scholarship; instead egged on his friend, Marius Barbeau (now with the National Museum at Ottawa), to try for it. Marius won the scholarship, and in turn introduced Louis to the girl who became his wife in 1908. Today, the St. Laurents have five children, 12 grandchildren.

Showed Grasp of Law

Louis early showed uncommon command of law, and though no courtroom performer, demonstrated an ability to win cases through sheer logic of presentation. At 30, after winning a case against a large insurance company, he was hired by the insurance company. In another celebrated case, he broke a will by defying tradition to cross-examine a priest and nuns on the witness stand. He later taught at his alma mater and over the years accumulated many honors in his profession.

Even after joining the government, St. Laurent showed little flair for politics. Too often, according to critics, he'd talk to farmers in the same way he'd speak before learned international conferences, and perhaps even on the same subject.

But he showed courage. In 1944 he came out for conscription despite deep opposition to it in his native Quebec. As Minister of Justice he dealt with the Gouzenko Communist sky case in a manner which raised some question of civil rights among critics, but which resulted in general approval of the outcome.

The new Canadian Prime Minister is a warm advocate of the United Nations, his faith in its possibilities unshaken. He sharply denies the "blasphemy" that a third war is inevitable. He believes that Communist aggression threatens peace and security of all democratic countries. He favors a collective security alliance for the West.

King Resigns As Premier Of Canada

Ottawa, Nov. 15 (AP).—William Lyon Mackenzie King resigned today as Prime Minister after having headed the Canadian government for more than 21 years. He was succeeded by Louis Stephen St. Laurent, a French-Canadian lawyer.

St. Laurent

King's resignation marked the end of an era in Canada. He had held office longer than any British Commonwealth Prime Minister.

Both King and St. Laurent are members of the Liberal Party. King, 73, retired by choice. He has been ill and plans to take life easy. His successor is 66.

St. Laurent was sworn in at 3:45 p. m. Acceptance of King's resignation had been held up about five hours, apparently so there would be no gap in the continuity of government.

Shortly before St. Laurent took over, Field Marshal Viscount Alexander, the governor-general, swore in two new ministers whom the new Prime Minister brought into the cabinet.

They are Stuart Garson, former Premier of Manitoba, named Justice Minister, and R. H. Winters, a House of Commons member for Queens-Lunenburg who became Minister of Reconstruction and Supply.

After the ceremonies, the cabinet members held their first meeting under St. Laurent as Prime Minister in his own right.

St. Laurent's policies are generally expected to be in line with those established by King, who sponsored his political career.

British Name 3 Key Officials In Bribe Probe

London, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—A British court today began an investigation of an alleged conspiracy in which high government officials, including a director of the Bank of England, helped racketeers evade trade regulations in return for money, whisky and expensive suits.

Attorney General Sir Hartley Shawcross told the tribunal that those involved in the "tangled web" of corruption included John W. Belcher, 43, parliamentary secretary to the Board of Trade; George Gibson, 53, director of the Bank of England, and Charles W. Key, 65, $20,000-a-year Minister of Works.

He admitted, however, that evidence gathered so far by Scotland Yard did not "support any prosecution in relation to matters which are the subject of inquiry."

Shawcross said that "the whole tangled web seems to have been spun" around one Sidney Stanley, whom he described as "a sort of confidence trickster."

The government will press investigation of the role government officials played regarding an application for a license to import amusement machinery, an application for a building license, permission to issue stock on a company operating football pools and attempts by this company to avoid prosecution for the illegal use of paper, Shawcross said.

Sleep, My Baby" and "Rock-a-Bye Baby."

Despite statements from police that Prince Philip would not appear the crowd refused to go home.

More than 4000 telegrams of congratulations were received at the palace. The court postoffice said it was a record for a single day.

President Truman and Gen. Eisenhower were among those sending messages. In Paris, the Duke of Windsor, great-uncle of the child, wished the baby "every possible happiness." In time the child doubtless will be designated Prince of Wales, a title last held by the Duke before his brief reign as Edward VIII.

Prime Minister Attlee delayed parliamentary proceedings on the Labor government's great steel nationalization bill to announce that a formal resolution of congratulations, in which all political parties will join, is to be proposed tomorrow.

Attlee's cabinet sent its own message this afternoon, offering congratulations to King George, Queen Elizabeth, Princess Elizabath and Prince Philip. The baby was born six days before the first wedding anniversary of Elizabeth and Philip.

To all warships, the order went out to "splice the main brace," that is, to issue double rations of grog.

Two questions remained unanswered.

What anesthetic was used for the princess? The royal physicians refused to answer on professional grounds. London newspapers reported, without disclosing their source of information, that two were used: Pethidine for the early stages of labor and trilene administered just before birth.

What will be the prince's name? The answer was a royal family secret. Palace sources said the announcement might not be made "for several days, for several weeks or even until the actual christening." The christening is expected late in December.

Truman Asks FAO to Stay In Washington

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

President Truman told the 57-nation Conference of the United Nations Food, and Agriculture Organization yesterday that he hoped they would keep FAO headquarters in the United States.

The permanent site for FAO is one of several important decisions on which the delegates started work yesterday. A general committee that will make recommendations on the new site, will report today. The choice has narrowed to Washington, Rome, Geneva and Copenhagen.

It also will consider the controversial subject of admission of Israel into the organization, and the application of the Vatican for status of permanent observer.

President's Message

In his message to the conference, read by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, President Truman declared:

"I know of no one factor more important to the future peace of the world than food. The work which FAO does, or leaves undone, will have a great bearing on the history of the world."

Following a report by Director General Norris E. Dodd, and a statement by Brannan, the conference elected Brannan as chairman of the conference, which is expected to last for several weeks.

Elected with him as vice chairmen were Chinese Ambassador V. K. Wellington Koo, Senator Jose Manuel Casanova of Cuba, and James M. Dillon, minister of agriculture for Eire. The four, with representatives from Poland, Brazil, New Zealand, France, Egypt, India and the United Kingdom, make up the general committee.

Thanksgiving Bids

In welcoming the delegates, Brannan told them the story of the American Thanksgiving Day. "A number of near-by farm families have extended invitations to you to have Thanksgiving dinner in their homes," he told them.

In his first address as director general, Morris E. Dodd stated "the great design of FAO—that mankind shall be free from hunger and shall be clothed and sheltered well."

"I have been a farmer most of my life," he said, "and I never made a harvest without enduring sweat, toil and discouragement. Neither will FAO nor its member nation."

Food Scarcity Cited

"For the world as a whole," he said, "there is only nine-tenths as much food per capita as before the war, and only three-fourths as much food per capita is moving in international trade.

"Although much progress has been made towards rehabilitation, even the prewar level of food production—not yet attained—would now be still less adequate, for each day gives the world 55,000 more mouths to feed."

Dodd outlined the program he will offer the conference for the coming year. "Action," he said, "has been undertaken in every one of FAO's fields, agriculture, fisheries, forestry, nutrition, economics and statistics, rural welfare and distribution."

Byrd Proposes FAO Make Home at Md. U.

Dr. Harry C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, yesterday asked that permanent FAO headquarters be located on the College Park Campus.

He said he had discussed the plan with Gov. William Preston Lane, jr. Lane, he said, wished him to inquire if FAO would be interested if Maryland provided land for its buildings. He also inquired if FAO would be interested in having Maryland construct buildings for it and rent them to the international body. Dr. Byrd estimated construction would cost $2,500,000 and could be ready by December 21, 1949.

Produce to Rot?

N. Y. Buyers Balk at Rail Handling Fee

New York, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—New York wholesale buyers threatened to let one million dollars worth of fruit and vegetables rot on railroad piers today before they would accept an increased railroad handling charge and pass it on to the consumers.

Some 400 buyers came to market this morning but refused to buy.

The buyers were notified over the weekend that the railroads would put into effect today a new fee for unloading produce. The buyers held a meeting before the scheduled start of the auctions and then announced that they would not pay the charge. The buyers insisted that the rate increase was a matter between the railroads and shippers and should not be passed on to wholesaler, retailer and consumer.

The increases amounted to 12 cents a box on Florida citrus (approximately 85 to 100 pound boxes of oranges and 40 to 50 pound boxes of tangerines), 10 cents a box on California citrus, 7 cents on apples and pears, 5 cents for table grapes and 3 cents for cherries, persimmons and peaches. There were corresponding charges for potatoes and other vegetables.

Food Prices Headed Down, Experts Say

Food prices are starting to come down, the agriculture committee of the National Planning Association said yesterday.

"Already grains, fats and oils have sunk in price as a result of big crops. Prices farmers are now getting for these crops are one third lower than a year ago. Prices are low enough to encourage maximum use of these crops in processed foods and as livestock feed."

"Meats will begin to drop as soon as herds and flocks can be increased and this year's big grain crop converted into livestock products. But the drop can't come suddenly because animals don't multiply overnight."

Don't look for food prices in the city to drop as fast as farm products in the country, the committee warns. "Recently, the cost of processing and distribution has gone up about as fast as the price of products on the farm. Although farm prices have begun to drop, processing and distribution costs are not only likely to stay high but may even go higher. Thus retail food costs probably will not fall as much as prices on the farm."

District Looks Into Auto Loan Regulations

The District Commissioners yesterday asked automotive firms to send their representatives to meet with the corporation counsel to iron out disagreement in proposed small loan regulations.

The request came after a hearing at which the Commissioners heard Martin F. O'Donoghue, representing the District Bar Association, declared that the need for tighter regulation is paramount. O'Donoghue said the association had uncovered nearly 170 cases of excessive financing on used cars.

He offered to take the Commissioners to used car lots and show them that purchasers are not told about additional expenses, above the cost price of the the used car, when they buy "on time."

He declared that investigation would show that such firms actually are engaged in lending money, and in "usurious practices."

William R. Lichtenberg, who represented the Washington Association of Finance Companies at the hearing, said: "Some lawyers are attempting to lead the Commissioners into an error by taking the word of disgruntled auto purchasers."

Asked Commissioner Guy Mason: "You don't think the Commissioners are that naive, do you?"

William H. Press, testifying on behalf of the Washington Board of Trade, said the question had been raised as to whether the Commissioners have the authority to issue new regulations on small loan and usury laws.

This question itself, he said, was pertinent enough to justify a recommendation that the law be changed so that there "can be no doubt as to its intent."

He asked that action on the proposed regulations be withheld until Congress may receive amendments to the District Code clarifying the application of the small loan and usury laws.

William H. Emerson, a spokesman for the Washington Automotive Trade Association, said: "Our finance company members tell us and state they can prove their statement that they cannot exist if the finance charges are limited to the interest rates specified in the laws and proposed regulations."

Fine Adds To the Upkeep

Norman J. Bonifant, 40, a Takoma Park laborer, found yesterday it is not the original cost of the car that's expensive—it's the upkeep, especially if one drives while drunk.

Bonifant, who lives at 131 Grant ave., paid a $500 fine in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday on charges of drunken driving after his license had been revoked.

Last December 11 he paid a $450 fine on similar charges. Police records show Bonifant was sentenced to three months in the Maryland House of Correction and fined $5 on drunk and reckless driving charges in 1935. His driver's license was revoked

Bonifant's latest arrest occurred October 30, when Justice of the Peace Harry Fiddesop of Hyattsville observed the former driving in an erratic manner for services rendered in getting a new car which his firm needed.

Trade-In Auto Profits Concealed

R. Harry Kearney, jr. denied that he received $500 cash from Gilbert, or any other payment or gift—except a tip on a horse that didn't pay $500. When he denied getting anything from Gilbert, Subcommittee Chairman W. Kingsland Macy (R., N. Y.) called upon Gilbert to stand up and make what comment he wished.

"I greatly regret his testimony," said Gilbert.

Subcommittee Counsel John T. M. Reddan asked Gilbert if he stood on his earlier testimony of having made the payment to Kearney.

"Of course," replied Gilbert. "Undoubtedly, certainly."

Reddan again asked Kearney, "do you categorically deny that Gilbert paid you $500 in cash?."

Kearney denied that he had received anything from Gilbert other than a tip on a horse, and that did not win him $500.

"I have been seeing Mr. Gilbert around the race track for the last four or five years," said Kearney. "I am also a friend of a lady he goes around with and I have known her for 30 years, and I thought they were very good friends of mine and I gave them an automobile." (He made clear later that "gave" was a figure of speech in the auto business for having sold Gilbert a car.)

Gilbert, at the outset, made clear he was testifying against his wishes and was there only because of a subpena, that he was satisfied with the deal, and that he was a friend of Kearney. He added, "I trust he feels that way toward me."

Business Policies Outlined

Both Kearney brothers gave the subcommittee some individual declarations of business policy.

Said Harry Kearney, jr.: "I've been an automobile salesman for 30 years and I took everything I could get." But he emphasized that he did not approve of taking "tips"—"we're getting enough money for our cars." He explained that by taking everything he could get, he meant the usual commissions on tires, on insurance, and on the cars he sold.

Raymond J. Kearney had this to say:

On th policy of delivering cars to customers: "We try to follow our lists as closely as possible, but for business reasons we have to deviate. We have to make other deals, with friends, and other people we have to take care of."

On the question of whether a man with a car to trade gets a break on new car delivery: "Yes he does, not too much advantage, maybe 30 days."

Trade-in Practices

On trade-in price policy: "We try to take a car in for as little as we can and sell it for as much as we can."

Policy on selling accessories: "I sell as many as I can. I know this, that nobody was ever made to take anything they didn't want to buy. I won't take anything (accessories) off a new car; I'd sell the car to someone else."

Counsel Reddan than asked Raymond Kearney at length about a recent Oldsmobile newspaper advertisement, outlining policies of dealers with the Kearney firm standing at the head of the list. When Reddan got to a part about "fair and reasonable prices," Kearney said, "I'd say that was meant for some other dealer."

Yesterday's hearing and the one set for today grew out of a 4-month preliminary investigation by the Macy subcommittee. A preliminary finding by Macy declared new car dealers had undervalued trade-in automobiles, and had sold accessories unwanted by customers for a total take in the Washington area of some $4,400,000 in the first 7 months of this year.

Macy opened yesterday's hearing with a sharp warning that the automobile industry should start "cleaning their own house before Congress is confronted, as I believe it undoubtedly will be confronted, with drastic and arbitrary control legislation."

Today's hearing is slated to turn to operations of the New York Avenue Motors Co., of 606 New York ave. nw., Washington Hudson dealer. It will start at 10 a. m. in room 1302, New House Office Building.

After Gilbert, a second witness, Ben J. Cohn, bookmaker, of 2801 Pennsylvania ave. se., said he went in January this year to see salesman William Manuel of the Kearney firm about getting a new car for Carl Mehrstedt, bartender of 1336 Spring rd. nw.

"Well," said Cohn, "he got me the car. I took Mr. Mehrstedt down there and he paid for it and I gave Mr. Manuel a present. That was all there was to it."

The present was a $500 tip, it was disclosed by Mehrstedt through Cohn to Manuel.

Cohn said he had given Manuel what he thought was reasonable but that Manuel had not asked for the money. Cohn said he did not offer a specific amount, but told Manuel, "I would take care of you if you get me a car."

Cohn said Mehrstedt had authorized him to give up to $500 for getting the car. Mehrstedt testified that his version of the transaction was the same as Cohn's

Third Tip Related

A third $500 tip showed up in the report of Harry Snider, restaurant operator, of 2025 Fendall st. se., who declared he had bought a car in April this year from the Kearney firm and had paid Manuel $500 over purchase price of the car.

At one point Snider was cautioned by Reddan that it would be violating his oath to be evasive, after the latter testified he understood the $500 to Manuel was for extra parts on the car, not included in the sales invoice. He also testified that in September, 1947, he bought a car from the Kearney Co., and traded in an old car for a $1200 allowance, but denied he had said in an earlier closed session that he could have got $1700 by selling the old car himself.

Manuel, who lives at 1530 16th st. nw., told the subcommittee he had been selling autos 20 years, and "whenever I sold a car I expected something as a tip. I didn't ask for anything; if they offered it, I accepted it."

"Can't Remember" Amounts

Reddan asked, "How much did you expect?"

Manual replied: "Whatever they gave me."

Reddan: "How much did you usually get?"

Manuel: "Whatever they gave me."

Reddan: "That is correct, but how much did you usually get?"

Manuel: "I don't know, I can't remember."

Reddan: "If we hadn't had Mr. Snider and Mr. Cohn in here, could you have remembered how much they gave you, Mr. Manuel?"

Manuel: "No, sir."

Reddan: "Do you remember now that they gave you $500?"

Manuel: "I don't remember it."

Manuel told the committee that he had been getting tips all his life as a salesman, even before the war, but that the tips then "didn't run as much as they do now."

Reddan asked "how do you report this (tips) on your income tax?"

Manuel: "Well, must I answer that question?"

Reddan: "Yes, unless it is going to incriminate you."

Questioned on Income Returns

Manuel: "I think that is between Uncle Sam and I. I will report the income of what I made."

Reddan: You will report the tips?"

Manuel: "I certainly will."

Reddan: "Have you done it over the years?

Manuel: "I reported everything I made."

Manuel, under a series of questions, said he had always reported what he had made as income, but that he did not remember how he had done it in 1947.

Reddan asked if Manuel would be surprised to learn that he had not reported tips as income in 1947, but had showed only what the Kearney Co. paid him, and Mauel commented, "I'm not much of a bookkeeper."

Reddan asked: "Your testimony under oath is that all the money you have received as tips you kept for yuorself. Is that right?"

"Never Asked Anything"

Manuel: "Yes, sir. I never asked for anything. If they gave it to me, I kept it."

Reddan: "Did Mr. Kearney know you were taking these tips?"

Manuel: "He certainly did not. He is liable to fire me for accepting it."

Reddan asked if Manuel had been surprised when Gilbert said he gave R. Harvey Kearney $500, and Manuel said "I certainly am."

Reddan: "You didn't think that Mr. Kearney would do that?"

Manuel: "I don't think he will and I don't think he would."

Reddan: "Do you think there is something wrong about it?"

Thinks It Was Wrong

Manuel: "There certainly is."

Reddan: "And you were doing it?"

Manuel: "I am only a salesman."

Manuel added that he thought auto salesmen took tips all over the country.

"I had to pay tips when I wanted something," Manuel declared.

Reddan asked: "Did any of your customers ever object to paying tips?"

Manuel: "No, sir, they were glad to do it."

Representative Henry D. Larcade, jr. (D., La.) asked if Manuel thought $500 was a tip.

Said Manuel: "I don't think $500 is a lot of money."

The salesman said that most of his sales were made without tips, but that he kept all the tips he got for himself. He said Cohn always gave him a present when Manuel sold Cohn a car.

Reddan asked how he usually brought up the subject of tips with a customer.

"I use different tactics on all my customers," said Manuel.

Reddan: "Are they usually effective?"

Manuel: "Well, I am eating three times a day if that is what you mean."

A fourth $500 tip was described by Nathanie Ross, 215 I st. sw., employed in a dry cleaning establishment. He said he had paid a Kearney salesman, Richard Danzi, $500 over the invoice price to get a car in April. Manuel had testified that Danzi was on vacation.

In the afternoon, the committee turned to the question of how the Kearney company handled trade-in automobiles.

Testimony was presented to show this procedure in seven trade-in transactions:

The customer would be given an allowance for his old car.

He would usually sign, in blank, the certificate of transfer of title. The car would be sold for cash by a Kearney Co. official to one or another used car dealer, for much higher prices than the original owner was allowed. All that showed up on the books of the Kearney Co. was the amount allowed the customer, recorded as part of the payment for the car.

The profit from the resale, and the fact that the car had passed through Kearney hands, did not appear on the Kearney records.

First to tell about his trade-in was Lee M. Earp, 6 Brandywine st. se., employed with the Railway Express Co. He bought a new car from Kearney Co. in May this year, and was allowed $1000 on his 1946 DeSoto.

Earp said he signed the certificate of transfer of title in blank, gave it to Manuel, did not appear before a notary, and took no oath on the transfer. From a photostat of the certificate, he read that the car had been transferred not to the Kearney Co., but to the Cherner Motor Co.

Henry J. Gertler, treasurer of the Cherner Motor Co., then testifiied that his company's books showed that Cherner Co. bought Earp's car from Kearney Co. for $1700. Under questioning by Reddan, Gertler said that before a subcommittee investigator had gone to the Cherner Co., the books showed the car as coming directly from Earp.

Gertler said that had been "clerical error." Sol Stern, assistant used car sales manager for the Cherner Co., said he had paid Robert S. Tiger, sales manager for Kearney Co., the $1700 in cash and had asked for a receipt but was told none was necessary.

On the Earp transaction, Mrs. Lichtenberg was called back and testified that she had notarized the title transfer showing that the car went from Earp to Cherner Motor Co. She said Earp had appeared before her. She said she did not remember whether the assignment of title to the Cherner Co. had been entered then, nor did she remember who told her to put in the Cherner name.

The Earp transaction, and the ones that followed, paved the way for a series of tense appearances of Tiger on the witness stand.

He said that as head salesman he sold a number of cars to Stern and Samuel A. Mensh, used car sales manager for the Cherner Co., but that "to recollect which automobile I sold them, I couldn't do that for love or money." He said he could not remember the Earp car transaction.

On the Earp deal, and on others, Tiger said that whenever he received money for a car all the money was turned in to the office of the Kearney company.

Reddan asked, "Why did you not give Mr. Stern a receipt for the cash?"

Tiger replied: "That is not my department, I don't know. If I received any moneys from anybody, I turned it in to the office."

He added that "Mr. Stern never asked me for a receipt in his life."

"If any dealer asked me for it, he got a bill of sale," said Tiger.

Other trade-in transactions included:

Dr. John E. Everett, 6301 14th st. nw., got an allowance of $1500 when he traded a 1946 Oldsmobile for a new Kearney Co. car last April, and the old car was then sold to Cherner Co. for $2000 cash, then resold by Cherner, according to Gertler, to another dealer for $2150.

Mrs. Patricia Mancuso, 5414 7th st. nw., a secretary, said Kearney Co. in March allowed her $500 for a 1940 Buick sedan, and that she had never had any dealings with the Lish-Keefe Motor Co., to which the certificate showed she had transferred title to the car. Jacob C. Lish, secretary treasurer of Lish-Keefe, testified his firm bought her car for $850 cash from Kearney. Elmer V. Keefe, president of Lish-Keefe, said he had paid the $850 in cash to Tiger.

Keefe said he had worked at the Kearney Co. for five years, and that from her desk, Mrs. Lichtenberg could see all customers sign their titles. Later witnesses said they had signed the title papers in booths, with glass partitions, and did not know whether Mrs. Lichtenberg could see them.

Keefe said the procedure which was used in filling out the title transfer certificates in common practice among used car dealers, that it saves time, but there had never been an occasion to get a ruling from the Corporation Counsel on it.

Dr. Alfred Dibbs, 2217 39th st. nw., said that in April he traded in a 1941 Buick to Kearney and was allowed $500. Counsel Reddan brought out that Lish-Keefe bought it for $1100.

Dr. Earl C. Hewitt, 5821 Newark st. nw., said he was allowed $100 by the Kearney Co. on a 1938 Buick, later bought by Lish Keefe for $400.

First Precinct Detective Mark W. Gray of Cheverly, Md., said he traded a 1932 Plymouth in to Kearney and was allowed $450 The car went to Lish-Keefe for $825.

Dwight R. Partello, builder, of College Heights, Md., got a $300 allowance on a 1940 Oldsmobile sedan, which later was bought by Lish-Keefe for $850.

At one point, Tiger testified that on one occasion he had got a convertible for Keefe from Cherner Co., gave Keefe's $300 check to Mensh, and got a $300 commission himself. He said he did not know himself. He said Keefe did not know about the commission, but "he knew I was going to get something; it was a private transaction entirely."

After the details of the trade-in deals, Reddan told Tiger that "none of the transactions appear in the records of the Kearney Co., nor in the information the company submitted to this committee."

"I have nothing to do with the bookkeeping," said Tiger "These things are Greek to me."

When Raymond Kearney was called to the stand late in the afternoon, Reddan asked if he had any comment on the preceding testimony.

"I wouldn't like to make any," said Kearney.

Reddan wanted to know if the testimony had been true.

"They took the same oath I did," said Kearney.

Reddan asked whether Kearney knew that title certificates were going out of his firm's office that did not reflect the actual transaction.

"Yes," said Kearney, "but that has always been a common practice—a time saver."

Reddan accused the witness of having submitted false information to the committee referring to the list made up by Mrs. Lichtenberg from invoices showing company operations this year.

Kearney heatedly denied the information was false, saying instead that it was incomplete, and that at the time he had not known it was incomplete. He said that the books by the end of the year would reflect the money from sales of cars that were traded in to Kearney and sold to other firms. He said the committee could see the books again when they are completed.

Reddan then asked whether the firm made a required weekly report of used car transactions to the District Director of Vehicles and Traffic. Reddan cited Section 36 of the District Title and Registration Regulations, which says:

(a) Every finance company, junk dealer, new car dealer or used car dealer shall, on a form furnished by the director, notify the director of all used vehicles except those left for repair or storage, received by him during a calendar week.

(Another paragraph calls for making the report for each week by the following Tuesday.)

Reddan also cited part of the regulations saying in effect that in any used car transaction in the District the person disposing of the car must give a certificat or certificate of title to the person acquiring the car.

When the question of the weekly reports was raised, Kearney said "Mrs. Lichtenberg takes care of that."

Mrs. Lichtenberg returned to the witness stand and told the subcommittee that she had the duty, but for a good many years had not made the reports to the District, because "I was never asked."

Another witness was Gerald Francis Hammil of Bethesda, accountant for the Kearney firm. He identified company documents used in later questioning.

High Court Lifts Ford Ruling

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

In a sharply split decision, the Supreme Court yesterday ruled that restraints imposed 10 years ago on automobile financing practices of the Ford Motor Co. should be removed.

The restraints prohibit owning or controlling an automobile financing company, or "persuading dealers to do business with such a firm.

Justice Black, in a vigorous dissent in which Justice Rutledge concurred in full, and Justice Douglas in part, said the court's majority act'on which came on a 4-to-3 division to lift the restrants will result in "destruction of competition in automobile financing."

In a 1938 consent decree, Ford and Chrysler Corp. agreed to the restraints, provided that General Motors Corp. was similarly restrained by 1941. GM fought the case, was convicted of some "coercive" financing practices, but suit on divesting it of its finance company still is pending.

Chrysler, in 1942—unsuccessfully—and Ford in the current case sought to call a halt to the postponements, contending discrimination for failure similarly to restrain GM.

The Supreme Court majority agreed with Ford that under terms of the consent decree the Justice Department had been given sufficient opportunity to present its case against GM, and reversed an Indiana Federal Court decision which continued the restraints.

Justices Murphy and Jackson took no part in consideration of the case or the decision.

U. S. Cities Declared Atom Bomb Targets

By Conrad Harness
Post Reporter

New York, Nov. 15.—A Government official today declared the Nation's larger cities, including Washington, are becoming better atomic targets daily.

Gayle W. Arnold, of the National Security Resources Board, warned the National Association of Real Estate Boards, meeting here, that "the United States is intensifying its weakness at the very time it should be building up strength."

He said the best thing the United States could contribute to world peace would be to locate industry in cities of less than 50,000 population, separated by 10 miles of open country. That, he said, would make it prohibitively expensive to A-bomb.

Arnold said all information regarding NSRB's plan for industrial, civil or Government relocation is classified as "top secret." However, it was reasonable to assume, he said, that the board's duty of "advising the President concerning the coordination of military, industrial and civilian mobilization" would also include a plan for relocation of Washington agencies. The board will meet with President Truman upon the latter's return from Key West.

Arnold said there is no defense against the atomic bomb except space itself. Hence the best way to build up industrial strength, he added, is for this country to direct industrial and business increases from the larger cities.

With atomic bombs as expensive as they are, the delegates were told, an aggressor nation could profitably allocate bombs only to a few major targets.

Arnold refused to comment on any proposed plan of decentralization of Government bureaus in case of war, but said a start had already been made in private industry by construction of new plants in small cities.

To factories or industries now located in "vulnerable" areas and in need of building expansion, he recommended relocation in less vulnerable areas, if possible.

"There is no practical reason for postponing a vigorous start on industrial dispersion and urban decentralization in this country. We cannot afford not to disperse. The whole problem boils down to a common sense application of not putting all of one's eggs in one basket, he declared.

"Industry must undertake its expansion or decentralization by itself. Uncle Sam can neither dictate nor finance such a large-scale change in the industrial pattern."

More than 4000 realtors, including around 50 from the Washington area, have registered. The Washington delegation is headed by Raymond M. Taylor, president, Washington Real Estate Board, with R. P. Ripley, presiding over the delegation from the Montgomery County (Md.) board.

Double Murder

Son of Slain Sculptor Is Exonerated

Boca Raton, Fla., Nov. 15 (U.P.).—Officials investigating the double murder of society sculptor Leon Lazzari and his wife questioned and then freed the artist's Italian-born son today.

Leon Lazzari

Franco Lazzari, 25, former Italian soldier and son of Lazzari's first wife, was picked up this morning, but after close examination for more than six hours, police said, "As far as we are concerned, he is absolutely in the clear."

Leno Lazzari, 48, and his attractive wife, Louise, 40, were killed by revolver bullets in the stomach when they returned to their small studio home here shortly after midnight Saturday. The home is some 26 miles from West Palm Beach.

Israel Won't Yield Negev, It Tells U. N.

Paris, Nov 15 (AP).—Israel told the United Nations today it would put up fierce resistance against loss of the Negev desert in southern Palestine.

Moshe Shertok, Israeli Foreign Minister, spoke before the General Assembly's 58-nation Political Committee as debate started on the peace plan of Count Bernadotte, slain Palestine mediator.

The Negev, scene of recent bitter fighting between Israeli and Egyptian forces, was given to Israel under the Palestine partition plan adopted by the Assembly November 29, 1947. Under the Bernadotte plan it would be given to the Arabs.

Shertok said any Arab state trying to annex the Negev "should have to overcome, in bloody battles, the fiercest resistance that the Jews have yet offered anywhere to the Arab invaders."

The Palestine question also occupied the Security Council which considered a new Canadian proposal to replace the shaky Holy Land truce with an armistice. The Canadian measure was similar to a draft resolution offered last week by acting Mediator Ralph Bunche.

United States Delegate Philip C. Jessup said he would support the Canadian resolution, which Canadian sources said was drawn up after talks with the American, British, French and Belgian delegations.

Russia's Jacob A. Malik, however, said he believed the Council should order the Jews and Arabs not to negotiate an armistice, but a formal peace.

The Council meets again Tuesday to continue debate on the Canadian proposal.

In the midst of the two-pronged Palestine discussions, Shertok said Israel felt the time had come to ask for U. N. membership. He appealed for the support of the Security Council and the Assembly when Israel files its formal application. He did not say, however, when this would be.

Shertok said Israel would not accept international control of all Jerusalem. He said Israel now controlled the new city of Jerusalem and favored U. N. control of the old walled city, which is in Arab hands.

He told the committee the Negev would give Israel an outlet on the Gulf of Aqaba, opening water routes to the Orient. He said it also would give the Jews an area around the Dead Sea where they have developed a chemical plant which takes potash and other chemicals from sea water.

The Canadian proposal calls upon Jews and Arabs to negotiate directly, or through the acting mediator, to bring about an armistice.

Balkan Peace Talks Under Way in Paris

Paris, Nov. 15 (AP).—Four-nation Balkan peace talks began formally today, with United Nations mediators sitting in.

The conversations, involving Greece, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania, represent the first direct attempt to solve the postwar Balkan crisis.

Stern Gang Issues Threat

Tel Aviv, Israel, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—The extremist Stern gang issued a "final warning" to the Israeli government tonight to stop arresting Sternists or face renewed underground warfare.

The Sternists charged that government arrests were "calculated to please the Marshalls and Cadogans and other Anglo-Saxons."

United States Secretary of State George C. Marshall and Sir Alexander Cadogan, chief British U. N. representative, supported a recent Security Council order for Israeli forces to withdraw from recently won positions in the Negev area of south Palestine.

Israeli forces, meanwhile, continued their offensive in the Negev. Private sources reported from the fighting zone that Egyptian troops trapped at Faluja were trying to break out, leaving their equipment and arms behind.

Munro to Drop One British Post Here

Sir Gordon Munro, K. C. M. G., M. C., will retire, at his own request, on December 31, from the post of H. M. Treasury Representative in the United States, the British information services announced yesterday.

Sir Gordon has agreed to continue to serve as United Kingdom Executive Director of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development for the time being, and will retain the rank of Minister at the British Embassy.

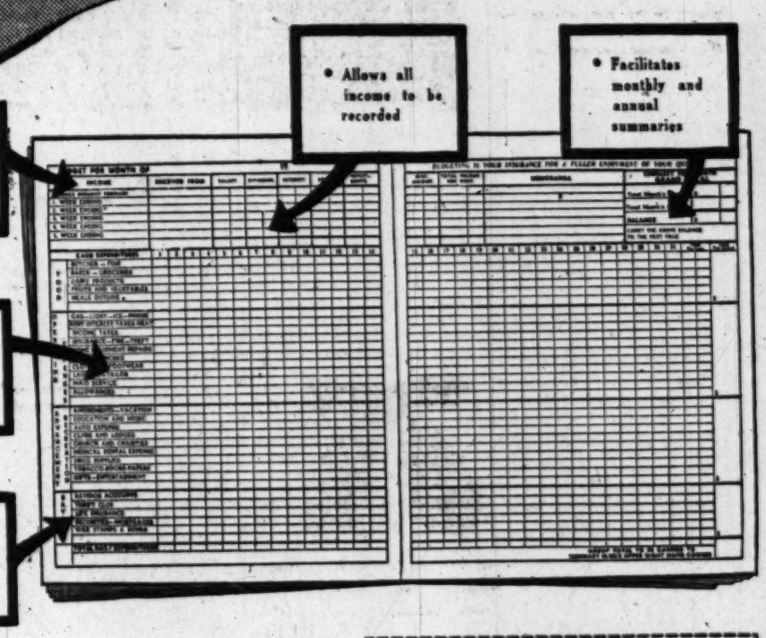
HOUSEHOLD BUDGET BOOK
Pages like this help keep the record straight:
• Makes workable monthly budgeting possible
• Allows all income to be recorded
• Facilitates monthly and annual summaries
• Makes household record-keeping easy
• Allows for systematic saving



HERE'S THE smart way to plan happy family spending and saving: a budget book, to show where your money goes, how it is spent, how it can be saved.

We're interested in budgets because most families who use them learn to save a fixed part of their income regularly. The more who do this, the more there are who use our savings facilities—who take advantage of the protection of Federally Insured accounts—and who enjoy regular dividends on their savings.

Authorities agree that most of us can reduce expenses and increase savings through moderately careful budgeting. It's not enough to resolve to be careful with money. You have to do something constructive about it. Start right now—with a Household Budget Book.

Gen. Clay Expects Siege to Continue

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 15 (AP).—Gen Lucius D. Clay said today he does not believe the blockade of Berlin will be lifted this year.

Clay, the United States military governor in Germany, was asked at a news conference if he foresees an end to the Russian siege of the former German capital by next January 1. He replied:

"I know of no reason to believe that access to Berlin by highway or rail will be restored by the end of the year."

Clay said the new Tegel airfield in the French sector "will add several hundred tons a day" to airlift supplies reaching Berlin.

Agreement Possible

As airlift tonnage jumps, the amount of manufactured goods sent from Berlin to the West will increase, he stressed.

Clay said the three western military governors "possibly may reach agreement tomorrow" on an occupation statute for western Germany.

"Working parties" representing the United States, British and French military governors "have resolved a great part of the differences" on the statute, Clay said.

No Plans to Leave

In reply to questions, Clay also said:

He has no plans to leave his post next year.

Grain collections in the United States zone are lagging "and if we run way behind our quotas, it could have a very serious effect (on the food situation), next spring."

Gov. Charles M. Lafollette of Wurttemberg-Baden has absolved German labor leaders of responsibility for the Stuttgart riot which followed a labor union demonstration last month against high prices.

20 More Transports Assigned to Airlift

The Air Force yesterday ordered 20 more transport planes assigned to the Berlin airlift.

This brings to 44 the number of planes transferred to the airlift since President Truman recently authorized an increase because of the approach of winter.

The 20 planes are Douglas C-54s. They were taken from the Caribbean Air Command, Military Air Transport Service, Air Materiel Command and Tactical Air Command for assignment to the Berlin duty.

New Berlin Plan Ready

gigentic U. S.-British airlift which has been flying supplies to the city's western sector.

The informant who disclosed the drafting of this plan said some members of the six neutral countries felt the Western powers should be able to accept the proposal, at least as a basis for discussion.

They hoped for a similar Russian attitude, the source said, particularly since Russia itself presented a plan for lifting the blockade by stages in earlier discussions.

The three Western powers are reported determined to keep the Berlin question in the hands of the Council, however. They are also said to be standing by their previous declarations that they will not negotiate with Russia until the blockade is lifted.

Lie and Evatt sent letters Saturday to President Truman, Prime Minister Stalin, Prime Minister Attlee and Premier Queuille pleading for immediate four-power conversations on the Berlin crisis.

Americans Told To Leave China

pected to occupy north China shortly.

The situation has deteriorated rapidly since the government's recent defeats in Manchuria. The warning from the American embassy was the first addressed to United States civilians throughout China.

The Embassy and the United States Consulate in Shanghai issued similar notices:

"In view of the deteriorating situation and the likelihood that means of exit from China may later be unavailable, all Americans in the Nanking (or Shanghai) consular district who are not prepared to remain under hazardous conditions in areas where they now reside should plan at once to move to places of safety."

The notices said emergency facilities will be available only for a short time.

The warning emphasized the dangers as hostilities reach across the Yangtze.

There was no indication from President Chiang Kai-shek he was prepared to abandon his Nanking capital. Speculation has been widespread that the government would be moved to Canton or some other city in the south.

Liu Po-cheng, one-eyed Communist general whose forces last summer ranged the Peiping-Hankow railroad, was reported to have isolated and by-passed Suhsien, rail town 50 miles south of Suchow. One unconfirmed report said Suhsien already had fallen.

(The Red Star said a 50-mile stretch of the Suchow-Nanking railroad was under Communist control; that the Nationalist Seventh Army group is being wiped out in a 10-square-mile area 30 miles east of Suchow, and that government troops are "utterly spiritless.")

There were no military reports directly from Suchow.

Battle Is Indicated For Peiping, Tientsin

Peiping, Nov. 15 (AP).—The battle for Peiping and Tientsin, north China's largest cities, appeared to be shaping up tonight.

The Chinese Communists, having overrun Manchuria and struck at the big nationalist base of Suchow in central China, have entered Chengteh, capital of Jehol province and pushed southward toward the great wall.

Chengteh, 110 miles northeast of Peiping, is a natural base for a major drive on this big city—formerly China's capital. Pro-government reports said the Reds already had reached Kupeikou, only 70 miles northeast of Peiping.

Other pro-government sources acknowledged the Reds had also broken into Paoting, capital of Hopeh province, 90 miles southwest of here. It was not clear whether the city was completely in Communist hands.

Slapping Incident Told by Eisenhower

ination of their German overlords, had entirely quit, but along the great saw-toothed ridge of which the center was Mount Etna the German garrison was fighting skillfully and savagely. Panzer and paratroop elements here were among the best we encountered in the war, and each position won was gained only through the complete destruction of the defending elements.

Nevertheless, by the time the Seventh and Eighth Armies had closed up into position for their final assault against the Mount Etna bastion the Germans saw that the game was up and began the evacuation across the Strait of Messina. Our bombers operated against this line of escape, but the narrowness of the strait allowed the enemy to get out most of the badly battered German garrison during hours of darkness.

Early on August 17 the U. S. Third Division pushed into the town of Messina. A detachment from the Eighth Army soon after arrived and on that date the last remaining element of the enemy forces on the island was eliminated.

Patton Slapping Incident Recalled

It was during this campaign that the unfortunate 'slapping incident" involving General Patton took place. Patton, on a visit to base hospitals to see the wounded, encountered, in quick succession, two men who had no apparent physical hurts. Of the first one he met, Patton inquired why he was a patient in the hospital. To this the man replied, "General, I guess it's my nerves." Patton flew into a rage. He had, himself, been under a terrific strain for a period of many days. Moreover, he sincerely believed that there was no such thing as true "battle fatigue" or "battle neurosis."

He always maintained that any man who began to show signs of breaking under battle conditions could by shock be restored to a sense of responsibility and to adequate performance of duty. At the moment, also, Patton was in a highly emotional state because of the sights he had seen and the suffering he had sensed among the wounded of the hospital.

He broke out into a torrent of abuse against the soldier. His tirade drew protests from doctors and nurses, but so violent was his outbreak they hesitated to intervene.

Within a matter of moments he met a second soldier under somewhat similar circumstances. This time his emotions were so uncontrollable that he swung a hand at the soldier's head. He struck the man's helmet, which rolled along the ground, and by this time doctors and nurses, overcoming their natural timidity in the presence of the commanding general, intervened between Patton and the soldier.

Both enlisted men were, of course, badly upset. One of them was seriously ill. The doctors later testified that he had a temperature of 102. Patton soon gained sufficient control of himself to continue his inspection and left the hospital.

But throughout his visit he continued to talk in a loud voice about the cowardice of people who claimed they were suffering from psychoneuroses and exclaimed that they should not be allowed in the same hospital with the brave wounded men.

The story spread throughout the hospital and among neighboring units with lightning speed. I soon received an unofficial report from the surgeon commanding the hospital and only a few hours thereafter was visited by a group of newspaper correspondents who had been to the hospital to secure the details. Their report substantially corroborated the one I had already received from the doctor. The question became, what to do?

In forward areas it is frequently necessary, as every battle veteran knows, to use stern measures to insure prompt performance of duty by every man of the organization. In a platoon or in a battalion, if there is any sign of hesitation or shirking on the part of any individual, it must be quickly and sternly repressed. Soldiers will not follow any battle leader with confidence unless they know that he will require full performance of duty from every member of the team. When bullets are flying and every man's safety and welfare depend upon every other man in the team doing his job, men will not accept a weakling as their leader.

Patton's offense, had it been committed on the actual front, within an assaulting platoon, would merely have been an incident of battle—no one would have even noted it, except with the passing thought that here was a leader who would not tolerate shirking.

But because of the time and place of his action Patton's offense was a serious one, more so because of his rank and standing. Thus to assault and abuse an enlisted man in a hospital was nothing less than brutal, except as it was explained by the highly emotional state in which Patton himself then existed.

His emotional tenseness and his impulsiveness were the very qualities that made him, in open situations, such a remarkable leader of an army. In pursuit and exploitation there is need for a commander who sees nothing but the necessity of getting ahead; the more he drives his men the more he will save their lives. He must be indifferent to fatigue and ruthless in demanding the last atom of physical energy. All this I well understood, and could explain the matter to myself in spite of my indignation at the act.

I felt that Patton should be saved for service in the great battles still facing us in Europe, yet I had to devise ways and means to minimize the harm that would certainly come from his impulsive action and to assure myself that it would not be repeated.

In these circumstances I sent to Sicily three different individuals in whose judgment, tact, and integrity I placed great confidence. I not only wanted independent reports from several sources, but I wanted to accomplish the whole investigation as rapidly as possible.

As a result I determined to keep Patton. I first wrote him a sharp letter of reprimand in which I informed him that repetition of such an offense would be cause for his instant relief. I informed him, also, that his retention as a commander in my theater would be contingent upon his offering an apology to the two men whom he had insulted. I demanded also that he apologize to all the personnel of the hospital present at the time of the incident. Finally, I required that he appear before the officers and representative groups of enlisted mes of each of his divisions to assure them that he had given way to impulse and respected their positions as fighting soldiers of a democratic nation.

Patton instantly complied and kept in touch with results again through a series of observers and inspectors.

In the meantime, as soon as I had determined upon my course of action, I called in to see me the group of reporters who had brought me the story of the occurrence. I explained to them in detail the action I had taken and the reasons for it. I read them the letter I had written to Patton and extracts from the letter he wrote me in reply. This, so far as I was then concerned, closed the incident.

On one point connected with the matter there has been considerable misapprehension. This was the assumption that censorship was applied. On the contrary, my staff and General Patton were told that under no circumstances was there to be any effort to suppress the story. These specific instructions, which I issued personally to a group of newspaper men, covered "indirect pressure" as well as direct censorship. They were flatly told to use their own judgment!

That they volunarily refused to write or speak about the matter is proved by the fact that two of the press representatives who made a detailed report to me of the affair returned to the United States within a few days after the occurrence. They were then no longer under the direct or indirect influence of Allied Headquarters.

When, months later, the story finally reached Washington via the gossip route, a great public uproar immediately followed its broadcast by a commentator. To play fair with the press men in our own headquarters, my chief of staff decided to hold an informal press conference to supply any details of information that they might lack. My only instructions to him were, "Tell the full truth."

After the incident was all over my old friend George sent me a long letter in which the following appeared: "I am at a loss to find words with which to express my chagrin and grief at having given you, a man to whom I owe everything and for whom I would gladly lay down my life, cause to be displeased with me."

The results of the Sicilian campaign were more far-reaching than the mere capture of the enemy garrison. The bombastic Mussolini was thrown out. Evidence of unrest and dissatisfaction throughout the Italian nation became more and more pronounced and it was obvious that Italy was seeking the easiest way out of the war. Mussolini's place as Premier was taken by old Field Marshal Pietro Badoglio.

The Italian hope of independently negotiating a surrender was slim indeed, because throughout the Italian governmental structure Mussolini had permitted or had been forced to accept the infiltration of countless Germans, all of whom were ready to pounce upon the first sign of defection and to take over the Italian nation in name as well as in fact. But in spite of German watchfulness the Italian government attempted to reach us by sending an agent to Lisbon.

Then began a series of negotiations, secret communications, clandestine journeys by secret agents, and frequent meetings in hidden places that, if encountered in the fictional world, would have been scorned as incredible melodrama.

Brig. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, later the gallant commander of the 101st Airborne Division, had been hurried secretly to Rome, where his personal adventures and those of his companion added another adventurous chapter to the whole thrilling story. The risks he ran were greater than I asked any other agent or emissary to undertake during the war—he carried weighty responsibilities and discharged them with unerring judgment, and every minute was in imminent danger of discovery and death.

These negotiations were still proceeding when, according to plan, Montgomery slipped two divisions across the Strait of Messina one night against no resistance and the Allied invasion of the continent of Europe was an accomplished fact. This was on September 3—a date 10 days later than I had hoped it could be done.

An invasion on a wider front was clearly indicated, and after examination of every spot of the beach from Rome to the toe of the boot, the Bay of Salerno was selected. The greatest disadvantage of this plan was that its logic was obvious to the enemy as well as to us.

The landing and succeeding operations developed almost identically to G-2 predictions. There was a sharp but relatively short fight in getting ashore and with minor exceptions the details of the actual landing proceeded well.

Continued reports and reconnaissance on he 13th furnished the details of the German attack, and that day Air Chief Marshal Tedder was ordered to concentrate the full strength of his Air Force, to include every plane that could fly, in an attack upon sensitive spots in the German formations.

This great air attack was delivered with precision and effectiveness on the morning of the 14th. So badly did it disrupt the enemy's communications, supplies, and mobility that, with the aid of naval gunfire, the ground troops regained the initiative and thereafter German counterattacks were never in sufficient strength to threaten our general position.

Again we decided to gamble, and in this case a tremendous burden of responsibility was assumed by Admiral Cunningham. He unhesitatingly agreed to push his battle fleet directly into Taranto Harbor, discounting the possibility of treachery or destruction by mine fields, in order to carry the British First Airborne Division into the docks at that port.

The operation was carried out as planned on September 9, but with the loss of one fine British cruiser and more than 200 men she was carrying. She was sunk by a mine in the Harbor of Taranto.

With this landing we were ashore on the Italian mainland in three places, Salerno, Taranto and Reggio Calabria.

One of the continuing political problems of World War II was a difference between British and American leaders on the cross-Channel invasion of Europe which was called "Overlord." Prime Minister Churchill never flatly opposed the plan, but it was clear early in the war that he and his advisers would have preferred to postpone it as long as possible in favor of smaller operations around "the underbelly of Europe."

This problem in the major strategy of the war came into sharp focus at the Cairo meeting of the Prime Minister and President Roosevelt. General Eisenhower attended that conference, where he fought for his plan. His own version of the arguments on both sides is presented for the first time in the next installment of "Crusade in Europe," which will be published here tomorrow.

This is a condensed serialization of Dwight D. Eisenhower's "Crusade in Europe." It contains highlights of the book to be published November 22, 1948, by Doubleday & Co.

Tsaldaris Accused Of Creating Crisis

Athens, Nov. 15 (AP).—Constantin Tsaldaris, leader of the Populist Party, was accused tonight of creating the Greek government crisis and trying to pass out cabinet seats like "merchandise."

The charge was made by Sophocles Venizelos, deputy leader of the Liberal Party, who called upon Tsaldaris to quit trying to form a new government so others could take over and speed a solution of the crisis.

Tsaldaris, who heads the country's biggest party, talked again tonight with King Paul on the political situation, but left the palace without making any announcement. There were indications the formation of a new cabinet might involve lengthy negotiations.

Tsaldaris had said earlier he expected to form a cabinet tonight.

Before Tsaldaris went to the palace, the King talked with Stylianos Gonatas, leader of the National Liberals, and Napoleon Zervas, leader of the National Party of Greece.

The monarch reportedly asked them not to insist on three ministries in any cabinet Tsaldaris might form. Their parties have asked for the ministries of war, interior and public order.

Gonatas and Zervas said Tsaldaris has promised their parties the war and public order ministries, but has not given an answer to the interior ministry.

Tsaldaris has said his new cabinet would not include Themistokles Sophoulis, who resigned as Premier Friday.

New Senator

Hendrickson Aim Is Peace, Prosperity

Newark, N. J., Nov. 15 (AP).—Robert C. Hendrickson says he never dreamed he would be a member of the minority party in the United States Senate—he figured the Republicans to win control.

The 50-year-old Hendrickson, State Treasurer since 1942, says his twin objectives as a Senator will be to work for "a lasting peace and genuine prosperity" for the United States.

Hendrickson has stressed support of the United Nations, the Marshall Plan, a defensive alliance of western European nations, international control of atomic energy based on the Baruch plan, gradual reduction of trade barriers, full recognition of Israel, adoption of the original U. N. partition plan for Palestine and a program of military preparedness.

Domestically, Hendrickson calls for a balanced price-wage-profit structure, industrial peace based on the premise that the Labor-Relations Act of 1947 must be adjusted in light of changing condition, and policies to stimulate small business.

Born in Woodbury, N. J., he is a graduate of Temple Law School. He entered public life in 1934 when he was elected to fill an unexpired term as State Senator.

Hendrickson is married, the father of four daughters and a son. Robert C. Hendrickson, jr., is a second class man at the United States Naval Academy.

French Debate Strikes Today

Paris, Nov. 15 (AP).—The French Parliament will debate Tuesday government charges that the Communist International Information Bureau (Cominform) has ordered and helped finance the wave of strikes troubling the Nation.

The Communist aim, the government says, is to try to wreck the American-financed European Recovery Program. The Communists assert they are merely trying to further legitimate demands of workers.

Interior Minister Jules Moch told his own Socialist Party he had proof of Russia's role in the strikes.

The debate will take place in the lower house, the National Assembly, which is returning from a two-month vacation. The newly elected upper house, the Council of the Republic, also will sit.

The upper house is expected to spend most of the week with organizational matters. Friday or Saturday it may get down to electing its president, which will provide followers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle with a chance to show how many seats they control. The De Gaullists claim 132 of the 269 seats.

Relative calm prevailed today on the strike front.

Bank Studies Philippine Loan Request

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development announced yesterday that it has completed the preliminary phase of an inquiry into hydro-electric projects for the island of Luzon which form part of an over-all Philippine development program.

The results of the inquiry thus far indicate that there will be need on Luzon for at least the amount of electric energy which would be produced by completion of two of the projects.

The bank has entered into loan negotiations for an amount up to 15 million dollars to finance foreign exchange costs of the Luzon projects. Before negotiations can be completed, the bank must satisfy itself on such matters as designs and specifications, investment and production cost estimates, and a final market analysis.

How to smile your way through a traffic snarl

Come in—find out how Packard takes the tension out of city driving!

Here's a car that meets all the demands of downtown traffic. And handling ease is only an ever-present part of the story.

What impresses you first, in this sleek, roomy Packard, is the way you can see—the wonderful feeling of always knowing exactly where the front, sides, and rear of your car "are at!" It puts an end to all the old "squeeze plays" . . . whether you're cruising or parking.

Next you'll marvel at the turbine-smooth, trigger-quick responsiveness of Packard power. You simply point to a sudden opening in the traffic jam and—you're through it!

Above all, you'll prize the restful riding ease . . . the sure-footed roadability . . . the husky construction that brings relaxing comfort in any rush-hour snarl.

And when you head this eager, roadworthy Packard down an open highway—!

But come in first for the city story. You'll soon know why the new Packards are the finest ever built!

D. C. Feels Effects Of Dock Strike

By John W. Brigham
Post Reporter

Effects of the East Coast longshoremen's strike are beginning to be felt in Washington.

The tieup in Baltimore and New York is holding up some shipments here of canned California fruit and vegetables, Hawaiian pineapple, Alaska salmon, Italian chestnuts and olive oil, endive from France and Belgium and sardines from Norway.

The State Department is concerned about the holding up of shipment of food enroute to embassies and legations abroad. Foreign diplomats here are worried over much larger shipments of food to their homelands which the strike threatens to delay.

The Potomac Yards in Alexandria, largest rail freight transshipment point in the East, noted a rapidly growing increase over the normal average of 5000 carloads handled daily. Shipments usually handled by boat are being diverted to railroads.

The strike probably will result in higher prices in the District for some canned foods if the walkout lasts long enough to exhaust warehouse stocks, food dealers agreed.

Here are typical comments from firms:

Stephen Gatty & Son, wholesale grocers, 1317 Maine ave sw.: "We have shipments of canned fruits and vegetables from Hawaii and the West Coast and salmon from Alaska, which come by boat to Baltimore, that already have been tied up there a month, due to other difficulties. We had other cargoes rerouted to New York to avoid the trouble in Baltimore, and now our stuff is tied up in both those ports. We're diverting other shipments to railroads where possible. We're expecting the strike to last about 30 days. It looks like the railroads may get overtaxed. This can be serious for us if the strike lasts very long."

J. E. Dyer & Co., wholesale grocers, 3330 M st. nw.: "Some of our customers who were in a hurry for certain items are being inconvenienced. Some of our food imports may be affected if this lasts long. Some food stocks we ship to American embassies and legations abroad for the State Department are being held up."

Another food wholesaler, who preferred to remain anonymous, said:

"First, the West Coast longshoremen's strike fouled us up, now this. We've a big shipment of salmon from Alaska tied up on a boat which can't be unloaded and is just lying in a West Coast port. We may have to bring it across by rail, boosting costs substantially. If the strikes on both coasts were called off today, we'd be two months getting back to normal operations."

A. & P. food stores purchasing department: "We haven't felt the strike yet, but will if it lasts a couple of weeks. It'll cut down stocks of canned fruits, juices and vegetables we get by ship at Baltimore from the West Coast, and may affect prices."

W. Charles Heitmuller Co., wholesale fruits and vegetables, 1310 5th st. ne.: "It hasn't affected us yet, but a long strike would. Italian chestnuts and French and Belgian endive will be cut off."

S. Kann Sons Co. Department Store, traffic department: "It would take a week or more to see whether the strike might affect us. We don't import much foreign merchandise. Christmas imports already are in the warehouses."

Hecht Co. Department Store: "Don't think we'd feel it for several weeks. Pottery from Italy, the West Coast and the Orient might be held up."

National Trucking & Storage Co., 1435 New York ave. ne.: "We have orders to haul a lot of canned foods now tied up aboard ships in Baltimore and New York, but we have plenty of other work to keep us busy."

Pay Increase Averts Bus Strike in West

San Francisco, No. 15 (AP).—A 10 to 14 per cent wage increase averted a strike today of Pacific Greyhound bus drivers and station attendants in seven Western States.

Some 3400 workers will be asked to ratify the pact in a mail referendum that will take 20 days to complete.

Tobin Pledges AFL Strong Labor Dept.

Cincinnati, Nov. 15 (AP).—Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin promised the American Federation of Labor today to help build a vigorous, expanded Labor Department. That, he said, would undo the work of what he called "the whiffenpoof Eightieth Congress."

Tobin told the AFL's Sixty-seventh Annual Convention the November 2 elections went against a Congress "that believed it could fly backwards in order to keep the winds of progress out of its eyes."

He said welfare of the Nation's wage earners required a strong Labor Department. Appropriation slashes by the last Congress reduced the department's size and scope.

Tobin promised to get back the United States Employment Service, which he said was "kidnaped from the Labor Department," and return the United States Conciliation Service to the department. It had operated there for 34 years before the Taft-Hartley Act made it an independent agency in 1947.

The Secretary of Labor told 650 delegates to the convention that "we're not going to be drunk with power, as were the leaders of the Eightieth Congress."

But he said he would work to carry out pledges of the Democratic Party and of President Truman when the Eighty-first Congress convenes.

AFL President William Green, striking the keynote for the 10-day convention, said organized labor, which had sought defeat of Taft-Hartley Act supporters in past elections, now should concentrate on turning out members of Congress "who refuse to vote for repeal" of that act.

The AFL's policy-making executive council has voted for immediate repeal of the law and restoration of the old Wagner Labor Relations Act, from which to build a new statute.

Green said the federation also should work for repeal of two other laws directed at labor activities and enacted by the Eightieth Congress. They are the Hobbs bill directed at "racketeering," but affecting jurisdictional lines of the AFL Teamsters, and the Lea Act aimed at restricting control of the recording industry by James C. Petrillo.

"These are just as destructive in their fields as the Taft-Hartley Act," Green declared.

The Secretary of Labor remained in Cincinnati overnight to confer with AFL leaders on details of their legislative and administrative proposals before leaving for Portland, Oreg., where the CIO convenes next week.

CIO Conclave Interrupted By Outburst

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 15 (AP).—A convention of CIO Department Store Workers broke up for a half hour today in a shouting, table-pounding battle of delegates.

Led by a group of New York unionists, a bloc of delegates threw the convention into confusion by demanding that the meeting give priority to a "secession" of 30,000 members.

Sergeants at arms helped restore order.

President Samuel Wolchok had told the delegates that the union does not recognize the "secession" of New York, St. Louis and Toledo locals. The units had charged that the convention was "packed."

CIO President Philip Murray was asked to send an observer to the meeting to refute the charges. However, he said he could not spare one because of the CIO convention in Portland, Oreg.

Earlier the union revealed plans for an organizing drive in Canada and the southern United States.

however, what course would be taken.

The day brought these other developments:

New England's parcel post for overseas was halted. Today was the deadline for Christmas delivery. One postoffice official said more than 10,000 Christmas packages already had piled up in Boston. Many were addressed to members of the armed forces and civilians stationed abroad.

The railroads extended their export freight embargo to Port Newark, N. J., and Portland, Me. The embargo already embraced New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Wilmington, Del., and Hampton Roads, Va.

This country's largest liner, the America, was scheduled to sail for Europe tomorrow but its voyage was canceled because of the strike.

Fairfax Police Check Mystery

An object which looked like a human hand, brought home by a dog, provided a mystery yesterday for Fairfax County police.

Mrs. Stanley R. Rowland of Leesburg pike, West Falls Church, said she took the five-fingered object from her dog, Aeve.

Dr. Nelson Pedolnich, Fairfax County coroner, took one look and said it was a human hand. Then he took another look at what should have been the thumb, thought it looked more like another finger, and said it wasn't a hand, after all.

Police, not quite sure whether they had an animal's paw or a clew to a mystery, wrapped the object in a thick layer of newspapers to take it to FBI laboratories to find out exactly what it is.

High Court Upholds Portal Pay Refusal

By The Associated Press

The Supreme Court decided in effect yesterday that Congress acted legally when it voided workers' claims for some six billion dollars in retroactive "portal-to-portal" pay.

Portal-to-portal pay means pay for traveling from a factory gate to the actual place of work, and for washing up, sharpening tools, etc. Claims for such pay were restricted sharply by Congress when it passed the portal-to-portal act.

The Supreme Court refused to review the dismissal, by the U. S. District Court at Baltimore, of back pay claims filed by 13 employes of B. H. Hubbert & Son, Inc., prior to passage of the act.

In another labor action, the court refused to rule, at least at present, on validity of an injunction issued last May by District Court Judge T. Alan Goldsborough against a threatened nation-wide strike of railroad workers. A routine appeal is still pending before the U. S. Court of Appeals here.

The Baltimore court threw out the portal-to-portal suit when the company contended that the new law, signed May 14, 1947, retroactively canceled such claims. Its action was upheld by the United States Circuit Court at Richmond.

The high court dismissed the workers' appeal without comment yesterday. It was the tribunal's first action on the validity of any portion of the Portal-to-Portal Act.

The Maryland workers filed their claim after the Supreme Court issued its famous Mount Clemens (Mich.) Pottery Co. ruling.

In that case the court held that the 1938 Fair Labor Standards Act entitled workers to pay for the time they spent getting to and from the actual site of their jobs and in preparing for work, provided the time thus spent was substantial.

A huge volume of back pay claims was filed all over the country in the wake of the decision, and Congress then acted to outlaw such suits.

The court has deferred action on several other portal-to-portal cases, which are based almost wholly on contentions that the entire law is unconstitutional. The major part of the act, however, deals with retroactive pay claims.

In general, the act barred existing and future claims for portal-to-portal pay unless they are covered by employer-worker contracts or are valid because of tradition or practice.

In the railroad strike case, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen and the Switchmen's Union of North America contended that the injunction against them—secured by the Justice Department on orders of President Truman—violated the Railway Labor Act.

Social Insurance

Lewis Urges Relief Plan Bargaining

John L. Lewis said yesterday the cost of social insurance covering workers should be part of the selling price of the product they make—not paid for out of Federal tax money.

This seeming disagreement with the theory behind the Federal Social Security program appeared in the interview published yesterday and copyrighted by the United States News and World Report, weekly news magazine.

Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers Union, said the notion that the Government should pay pension, sickness and health insurance benefits for workers generally is contrary to the free enterprise tradition.

Instead, Lewis said, workers and employers should negotiate plans like the one his union has bargained out in the coal industry. He said coal prices to consumers have been increased to permit payment of a 20-cent royalty on every ton of coal produced for financing $100 a month pensions as well as death, health, disability and other benefits for miners.

"We hold that the proper care of the human element in the mining industry or any other major industry should properly be charged to the cost of production and not assessed against the taxpayers as a whole," Lewis said.

"To the degree, we think it's a step in the direction of free government. It's contrary to the concept that the Government should do everything for its citizens."

Lewis was asked specifically whether his plan would replace the present Social Security plan. One of the campaign pledges of President Truman was to expand Federal Social Security insurance, both in amounts of benefits and the number of employes covered.

"Let me make no suggestions about social security as such," Lewis replied, "except that it is totally inadequate to meet the problems of an incapacitated man in an industry. The United Mine Workers of America pension is superimposed on social security."

Lewis dropped what may be an indication that he might avoid asking for a further increase in the 20-cent royalty next spring. He said, "It is going to require some years of experience before we can say definitely" what the miners' health and welfare program will cost.

But just as an industry sets aside funds to replace deterioration plant facilities, so does the worker have a "right to expect that after years of active service there will be something that will carry him through the normal years of his existence," Lewis said.

Taft May Get Leadership in Liberal Split

Sharp differences within the Senate's GOP liberal wing over "who is a liberal?" may land Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) back in his old Senate leadership post.

Latest "liberal wing" split developed yesterday over the suggested candidacy of Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.), for the place.

Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.) indirectly put Knowland's name in the running by telling newsmen he had heard it mentioned.

But another member of the so-called liberal bloc turned thumbs down on Knowland, saying he was "to the right of Taft."

Similar differences are known to exist on the possible compromise candidacies of Senators Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.), Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (R., Mass.), and Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.).

Taft left for Europe shortly after the election and has not disclosed publicly whether he will seek either his old steering committee post or the Republican floor leadership.

Murder Charged To Rockville Man

A murder charge was placed against Lewis Watkins, 48, Rockville, yesterday following the death from gunshot wounds at Suburban Hospital of William George Diggs, 44, of Buckeystown.

Police said the shooting took place at a party on Saturday night at Watkins' house. Watkins was booked earlier on a charge of assault with attempt to kill.

U. S. Experts Called To Paris From Mideast

The State Department said last night that James McDonald, special American representative in Israel, and Stanton Griffis, United States Ambassador to Egypt, will go to Paris for consultations on the Near East refugee problem.

A department spokesman said both men had made long studies of the problem and would pass their information to the United States delegation at the refugee conference of the United Nations in Paris.

The spokesman said the visit to Paris by McDonald and Griffis does not indicate any change in policy toward Israel.

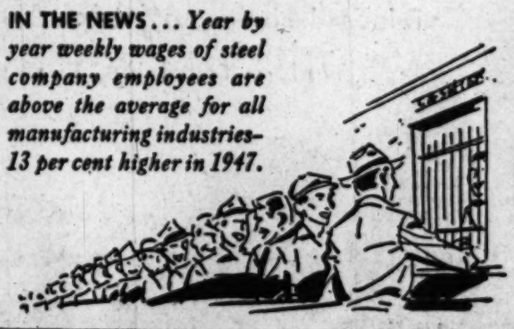
"No Critter ever made Them Tracks"
(Today's Covered Wagons roll on Rails of Steel)
Across America the hoofprints of plodding oxen have long since given way to rails of steel. Today this vast, steel-shod network amounts to 398,000 miles of track.
To withstand the terrific pounding of modern trains, rails must be strong and safe. Today's rails average 15 years of main line service, and many additional years of service on secondary lines.
By improving their technology steel companies have produced better steel rails at lower cost. Their price is now only one-third the price of the first rails produced in America.
In railroad steel, as in other steel products, the industry is setting new production records this year. Railroads are getting a third more steel than they used before the war.
Supplying this steel for rail transportation, the steel companies make possible:
For You – quick, safe service;
For Steel Workers—jobs and good wages;
For Everyone – better living.
IN THE NEWS... Year by year weekly wages of steel company employees are above the average for all manufacturing industries—13 per cent higher in 1947.


IN THE NEWS... From 1939 to 1949, American steel mills will have added 15,000,000 tons to productive capacity. That increase alone is nearly 1,000,000 tons greater than total British production of steel in 1947.

New Housing Laws Opposed by Builder

Further legislation controlling rents and new construction would have "a disastrous effect" on the record-breaking homebuilding program now under way in America, Milton J. Brook, president of the National Association of Home Builders said yesterday.

"We are very definitely opposed to slum clearance and public housing legislation and believe it is contrary to the free enterprise system," he said.

Brook termed such measures as the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill" a socialistic program."

He predicted that new home construction, at the current rate of about one million houses a year will satisfy demand within three to five years.

Negro Housing Purchase by Tenants Due

Two Arlington Federal housing developments for Negroes are scheduled to be sold to tenants this week if the Government gives its final sanction.

Projects are the George Washington Carver and the Paul L. Dunbar Homes. In each of the developments, tenant cooperatives have been formed to make the purchase.

Sale will involve 86 family units in 15 buildings at Dunbar Homes on Seminary rd., and 44 units in eight buildings at Carver, 13th and S. Queen sts.

Roughly 650 residents of the two developments will be affected by the sale. Not affected are residents of 100 temporary units at Carver not being offered.

The Public Housing Administration, which operates the homes, yesterday declined to reveal the price offered by the cooperatives.

However, a PHA spokesman said that the Government's asking price "had been met." Both developments were built in 1944, Dunbar at a cost of $551,900, and Carver $240,200.

Casts Indicate High Order Of 'Ape Men'

Casts of fossilized bones of what once may have been a weapon-wielding, fire-making pigmy (ape-man" have been added to anthropological collections of the Smithsonian Institution here.

The fossils were discovered last year in deposit of an ancient Transvaal, South Africa, cave and were described for the first time last month in the American Journal of Physical Anthropology.

They were discovered by Prof. Raymond A. Dart, University of Witwatersrand, Johannesburg, who had the casts made for Dr. T. Dale Stewart, Smithsonian curator of physical anthropology and editor of the journal.

Original possessor of the bones, anthropologists said, was a creature that walked erect, weighed from 80 to 100 pounds, had a brain capacity comparable to the largest known gorillas and showed humanlike physical traits. Whether to call them "men-apes" or "ape-men" is debatable, they said.

Evidence of the findings, they said, showed that the creatures killed other animals with clubs, and probably cooked the kill over fires in their cave quarters.

FCC to Check On Newscasts Of 3 Stations

By The Associated Press

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday announced it will hold public hearings on the manner in which news broadcasts have been handled by three large radio stations controlled by G. A. Richards of Los Angeles, Calif.

Richards is controlling stockholder of KMPC, Los Angeles; WGAR, Cleveland, and WJR, Detroit.

The Radio News Club of Los Angeles, composed of radio station employes there, filed a formal complaint with FCC last February alleging that Richards had instructed his staff that news concerning specified individuals, groups and events "should be slanted, distorted, suppressed, altered or otherwise treated in a fashion specified by Richards in order to promote his private views and interests" in the political, social and economic fields.

Frank E. Mullen last night issued a statement saying he is president of the three companies, and expressing confidence that at the hearing "these charges will be shown to be without foundation."

Study Is Set On Dilemma Of Hospital

Officials from the City of Alexandria, Fairfax County and the Alexandria Hospital will meet tonight to try to find means of helping the bankrupt hospital which has announced it must close January 31 unless it gets more funds.

Scheduled to attend tonight's closed session in Alexandria's City Council Hospital Committee; representatives from the Hospital Corp., the hospital's board of directors and medical staff; Fairfax County Supervisor Arthur I. Shaffer, Alexandria City Attorney Joseph M. Pancoast, and Alexandria City Manager Nicholas A. Colasanto.

Chairman R. Samuel Luckett of the council's hospital committee said the purpose of the meeting will be to discuss the problem and to agree on a recommendation that his committee will make to the city council on the hospital's request for $110,000 in city funds next year.

Officials of Fairfax County, which sends many patients to the hospital, were invited so it could be learned if Fairfax might join in aiding the hospital, Luckett said.

Police said Mrs. Daniel shot herself at her home with a .45-caliber pistol after leaving a note saying she was despondent and in poor health. Her body was found in the basement by her husband.

Peru Reportedly Cuts Link With Chile Port

Santiago, Chile, Nov. 15 (U.P.)—The newspaper El Mercurio reported today that Peru has virtually closed her southern border, banning all commerce between the Peruvian city of Tacna and the nearby Chilean port of Arica.

The foreign office said no formal notice of the Peruvian action had been received here. Unofficial sources commented that the trade ban might be the result of renewed political disorders in Peru, scene last month of a right-wing revolution.

How increased use of petroleum affects our proved reserves

Despite record use, America's proved oil reserves grew 29½ billion gallons last year. New wells, fields, and production methods keep adding to our future supply.

Keeps going higher:

That we're "running out of oil" has been a persistent myth. In 1922, authorities said that less than 9 billion barrels were left, yet oil men have produced 30 billion since! Today, proved reserves are 24½ billion barrels . . . over a thousand billion gallons in the ground.

A matter of versatility:

Shell now makes over 1000 different products from petroleum. Petroleum and its gases furnish nearly as much of America's "energy" as all other sources combined. It's a big job and the increased demand spurs the hunt for more oil.

They look everywhere:

Shell has found new oil fields in deserts, swamps, and mountains. Wells go down over 3 miles to look for oil. More efficient production methods recover petroleum once left in the ground—while research into new sources—shale and coal—promises further extension of resources.

Today, tomorrow and tomorrow:

Such efforts assure future oil—for next year, 50 years from now, or as long as we need it. The petroleum industry sees a dual responsibility: To fill today's unprecedented consumer demands . . . and increase our fund of "oil in the bank," for tomorrow.

Who Misled Whom?

Let's establish at once, for the sake of the multitude of postelection writers of letters to the editor, that the business of a newspaper is to report facts in its news columns and express opinions in its editorials. Insofar as there was editorializing in news columns, and there was during the campaign, we think the press was at fault. But this does not extend to the fact that Mr. Truman received more column-inches of news publicity than Mr. Dewey. The President earned that, both because of his tenancy of the White House and because of the kind of campaign he waged. Again, where reporting of facts gave way to subjective predictions of news to come, where there was a guessing at the news to heat the competition, as it did on occasion, the press was again remiss. And it will be still more so if it does not take steps to correct that fault in the future by getting back to straight reporting of facts and analysis based only on facts.

But what were the facts, or the sources of fact, available to newspapers in analyzing the effect of the election campaign? First, of course, was the "man in the street." Reporters could and should have done more legwork among ordinary people. But the result of such a random poll of political opinion would probably not have been more accurate than the regular polls and might easily have been still further off the track. Or the reporters could have (and did) inquire of the local and State political leaders—the men and women who are supposed to know better than anyone else the temper of voters in their precinct or district. Few, if any, of these, including the Democrats, had not conceded victory to the Republicans.

That leaves the polls. The failure of the pollsters this time does not, to us at any rate, prove them totally unreliable, though election polls may be objectionable on other grounds. The pollsters themselves are fully conscious of missing the boat and are looking for the causes of their error—some of which are not too hard to see. The chief fault, we think, is that they forgot, in overconfidence of their methods, that it is not the business of a public opinion poll to predict public action at a later date.

Bundle From Britain

We forget just why the Department of State objected to the presence in this country of the Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury. Whatever the objection was, it was presently withdrawn, and the dean, with a properly visaed visitor's passport in his pocket, is now in New York, and had no sooner arrived there than he began to utter mouthfuls of unconscionable nonsense.

He said that his purpose in coming here is to preach the desirability of understanding, peace and good will between the peoples on this side of the iron curtain and those on the other side. Of course the good dean did not use the phrase "iron curtain," which in the lexicon of fellow travelers has connotations of blasphemy. He referred instead to "East" and "West" and how their concepts should be complementary rather than antagonistic, and that if we only knew what kindly and delightful folk the Russians really are, the peace of the world would be assured.

Dr. Johnson, to be sure, did not propose in so many words that Americans should spend their vacations walking or bicycling from Pinsk to Vladivostok, putting up on the way at the various collective farms and communal housing projects. Neither did he propose that Russians be encouraged to come over here more frequently for the Bach Music Festivals or the Rose Bowl football games, the Maryland racing season or the New Orleans Mardi Gras or the Winchester Apple Blossom coronation. But he certainly spoke as if such things were altogether feasible.

The dean said he was pretty sure that the Russians now possess atomic weapons, but this, of course, was merely incidental to their main interest in atomic energy, which is to utilize it for the purpose of raising living standards. Therefore, since Americans profess to favor high living standards, what reasonable objection can there be to an honest pooling of atomic information?

It is not for us to judge the Very Rev. Dean's sincerity in spouting this precious rubbish. But if he manages to find any considerable number of Americans who are prepared to swallow it, we fear that the game is lost and that nothing remains save to ask Comrade Foster and his friends to take over at their own convenience. No conceivable advantage in the way of superior weapons or superior institutions could have any value to a people gone utterly daft. Happily, the recent history of the Red Dean's American counterpart, Mr. Henry Wallace, shows that this is not yet the case.

Appointments

The surpassing importance of some of the prospective appointments justifies the expressed interest of press and public in the problem of what shifts in personnel will be made by President Truman. We have in mind three changes which are more or less imminent. One of them is the Secretaryship of Defense, which office Mr. Forrestal says he will lay down before the end of the new Administration. Secretary Marshall is even vaguer, perhaps because his influence in the Paris meetings might be modified if the delegates got the impression that he was soon going to quit; but the impression is that the President is in quest of a new Secretary of State. Undersecretary Lovett has never made any secret of his intention at an early date to go back to private life. These are three positions which call for cool and objective judgment and prayerful consideration in the filling. They are key posts in the ship of state, upon the steadfast guidance of which in the four years to come the peace of this Nation and the world may largely depend.

In these circumstances some of the nominations or predictions that are being bandied about seem quite frivolous. The yardstick used is For-Truman-Before-Philadelphia or party service—a yardstick that would be utterly irresponsible. The President did not think in these terms when he put in Secretary Marshall. He gave the impression that he had sought, and was quite satisfied he had obtained, the outstanding man of his generation. It was in this and similar language that he sent the Marshall nomination to Congress. He likewise used a criterion of experience and knowledgeability when he made Mr. Forrestal the first Secretary of Defense. It is inconceivable to us that the President has ceased to be animated by these considerations.

Yet we read that he is thinking of Mr. Louis Johnson as successor to Secretary Forrestal. No doubt Mr. Johnson was For-Truman-Before-Philadelphia, that he played a key role in getting anything like a campaign chest together, that rewards are inseparable from the American political system. But these factors at this crisis in the national life should have nothing to do with the great and significant office of Secretary of Defense. We mention Mr. Johnson not invidiously, but as the talked-of example of a nominee who, whatever else his gifts, has nothing to offer commensurate with the importance of the post to which in some quarters he has already been assigned. Here is an office that calls for a civilian mind and outstanding toughness and that breadth of view and imagination which is known as statesmanship. It is just as important as the Secretaryship of State, and precisely the same qualities are necessary for this office, too. As Secretary Marshall's successor half a dozen names are given more or less equal weight, and there is probably more reason here to be venturesome, for at the State Department there is a cake of custom which needs to be thawed through. Defense is a new department, State old and traditional, and, as to State, the recurring comment of visitors is that no department appears to be more removed from American life and the American people. As for the Undersecretary's job, this is one of making a team of the department in carrying out executive policies, not in managing a collection of individuals, united only in their brilliance and individualism.

Most of the comment on the appointments takes it for granted that in these respects Mr. Truman will yield to the claims of the party men. But there are plenty of rewards for the party men elsewhere. Victory would have gone to Mr. Truman's head if he were to allow his historic opportunities for service to be frittered away by spoilsmanship. He would have lost his sense of mission in the cause of world peace and world stability if he assumed, in addition to the burden of his august and Atlaslike office, the burden of lieutenants unable to wear the Nation's shoes. The President needs help, not hindrance. He would risk failure in the assignments he has closest to his heart if he stopped trying to find the right man for the right job. He would be derelict in his duty as President—President of not only the 23 million Americans who voted for him, but of the 23 million who voted for others, and the 50 million who voted for nobody. It is incredible that a man who brought with him to the White House high standards for office-bearing should be thinking in the narrow groove of some of the commentators.

Witch Hunting Vs. Facts

Headline hunting, smears and witch hunts will be avoided by the Senate's so-called "watchdog" committee, according to its prospective chairmen, Senator McClellan, in favor of fair, honest and factual inquiries. That is a most encouraging pledge. It does not necessarily mean any sharp deviation from the procedure this committee has followed in the past. Under Senator (now President) Truman it won a good reputation, and after the fiasco starring Howard Hughes it again returned to careful procedures under Senator Ferguson. However, the very fact that a Senator feels called upon to announce that a committee about to come under his leadership will accord citizens fair treatment underlines the need for a code of fair procedure to which all investigating committees would be required to conform.

The indefensible fact about the present situation is that the procedure followed is left largely to the discretion of the investigating committee chairman. If he is a fair-minded and conscientious legislator, the type of hearings held will usually reflect that fact. But if he is a demagogue seeking to build a name for himself by maligning other people, he is likely to stoop to the exploitation of rumors, half-truths and concealment of facts to gain his ends. And there is nothing in the rules of either House of Congress to prevent that sort of debasement of the investigative process, as the case of Dr. Condon testifies. Incidentally, Dr. Condon, who was maligned eight and a half months ago by the House Committee on Un-American Activities and is still waiting for the hearing he requested, favors reform of the committee's procedures rather than its abolition.

In a series of editorials last winter The Washington Post suggested that Congress enact a code of fair procedure that would keep all its investigations within regular standing committees, require the naming of disinterested chairmen, confine investigations to matters of public as distinguished from partisan interests, keep investigations in the open so far as possible, provide for expert staff work to avoid airing of flimsy charges, assure to witnesses the right of defending their reputations, permit counsel to be present, allow contempt citations only by majority vote of the House or Senate and permit no contempt citations for refusal to answer questions as to the witness' religious or political beliefs. Conscientious adherence to such rules would probably eliminate most of the abuses now growing out of congressional inquiries. Whatever might be lost in the way of flexibility of procedure would be more than gained by public confidence in and respect for the findings and recommendations of investigators.

We cannot help thinking that the new Democratic majorities in the Senate and House will make a serious mistake if they rely upon each separate committee to square its own methods with democratic procedure. An over-all pattern of right conduct is needed, and that pattern can be provided only by Congress itself.

Civil Defense

From the world's brief experience with atomic war, nothing is more apparent than that the war front and the home front are now synonymous. If atomic attack ever comes to the United States, it will be cities and the civilian population as much as military installations that will constitute the targets. If it is also true that there is no real defense against atomic attack once it has been launched, then it is imperative that intensive preparations be made for coping with the effects of atomic devastation on the American homeland. More now than ever before, civil defense is a vital and almost coequal ingredient with military planning in all defense strategy.

Precisely because it is the efficiency of the civil defense organization that may determine whether this country can withstand atomic war, it is important that no time be lost in formulating the outlines for such an organization. That is the purpose of a new and admirably thorough study, Civil Defense for National Security, prepared at the behest of Secretary Forrestal by a small group of civilian experts under the chairmanship of Russell J. Hopley, president of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. This group has evaluated civil defense operations in other countries and has come forward with a detailed blueprint for national, State and local organization. Public comment will, of course, be necessary before the plans can be adapted to individual localities, but all the basic framework is there.

The report scrupulously avoids the "morale" aspects and other frills that gave the wartime Office of Civilian Defense a bad name. It provides sensibly for decentralized responsibility. A small permanent national organization is suggested primarily as a training and coordinating center, with the details of organization left to State Governors and community officials. The blueprints call for the functions ordinarily thought of as a part of civil defense—warning services, evacuation and rescue services, fire and police protection, as well as special medical preparations and training to meet radiological and chemical attack, the safeguarding of power and water supplies, waste disposal and the like. Self-help is the first step in civil defense, then mutual aid between localities, with mobile support units organized on a larger, flexible basis.

Secrecy has prevented the authors from including methods of combating biological warfare. This seems to us a stupid invocation of "security." If this kind of attack is a genuine threat, there is nothing more important than to prepare for it and inform the people about it so that rumors may be dispelled and hysteria and panic prevented. Another disturbing aspect of the plan is the use to which it is already being put in Washington as justification for Major Barrett's civilian police reserve. The idea behind the reserve is good—but as a genuine emergency force and not as a mere auxiliary to the police, to be used for such events as the presidential inauguration when help from other sources is readily available. The flaw here is with the interpretation rather than with the basic plan itself, but defense officials will have to watch closely to see that the concept is not distorted. We want no half-trained, armed vigilantes pushing people around or snooping in affairs that are not their concern.

The premium, then, is on the kind of personnel recruited and the kind of training they receive. The plan envisions a corps of 500,000 peacetime workers expandable to 15 million in case of war. Doubtless a core for such organization exists in the persons who loyally gave their time as air raid wardens during the war. Veterans who for one reason or another are not included in the military reserves can be counted on for help. The important points are, first, to make sure that the training is geared to what is likely to be the actual need—something that was difficult during the war because of the remoteness of the conflict—and second, to impress upon the workers the great responsibility they bear toward their fellow citizens. In other words, civil defense is a serious business and must be treated accordingly from the initial stage onward.

Toynbee's Alternatives

Arnold Toynbee in his essay, The International Outlook, shows that neither any line of demarkation between the Russian and American zones of influence nor the creation of a united Europe can protect us in the long run. His diagnosis of the situation is that the question is not whether the world is going to be unified in the near future, but in which way this unification will come about, peacefully as a cooperative (federal) world government or as the world empire of the victor in a third world war.

Our policy, the policy of "containment," may be correct as a temporary expedient; but it does not square with the real problem. For even if we succeeded in making Russia submit to our will—which is extremely doubtful—we would not know what to ask for, except some new demarkation of power zones.

If we accept, however, the fact that the alternatives are such as outlined by Toynbee, it appears that practically only one way is left to us and that we should, therefore, earnestly prepare for that way.

All of us should give more thought to the details of the structure of world government. In doing so, many people will find that their objections to world government concern in reality only such features of it as can be avoided. The Russians are vehemently opposed to world government because they consider it as a device to extend Western power by outvoting Russia and its followers. We cannot hope to overcome that distrust unless we are able to present a draft of a world charter which makes it impossible for any group of nations to use the world organization as an instrument for national interests. So far no such draft has been produced nor has a fair answer to the voting problem been found.

The Chicago Committee to Frame a World Constitution is to be highly commended for its effort, but its draft is not acceptable for the Western countries because it gives too much voting power to the Asiatic masses.

The technical problems of world government are new and complex. They require study and discussion by various groups of scientists and lawyers. Funds should be made available for this purpose by the Government.

Labor In The Election

It is to the advantage of labor professionals to try to make the public and the members of Congress believe that organized labor whipped the Republicans. Only as long as that belief prevails can they hope to get their special privileges restored by legislation, such as repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act.

I do not underestimate the political organizing power of the labor unions, and I do not say that, in some individual cases they did not determine the issue. I do say that we should not be stampeded by the labor unions' own estimate of their political power and I do say that it was the loss of the farm vote, which the Republicans counted on, that beat them.

In the face of the most strenuous political campaign in the history of organized labor, the Republicans won the industrial and semi-industrial States of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut, Michigan and Indiana. In the Midwest farm States, however, where the country is normally Republican, what happened? Consider Iowa, and the farm counties of such States as Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois. Those farm areas not only failed to produce the normal Republican majorities to offset the big city votes; in dozens of normally Republican farm counties the Democrats got majorities.

One of the ironies of the election is that the switch of the farm vote won for the Democrats the victory which organized labor is set to exploit.

Wages And Prices

In J. A. Livingston's column appearing on November 7, a chart is presented to show the relation between average weekly wages and wholesale prices for the past 25 years.

The indication to the casual reader is that prices have outpaced wages by a considerable margin. However, a careful examination of the chart, which is based on Department of Labor data, shows that in the past 10 years weekly wages have increased approximately 115 per cent while wholesale prices have risen about 105 per cent. In 25 years wages have increased about 120 per cent, wholesale prices approximately 75 per cent. The trouble with the chart is that the scales employed for wages and prices, respectively, are entirely unrelated; consequently an incorrect impression is derived from it.

The undersigned is a regular reader of Mr. Livingston's column. He was disappointed to see the above important data presented in an unreliable way.

White House Repairs

Is it not possible that there is a misplaced decimal point in the estimated cost of repairing the second floor of the White House, as you have quoted it in the November 7 article and the November 10 editorial? "Seven hundred and fifty thousand to one million, two hundred and fifty thousand dollars" is a fantastic sum merely to "renovate and fireproof the second floor." Surely one could build the entire structure from scratch for that and make a whacking profit besides, even if the joists were of gold and the fixtures of platinum.

I have heard that in England any service performed for the royal family costs much more than if furnished to commoners. This is an example a republic would do well not to emulate.

There is obviously something in all this that I as a layman and taxpayer do not understand. Surely a published explanation of the nature of the repairs and an analysis if the expected costs is overdue.

Religious Equality

Shortly after our occupation forces entered Japan, under General MacArthur, Shintoism was banned as a "state religion," thereby giving Catholics, Protestants and every other belief equal footing in the scheme of things. Peace is just as simple as that: giving every religion respect and an equal chance politically.

No wonder atheists look with suspicion upon religion when they see its leaders fighting for political preference, virtually excluding all others. Peace will come quickly when such conditions cease. Good and bad exists in all religious beliefs and people are capable of making their choice.

Why The Farmers Went Democratic

I want to give you the reason which caused the rural people to reverse their traditional attitudes in the election. As a rural pastor, I know what they think and the following are the people's views, not mine, as I am a Republican in politics:

1. The Old-Age Pension Group: As science increases the number of this group, it must be reckoned with more and more. This group and their relatives who would have to support them in the event that pensions would be lowered honestly believed that under a Republican Administration their pension would be decreased at least 25 per cent.

2. Oleo—The income derived from cream makes the difference between a bank account or none. The farmers believed that the Republican Congress shelved the question because of the election, but that immediately would lower the oleo tax at the first opportunity and thereby cause them a great deal of hardship.

3. Vinson case: They believe the President was right and that interests desiring war hindered him. They point to the stiff-necked attitude of our regular diplomats in their efforts to make peace.

4. The Taft-Hartley law: They say the law is okay, but in actual practice only those provisions against labor were enforced. A few Avery cases dramatized would have won them over.

5. Candidates: Governor Dewey insisted upon talking on a nonexistent issue. They say, "We are a united people. No one has taken up arms against our Government." Dewey has nothing to offer and therefore harps upon "unity." President Truman gave his views on all issues. They preferred to vote for a man who was not afraid to speak his mind, rather than for one who kept silent.

6. Governor Dewey's platform: When, toward the end of the campaign, Governor Dewey mentioned old age pensions, etc., a farmer friend of mine, who had always voted Republican and was listening to the radio with me, said, "That's a speech of desperation. He doesn't sound sincere to me. I'm changing this time and will vote for President Truman."

7. Communism: Right or wrong they do not believe in the sincerity of the Republican Party on this issue. Their attitude is as follows: Why are they making such a fuss about Reds here in our country where they are a neglible factor and allow General MacArthur to put a policy in effect in Japan which allowed the Communist Party there to grow in numbers and in influence?

8. Price support: The average rural citizen honestly believes that the Republican Party would do away with governmental support of farm products, thereby decreasing their income and by refusal to control the price of food, clothing and other essential commodities cause them eventually to go bankrupt, lose their farms and undergo the hardships again that followed the 1929 crash.

The above are the reasons why the rural people of our country did not overcome the large city votes in the past election. They split and because of it enough rural votes went to President Truman to win the Midwest. It is my humble belief that the outspoken Senator Taft would have had a solid rural vote. The Republicans had lost the city vote anway. Taft and Stassen would have won easily.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Republican Holdovers

SINCE the revolt of November 2, a great deal has been written about the Republicans who are not coming back to Washington. But nothing has been said about those who will return, like Mary's little lamb, bringing their records behind them.

This is not the old guard. In the Senate, particularly, those who will be coming back—chiefly because they were fortunate enough not to have been up for reelection—were swept in by the Republican high tide of 1946.

The voters in '46 were dissatisfied with a number of things. They decided it was time for a change and they returned a Republican Congress, but the incoming Republicans, or far too many of them, took this as a mandate to turn the clock back to the William McKinley era.

That was not at all what a majority of the voters had in mind. The Republican diehards carried in on the '46 tide were a greater handicap to Governor Dewey, in my opinion, than the old guard. They seemed determined to prove in the Eightieth Congress that the GOP had forgotten nothing and learned nothing.

The lesson was especially pointed in the West. A new crop of Senators came in from Nevada, Utah, Washington, Montana and they promptly proceeded to vote against all the things dear to the West.

New Republicans such as Senators Harry P. Cain of Washington and Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin fought public housing. They represented not the people, but the housing and real estate lobbies.

By comparison, Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, the majority leader, appeared to be a flaming liberal. Taft fought hard for his housing bill and got it through the Senate in spite of the obstructionist tactics of the younger Republicans. It was blocked in the House by strategists for the lobbies that were determined it should not pass.

THE MOST conspicuous example in the group of Republican 2-year-olds is Senator George W. Malone of Nevada. Malone's record is not only completely reactionary on the domestic side, but on foreign policy he showed himself an old-fashioned isolationist. He voted to cut down the European recovery apropriation and he was against extending the reciprocal trade agreements except for one year.

In the same class is another of the 1946 crop—Senator James Kem of Missouri. Kem's record and his point of view are early Silurian. By his standards Dewey was a dangerous radical.

The record of Senator Zales N. Ecton of Montana is nearly as bad. So is that of Senator William E. Jenner of Indiana, who was elected for a short term, in 1944 and returned in 1946. Judged by the outcome on November 2, Senator Arthur W. Watkins of Utah was for the most part voting against the interests of the majority in his region and in the Nation.

Quite understandably the voters took these men as a sample of what Republicanism might mean if applied across the board. When President Truman hammered away at the record of the Eightieth Congress he did so against the background of the votes, not of the old guard but of the newcomers supposedly representing the best and bravest in the party.

THE SAD THING is that at least one newcomer, whose record is excellent on both the domestic and foreign policy, went down under the weight of his party. That is Senator John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky. Truman carried Kentucky by a plurality of 123,328, compared to 84,000 for Roosevelt in 1944, while Cooper lost to Virgil Chapman by only 21,285.

It is hard to see, by hindsight, what Dewey might have done to overcome this handicap. As the bandwagon psychology grew, oddly assorted characters jumped on for the victory ride—men such as William C. Bullitt and Jesse Jones, who seemed to represent nothing but the past and a vindictivement toward everyone connected with the past. In retrospect, the handicap appears to have been an old man of the sea which would have bowed down a far more vigorous and forthright presidential candidate.

Looking at the returns State by State, you cannot escape the conclusion that most of the Senators swept in on the '46 tide would have been defeated if they had come up this year. In a sense, then, they will be lame ducks.

Progressive Republicans in the Senate, conspicuously Senator Aiken of Vermont, have indicated that they mean to make over the leadership and the direction of their party. But what they will do with these holdovers from the past is hard to see. It is possible, however, that lame ducks can read the election returns.

Election Mandate

Diligent reading of many editorials and columns since November 2 suggests that, after we win an election on such issues as Taft-Hartley, inflation and civil rights, we are supposed to figure out how to surrender to the losers. Could the editorial writers and the columnists be as wrong on this as they were on the election?

Western Germany

By Sumner Welles

Shadow Of Rearmament

FEAR THAT British and American policy is now directed toward the immediate establishment of a strong and autonomous western Germany is casting a deep shadow over western Europe.

The vote in the French National Assembly last June showed that apprehension lest the English-speaking powers repeat their fatal error of the 1920s and rebuild a powerful centralized Germany as a buffer against Russia is shared by all of France's political parties.

The French are protesting against the centralization of power proposed in the draft constitution for the new west German state, and against the rapidity of the economic reconstruction of the British and American zones. They reject the Anglo-American plan to restore the Ruhr industries to German control and insist that the international authority to be set up in the Ruhr be permanent and that this authority place security above economic recovery.

The specter of German rearmament is arousing as much anxiety in the Low Countries, in Scandinavia, and among the democratic elements in Poland and Czechoslovakia, as in France.

I received this message from Europe three days ago:

"The actual German has not changed in any way. He is your enemy and you cannot trust him. General von Paulus and his men have played up to the Russians because they are convinced that in the long run the Germans can master the Russians. They are not afraid to serve them for the time being.

"If you put arms in the hands of the western Germans—rumor already mentions an army of 500,000 men—the Von Paulus tactics will one day spread to the west and, should Russia find herself in a tough spot, she and Germany will join in the conquest of Europe, and the western Germans will stab you in the back. You will not be better off if the Russians leave a Communist-dominated German army behind them. The results will be the same."

This warning did not come from France. It came from a prominent Danish journalist in Copenhagen.

SINCE Germany robbed them in 1864 of their southern provinces the Danes have tried persistently to obtain for South Schleswig the democratic right of self-determination. In 1946 the British occupation authorities suggested that the Danish government fix the Schleswig frontier as it might see fit and either expel the unwanted Germans by force or hold a Danish-controlled plebiscite. The offer was rejected by Denmark on the ground that the only lasting solution for the South Schleswig problem must be true self-determination.

Last month a group of four Danish political leaders headed by Gustav Rasmussen attended a conference in London called to discuss the problem "informally." Great Britain still has to consult the United States and France. But Danish officials are convinced that the final decision will not represent a recognition of Denmark's just claims, but rather a bribe to the new allies the English-speaking powers are trying to secure in western Germany.

At the very moment that the United States is seeking to promote confidence and unity in western Europe the sharply mounting anxiety aroused by Anglo-American policy toward Germany is having a gravely disruptive effect on the unity of the western European countries.

Neither the French nor the other peoples of western Europe are ignorant of the fact that the essential basis for a realistic and long-range German policy was found at Tehran. As Robert Sherwood has shown in his incomparable contribution to modern history, Roosevelt and Hopkins, Stalin, Churchill and Roosevelt there agreed upon the fundamental principle that Germany should become a federation of autonomous states.

Subsequent misunderstandings and differences voided that agreement. Yet the three major powers were then in accord upon the only policy that spells security for Germany's neighbors. No other policy can offer Europe the hope of future peace.

AT THIS late date any solution of that kind would, of course, imply the willingness of both Moscow and Washington to reverse their present course. Yet if there is ever to be a chance for the policy agreed upon at Tehran to be revived, the opportunity afforded by the aftermath of President Truman's re-election would seem to be the most propitious.

Notwithstanding the Vishinsky tirades, the diatribes of Red army leaders, and the virulence of Soviet propaganda, this momentary detente offers American statesmanship a chance to cut through the accumulating antagonisms of the postwar years and get back to the fundamentals of Tehran.

The German cancer is infecting every part of Europe. Such features of American policy as the European Recovery Program and the Western European Alliance—unavoidable as the bad faith and stupidity of Russia's leaders may have made them—can only be palliatives. They will not cure the malady. There will be no cure for Europe unless there is a German settlement that means the certainty of German disarmament. And this only political decentralization and international control can provide.

It will be solely the pan-Germans and the German militarists who will profit from the present contest between Russia and the English-speaking powers for German support.

Radio Stations File Contempt Case Answers

Baltimore, Nov. 15 (AP).—Four of five Baltimore area radio stations cited for contempt for handling of news concerning the Eugene James murder case have now filed answers to the charges.

The latest reply, from Station WITH and its News Editor James P. Connolly, charges the controversal Baltimore court rule under which the stations were held in contempt is unconstitutional.

Supreme bench Rule 904 prohibits publication or broadcast of information about an accused man if the information is obtained between the time of his arrest and the time of his trial.

With and Connolly contended that James, who was sentenced last week to be hanged for the knife-slaying of 11-year-old Marsha Brill, was not in custody of the court at the time the alleged contempt was committed.

They said the information they broadcast after James was arrested was obtained by telephone from a "responsible public official" at 7 p. m., July 8. James, they claimed, was not formally charged until 45 minutes later.

In addition, they contended the alleged offense did not constitute a "clear and present danger . . . to the impartial administration of justice;" that supreme bench Rule 904 violates the declaration of rights and is a restraint on publication, and that the rule is discriminatory.

In previous replies, WFBR and WCBM called the rule vague and indefinite and a violation of freedom of the press.

Films Praised As Medium For Teaching

District school teachers yesterday were told that educational films will enable them to do "a superior teaching job."

Dr. W. A. Wittich, director of the division of visual education for the University of Wisconsin, said that sound films now are available in 18 subject areas that are a "challenge to the ear and the eye."

Students do not readily forget materials they have seen on the screen, and they absorb more when they are interested, he said.

Dr. Wittich delivered 3 lectures yesterday in a series of 10 he will present this week to teachers, school officials and students at Wilson and Miner Teachers Colleges.

Truman Congratulates Canada's New Leader

President Truman yesterday congratulated Louis St. Laurent, newly-elected Prime Minister of Canada, on his acceptance of leadership of "one of the world's great nations."

Mr. Truman also sent retiring Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King a telegram hailing his achievements in office, particularly his contributions to "the firm friendship of our two countries."

The White House made the messages public.

Mobile Clinic Planned for Rheumatics

A campaign to raise $20,000 to establish a mobile treatment center for needy arthritis victims was announced here yesterday.

The trailer-truck unit, to take diathermy, bath and ray treatments to indigents crippled with rheumatic diseases, is a project of the District Foundation for Rheumatic Diseases, a nonprofit organization.

Fund solicitations will be made privately, according to Mrs. Joseph F. Elward of 4441 Hawthorne st. nw., president and founder. She said her organization has declined to participate in the national campaign to raise two million dollars to fight rheumatic diseases. The Nation-wide drive opened yesterday under sponsorship of the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, a New York nonprofit corporation.

Decision to withhold affiliation "for at least six months," she said, was voted at a recent meeting of directors, who felt they needed more information about the National Foundation.

Mrs. Elward said the mobile unit would be manned by volunteers under supervision of a registered physiotherapist who would be paid by the District Foundation.

Efforts to finance the unit, she said, will not conflict with her organization's initial goal to establish a research fellowship at a local medical school for special study of rheumatic diseases.

Vice presidents of the District corporation are Mrs. Louis Renfrow, women's club leader, and Mrs. Margaret Landon, author of "Anna and the King of Siam." Harry Slattery, former Assistant Secretary of the Interior, is chairman of the board of directors.

Also serving on the directors' board are Mrs. Wiley Rutledge, wife of the associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, and Senators Arthur Capper, Kansas; James P. Kem, Missouri, and Claude Pepper, Florida.

Justice Dept. Probes Artificial Eye Trade

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP).—The Department of Justice has begun a nationwide investigation of the artificial eye industry.

Melville P. Williams head of the department's Chicago Anti-Trust Division Office, said today records of two manufacturing firms have been subpenaed for a Federal grand jury.

He said the American Optical Co., Southbridge, Mass., and Macer and Gougelman, Inc., of New York, were ordered to produce the records Monday.

Baptists Told To Build New Churches

The president of the D. C. Baptist Convention yesterday urged Baptists to build new churches in the Greater Washington area to meet the needs of new communities.

Speaking at the opening session of the annual D. C. Baptist Convention, meeting at National Baptist Memorial Church, 16th and Columbia rd. nw., Dr. Clarence W. Cranford of Calvary Baptist Church declared that the Baptist "family" is not growing as fast as it should.

He also called for a prayer and communion retreat of Baptist leaders, and greater emphasis upon stewardship. He suggested a three-month stewardship campaign and tithing venture by the 35 churches in the convention.

Dr. M. Chandler Stith, executive secretary of the convention, stated that the 35 churches in the convention gained 2767 new members during the past year.

Evening speakers were Dr. Roland Q. Leavell of New Orleans who spoke on Baptist seminaries; H. A. Hunderup, jr., also of New Orleans, who spoke on the Baptist Relief Program, and Dr. Arnold T. Ohrn, general secretary of the Baptist World Alliance.

Meetings today will begin at 9:30 a. m., 2 p. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Witness Gone, ABC Case Dropped

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday dismissed charges of selling liquor to a minor against Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Gorland, owners of a restaurant at 628 4th st. sw.

A 14-year-old girl, chief witness in the case, has run away from the Children's Receiving Home and has not been located, board members said.

An ABC hearing on 57 liquor law violation charges against the proprietors of Mitchell's Grill, 235 G st. nw., will be resumed today at 2 p. m. The hearings, in which one policeman accused another of "framing" the proprietors, opened last week. Twenty-first Precinct policemen have already testified in defense of the cafe.

Producers Seek Price Boost For Sugar by Cutting Imports

The price of sugar is too low, sugar producers told the Agriculture Department yesterday. The department is holding hearings on import quotas.

Although cost of all other products have increased, Robert H. Shields, president of the United States Beet Sugar Association, said, the wholesale price of sugar has gone down from $8.40 a hundred pounds to $7.75 since the first of the year.

Shields asked that Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan set a low consumption figure for the year. Imports, which are based on the consumption figure set by the Secretary, thus would be held down, which in turn would increase the price.

Sugar prices, Shields argued, should go up $1.40 a hundred pounds to come in line with prices of other foods and make sugar-beet growing profitable. "If the wholesale price of refined sugar today was in line with the general cost of living, the yardstick in the 1948 Sugar Act to measure sugar prices fair to both producers and consumers, the price would be $9.15," he asserted.

This would raise the retail price about a cent a pound—or to an average of 10½ cents—the highest since the war.

Opposing the producers, Harold O. Smith, jr., vice president of the United States Wholesale Grocers' Association, asked that instead of reducing this year's quota from 7,200,000 tons to 6,900,000 as asked by Shields, it should be raised to 7,900,000.

Smith, speaking for a dozen consumer associations such as bakers, candymakers and ice cream manufacturers, said present stocks of sugar are far too low, especially along the Eastern seaboard.

Red Germany Opens Shops for Rich Only

Berlin, Nov. 15 (AP).—With Soviet approval, stores for the rich only were opened in Russian-occupied eastern Berlin and Germany today. These "free trade" stores sell clothing and other goods without coupons at special high prices to those who can afford them.

Admission of 21 More Parties Asked in Patterson Litigation

District Court yesterday was asked to admit as parties to litigation over the will of the late Eleanor Medill Patterson 21 additional persons named in nine recently found wills and codicils of the former Times-Herald owner.

The request was contained in a petition for amendment of the caveat filed September 13 in behalf of Mrs. Felicia Gizycka. Mrs. Gizycka, daughter of Mrs. Patterson, is seeking to break her mother's will.

2 Will Receive Community Service Awards

Awards for distinguished community service will be made to two Red Feather agency officials at 6:30 p. m. Thursday by George E. Muth, president of the board of the Boys' Club of Washington.

Recipients will be Miss Lydia Burklin, 416 6th st. se., and James L. Triantafillos, 1210 Congress st. se.

Miss Burklin will be cited for her work as executive director of Friendship House since 1909. Triantafillos will be honored for his 15 years as art instructor to boys of the club.

The awards—medals and engraved certificates—are presented annually to persons making outstanding contributions to community affairs. They will be presented this year at a dinner meeting of the board of trustees at the Boys Club, 17th st. and Massachusetts ave. sw.

Truman Opposes Change in ECA Grain Handling

By The Associated Press

President Truman has asked Foreign Aid Administrator Paul C. Hoffman to halt plans to let private traders handle Marshall Plan grain purchases after December 1.

This was disclosed yesterday by high Government officials. Spokesmen for the Economic Cooperation Administration would say only that a letter has been received, and that Hoffman hopes to see Mr. Truman "at the earliest opportunity" to clarify the policy.

Marshall Plan grain purchases are now handled by the Agriculture Department's Commodity Credit Corporation. An ECA decision to give private traders the business was announced September 1 after long debate within the Cabinet Food Committee headed by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, who was understood to have opposed the switch to private trade channels. Hoffman insisted on it, pointing out that the Foreign Assistance Act specifies the use of private procurement to the greatest possible extent.

Dark—for younger men

Youngsters at school or college prefer a dark grey flannel suit. It is more practical than the lighter shades. We have considered this—and the parents' budgets—and have asked our makers for a reasonably priced, good quality, long wearing suit.

The suit is the traditional three button model, is nicely styled and — at the price — of exceptional value.

Fine Concert By Cathedral Choral Group

By Paul Hume

Music of the church ranged from profound mysticism to operatic splendor in last night's concert of the Cathedral Choral Society, sung in Washington Cathedral.

The society, directed by Paul Callaway, was assisted by Barbara Troxell and Dorothy Stahl, sopranos; William Hess, tenor; Doda Conrad, bass, and the boys of the Cathedral Choir. Richard Dirksen, assistant organist of the Cathedral, was both soloist and accompanist with an orchestra drawn from the National Symphony.

The evening opened with Gustav Holst's "Let All Mortal Flesh Keep Silence," with chorus augmented by the boy choir. The text of this ancient hymn was the inspiration for Leo Sowerby's Medieval Poem for organ and orchestra which followed. The balance between organ and orchestra was skilfully achieved, and in the solo passages as well as in ensemble work, Dirksen's playing was superb.

The seventeenth century master, Heinrich Schutz, was honored with his "Fili Mi Absalom" for bass, four trombones and organ. With the solo part movingly sung by Doda Conrad, the music is a profound expression of the tragic lament of King David for his dead son, Absalom.

Mozart's C Minor Mass gave the choral society its real challenge of the evening. The chorus writing is extremely complex in spots, with contrapuntal lines that tax every voice. Some of the music is so unsuited to the text that it seems to have come from the operas rather than from any sense of the liturgical.

Te women specialists are required to perform the same tasks as Donna Anna in Don Giovanni, or Fiordiligi in Cosi fan Tutta. Miss Troxell surmounted every hurdle with ease and innate style. Miss Stahl carried her lines well also, if with somewhat less than the most desired "bite" to the tone. Conrad and Hess carried out their slender assignments adequately.

The chorus was expert in pitch, tone, and most of its enunciation. Consonants are of such importance in the cathedral that they could have been overdone in order to carry sufficiency.

Callaway directed with sensitive authority. The strings were a delight for their fine phrasing in the Mozart, and the wind sections were brilliant in Sowerby's Poem. Special mention must go to the boys of the Cathedral Choir. Their musicianship at such moments can be envied by their seniors.

Chevy Chase To Dedicate New Center

Formal opening of the Chevy Chase Community Center, product of more than two years of effort by the Chevy Chase Community Council, will be held at 7:45 p. m. today outside the building at McKinley st. and Connecticut ave. nw.

More than a dozen District officials and community leaders will take a hand in the ceremonies dedicating the old E. V. Brown School which now houses a branch library, canteen, preschool play center, workshop and gameroom—not to mention about 350 teenagers each weekend.

Funds for renovating the basement and first floor of the building were provided by the District, but it took $5000 raised in the community to pay for the furnishings and recreation equipment.

6 Indicted at Rockville in Tire Thefts

Six members of what police called a band of youthful tire thieves in Rockville, Md., were indicted yesterday by the Montgomery County grand jury.

The indictments were among 28 which included a true bill against a truck driver who, police say, attempted to kill his employer because he was fired.

Five members of the alleged tire theft ring were indicted on charges of larceny: Grover Baker, jr., 20, Germantown; James Riley, 19, Rockville; Thomas Stanley Carter, 21, Montrose; Charles E. Mossburg, jr., 20, Rockville, and William Mossburg, 18, also of Rockville.

A sixth alleged member, Jesse B. Floyd, jr., 22, Washington Grove, was indicted on two counts of receiving stolen goods.

Indicted on a charge of assault with intent to murder was Reginald I. Smith, 42, of 4339 Harrison st. nw. Smith, a truck driver, attempted to shoot his former employer, Walter E. Carter, vice president of Fussell-Young Ice Cream Co., at his home, 410 Morgan Drive, Chevy Chase, last August 17, police said.

Indicted for housebreaking and larceny were three men who, police reported, broke into Southern States' Cooperative Warehouse at Gaithersburg, on September 16, stealing merchandise valued at $738. They were Paul R. Dunagan, Glen Echo; Frank F. Natoli, 3421 Q st. nw., and Albert Lamb, 2403 Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Indicted on charge of arson was Clyde R. Eanes, 21, of 6720 MacArthur blvd. Glen Echo. Police said Eanes was charged after a house occupied by Mrs. Sarah Higby, 6717 MacArthur blvd., burned to the ground.

Others indicted: Mazie Miles, 404½ 1st st. nw., larceny; Ralph Marino, 302 E st. nw., larceny; Julius S. Carroll, 6047 River rd., housebreaking and larceny; Emery G. Cooper, Rockville, assault with intent to murder; George Alvin Thomas, Lincoln Park, burglary; John Rollins, Linden, larceny; Charles Offutt, Rockville, robbery; Arthur James Boler, 50 T st. nw., larceny; Amy V. Rabbitt, Spring Lake Park, destitute parents; Joseph Bowen, Burtonsville, larceny; Malvern E. Glenn, 1353 Nicholson st. nw., larceny, and Harry and Albert Cooper, Rockville, robbery.

Bomber Tips Over In Landing Here

Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, commandant of the United States Military Academy at West Point, and three members of a plane crew had a close call yesterday as their bomber nosed over in landing at Bolling Air Force Base and skidded about 50 yards to a screeching stop.

No one was hurt in the accident, which authorities said was caused by the collapse of the nose wheel of the B-25 bomber as it landed.

Propellers, nose and nose gear were damaged. The mechanical trouble in the nose wheel is being investigated.

Dachau DPs Ask Death Rather Than Camp Life

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—The German News Agency Dena said today a group of refugees in the displaced persons camp at Dachau had asked to be put to death rather than continue living under present circumstances.

The dispatch said the refugees had asked the Bavarian government that they be gassed in the infamous Dachau death cells "to call the attention of the world to their miserable plight."

with DYNAFLOW!

Do you get a heart-lift out of the happy purr of a giant power plant contentedly at work?

Do you find a thrill in the rush of wind, the fleeting of miles beneath you, a quiet cruise on a moonlight night?

Whatever your idea of what's tops in driving fun, look forward to something even more stirring when you slip behind a Dynaflow* wheel!

For there's far more to Dynaflow Drive than the simple fact that it reduces driving to setting a lever and pressing the gas treadle.

There's the swift, sure, forward surge, unbroken by the change of gears, whenever you want power for take-off or for climb.

There's the sweet, silken cushioning of power, delivered through oil rather than meshing gears, in all your normal driving, whether at traffic creep or highway pace.

There's the assuring knowledge of ample engine-braking power, with more in reserve at the flick of a lever — there's complete absence of clutch-work, and the stepping down or up with gearshift lever in congested going.

There's the wholly different feel of a car that seems to think for itself, so easily, surely and smoothly does it do the right thing in every driving circumstance, without thought or effort on your part.

Here, indeed, is an engineering milestone — a landmark in automotive progress comparable to the self-starter.

Since Buick and Buick only has Dynaflow Drive, why not make certain of being one of the early birds singing songs in praise of Dynaflow?

Just see your Buick dealer, with or without a car to trade, and get a firm order in.

*You get Dynaflow Drive, at extra cost, on Roadmasters only.

BUICK alone has all these features
★ DYNAFLOW DRIVE (Roadmaster Series)

Action Due Today On Police Reserve

The District Commissioners are expected to act today on a proposal to create a special police reserve corps for use in "unforeseen circumstances."

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West said yesterday he plans to present a report on the special corps to the Commissioners at their meeting this morning. The report was prepared by Oliver Gasch, assistant corporation counsel, and is alleged to approve most, but not all, of the recommendations for creation of the corps Police Superintendent Major Robert J. Barrett.

Major Barrett last month had requested authority for a civilian reserve corps which, he said, he wished organized in time to assist regular police at the presidential inauguration.

The corps is expected to form the District's sector of the national civil defense organization advocated for a permanent peacetime set-up. It already has been designated "Twenty-fourth Battalion" in a report prepared by the Office of Civil Defense Planning and submitted to Defense Secretary James V. Forrestal last week.

Police Chief Maj. Robert J. Barrett served as consultant to Russell J. Hopley, director of the OCDP, which drafted the national defense plan.

Takoma Park Council Orders 'Bonifant Flats' Eviction Action

The Takoma Park City Council last night ordered immediate legal action to evict the 34 occupants of "Bonifant Flats" on Lake av. in Takoma Park.

After rejecting a plea for extension of last midnight's eviction deadline from Leopold Wagner, 1800 Underwood st. nw., owner of the five two-story frame houses which comprise the "flats" condemned by the city council last month, the council ordered Corporation Counsel J. Douglass Bradshaw to institute court action.

According to Roy P. Frye, city building inspector, the houses were built about 25 years ago originally for five families.

Present occupants, he has stated, use open privies which drain into a nearby open creek.

The earlier decree of the mayor and the council followed recommendations of fire, police and health officials who termed the buildings unsafe.

Wagner told the council last night that illness prevented him from obeying the council directive up tuntil now. He also declared one family in the "flats" has 12 children and a member of another family is wholly blind.

Palestine Is Topic Of Radio Broadcast

The Palestine problem will be discussed on the American Forum of the Air program, broadcast by radio station WOL and the Mutual network, at 10 o'clock tonight. Scheduled speakers include Senator Francis J. Myers, (D., Pa.) and Kermit Roosevelt, writer. The studio will be open to the public.

Driver Robbed of $15; Cab Seized, Abandoned

Joseph Baldwin of Berwyn, Md., driver of Suburban Cab 13, was held up and robbed of his cab and $15 about 8:20 o'clock last night on lonely Metzerott rd. in Prince Georges County.

The bandit, who put a revolver in Baldwin's back, was a passenger Baldwin had picked up about five miles away, Baldwin told police.

Cafe Robbed of $345

Celestino Gonzales, owner of the Red Bar Cafe, 1436 H st. ne., reported to police a total of $345 in bills and change taken from his cafe early yesterday. Police said $320 was in bills taken from an unlocked safe and $25 in change was removed from a juke box. Entrance was gained by breaking the lock on a rear door.

Forrestal Returning

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 15 (U.P.). United States Secretary of Defense James Forrestal left by plane for the United States today after a series of conferences in Western Europe on joint defense plans.

One on the Aisle—

Pat O'Brien Tells A Mess of Yarns

By Richard L. Coe

PAT O'BRIEN is so like his screen shadow you feel you've known him for years, a genial, blue-eyed Irishman fond of telling stories.

Pat's at the Statler for last night's "City of Hope" Auxiliary benefit for the Los Angeles Sanatorium and National Medical Center. This afternoon he'll trek out to Walter Reed, where he'll probably meet some of the fellows he ran into while overseas for Camp Shows; before that he'll drop in for Nan and Bill's brunch on WQQW at noon.

But yesterday at lunchtime Pat was more filled with stories than with immediate comings and goings. He told several about his vaudeville pal, Joe Frisco.

He remembered the days when Frank McGlynn, that lawyer turned actor, was playing Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln." McGlynn was the serious sort of actor who lived the roles he played and, since Lincoln occupied him for years, you can imagine how saturated he was with the martyred President.

Joe Frisco used to watch McGlynn offstage and marvel at the completeness with which he'd drenched himself in the role—a stovepipe hat, somber clothes and a gaunt, haunted look. It puzzled Frisco, who's an unabashed tout-type, but one day he came up with a one-sentence critique.

"That guy," said Joe as he sighted McGlynn stalking down Broadway, "won't be satisfied until he's assassinated."

Then there was the time Frisco was making a picture with Director Leo McCarey. He'd stayed away from the track for weeks on end, but finally one day asked the director if he could have a day off. He wanted to get his teeth fixed. And would McCarey mind loaning him 150 bucks to pay the dentist? Okay it was and Frisco got the day off.

Next day on the set, McCarey asked him how the new dentures set. "G-g-g-g-gosh, L-L-L-Leo," stammered the horses' friend, "The ch-ch-ch-choppers ran s-s-s-second."

Talk turned from Joe to Alcoholics Anonymous—for no particular reason. Did Pat think AA a good idea? That launched him on another yarn.

He told about the priest and the rabbi who watched a fighter cross himself as he entered the ring. "Do you think that will help him?" asked the rabbi of the priest. "Only," replied the priest, "if he can fight"

"Which is the way I see Alcoholics Anonymous," explained Pat.

O'Brien has just finished a film there's been a lot of talk about, "The Boy With the Green Hair," but he's too much the Irishman to make any predictions. He has, however, a new scheme up his sleeve and from his breezy, easy-going manner, it looks like a smart one.

Next month he'll become a radio commentator, speaking from Hollywood over the ABC net five afternoons a week. He'll tackle news of the movie "industry" from the viewpoint of a guy who's been in it since 1932. And you can bet he'll tackle the sports world, too, during those daily 15 minutes.

The Irish came to light in another way yesterday. Though his Walter Reed schedule was set up to the minute when pretty-voiced Nan Garcia called to ask him to say hello on her brunch program with Bill Carmichael, Pat fell for the voice. "Sure," he sez, "I'll be there."

MARLENE DIETRICH, for whom I would crawl in the dust, is in town, but the accent is on Society not lower-case moviedom, so the most I can tell you is that she'll be selling Christmas gifts at the French Embassy tomorrow morning—from 11 o'clock . . . This is for the Washington Committee of American Aid to France and seems about the niftiest way of buying a Christmas gift I ever did hear . . . Take it away, Mrs. Thayer!

CARROLL RIGHTER, Marlene's astrologer, by the way, is just back in town at the Fairfax. . . . Marlene, if you meet her, is Capricorn and what with "A Foreign Affair," it's been a pretty good year for Capricorn. . . . Righter's one-time assistant is Robert Mitchum, that chap whose career doesn't seem to have gone up in smoke after all. . . . Early in August, Righter told Bob, "Be careful of this strange, eventful oncoming month." . . . And you know what happened to Bob, though I must say Carroll's been awfully cagey about us Scorpios.

CHARLES BOYER seems to have done for Baltimore what I suspect Jean-Paul Sartre couldn't have done alone . . . "Red Gloves" is virtually sold out for the week at Ford's and unless you've got a sure-fire ticket you'd best save yourself the trip. . . . "Red Gloves," not to be confused with the movie, "Red River," the movie, "Red Shoes," the ballet, "Red Poppy, the insignia, "Red Feather" or the Representative J. "Is-My-Face-Red" Feeney Thomas, is the play Paris saw as "Dirty Hands" ("Les Mains Sales") . . . More on M. Boyer and his play tomorrow.

Horn Blower, 87 Others Get Tickets 'Fixed'

Police eased up temporarily on their campaign against horn-blowing last week to let off one motorist with a warning after he had been given a ticket for making unnecessary noise.

The motorist, Willie Miles, 23, of 549 24th st. ne., explained he used his horn to warn a pedestrian who was about to step in front of his car, police said.

Miles was one of 88 motorists for whom traffic tickets were "fixed."

Tickets were canceled for six motorists because of diplomatic immunity. They were:

Jaime De Piniles, Spanish Embassy, parked in a hack stand; Stende Jeranjedin, Swedish Embassy, parked in a public space; Marius D. Chapman, Australian Military Mission, parked in a "no parking any time" zone; Amin Mumayiz, Embassy of Iraq, parked in a "no parking from 7 to 9:30 a. m." zone; Arturo Garcia, Peruvian Embassy, parked in a "no parking any time" zone; Alberto E. Mussio, Embassy of Uruguay, parked in a bus stop and parked in a "no parking from 4 to 6 p. m." zone.

A THANKSGIVING DINNER: Not that Gene Kelly and Lana Turner are enjoying the typically American feast at the court of Louis XIII, but that they'll be the stars for the Palace Thanksgiving Day. Their film is a new version of "The Three Musketeers," with Gene as D'Artagnan and Lana as Milady de Winter

California Refuses to Play Oregon for Bowl Bid

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

ON ONE OF the best Sundays the National Football League has known at the gate this season, the NFL people could take scant comfort nevertheless. They didn't come within 4000 customers per game of equaling the average attendance of the despised All-America Conference on the same weekend.

POVICH

It's been four years now since the erstwhile commissioner of the National Football League, Elmer Layden, scoffed at the idea another pro football league could be organized and smirked, "They haven't even got a football." His successor as NFL Commissioner, Bert Bell, has not been able to indulge in any such hauteur. Bell is constrained to limit himself to the two-word statement, "No comment," at every mention of the AAC.

Heedless of the NFL, the conference has been in operation three seasons now and in its third season has been outdrawing the old league. Their four games of last Sunday averaged 35,959 to the NFL's 31,946 per game for five contests, and the San Francisco Forty-Niners' game at Cleveland set a new pro football record of 82,769 customers. It could be added, too, that the record the Cleveland game broke was formerly held by another AAC club, the Los Angeles Dons.

THE REDSKINS, who sold out every game for six years, haven't filled their park this season in five attempts. They're being hurt by the diversionary activity in Baltimore, where the Colts last weekend drew 21,899 against the weak Chicago Rockets. In Baltimore, the Colts are beloved by many of the citizens who used to make the trip to Washington for Sunday games.

Both leagues have their weak spots, notably Brooklyn and the Chicago Rockets in the AAC, and Boston in the NFL. And of these, Boston is the weakest. The crowds there have not averaged much better than 10,000 per game and at that rate the losses of Ted Collins can go as high as $250,000 for the season. But Green Bay is no longer a big asset to the NFL, either. It could produce only 13,343 customers for a home game at Milwaukee with the Redskins, despite ideal weather.

Small wonder then that the NFL has been wooing the San Francisco and Cleveland clubs to ditch their AAC partners and join up with the older league. But that proposition is probably falling on deaf ears now, after that crowd in Cleveland Sunday, and the big San Francisco stadium already sold out of its 54,000 seats for the return game between the two teams.

AT FIRST GLANCE, it appears the NFL could take satisfaction out of the levelopments in New York over the weekend, where the Giants drew 22,766 with the Los Angeles Rams in contrast to the mere 15,555 customers at the AAC game between the Yankees and Brooklyn in Yankee Stadium. But there is scant satisfaction there, either, for the older league when other angles are considered.

The Yankees aren't drawing, but they aren't being hurt too badly. They're owned by the Yankee baseball corporation and are out from under the 15 per cent rental fees for the stadium. The Yankees can offset much of their football losses against their baseball profits in tax savings, and the same goes for the Brooklyn Dodgers in the same league. In the NFL, none of the teams operate in their own parks.

It's no secret that Ben Lindheimer, the Chicago-Los Angeles millionaire, has been lavish with his wealth in backing the All-America Conference and is the No. 1 angel of the circuit. Mickey McBride, who owns Cleveland, has repeated that he won't run out on the AAC, either, and the conference is in a position to toss in more chips than the longer-established NFL.

IT'S A SUICIDAL war, though, as long as stuffy NFL owners try to hold the AAC at arm's length and refuse recognition. It's doubtful that more than 4 of the NFL teams or more than two of the eight AAC clubs are showing any profits. Payrolls are too high, and skyrocketing from competitive bidding for talent that is being overpaid to a point that makes the pro football business impractical.

The Chicago Bears, for example, in an attempt to corner the quarterback market against the bidding of the AAC, are now three deep in $20,000-a-year quarterbacks—Sid Luckman, Johnny Lujack and Bobby Layne. The Boston Yankees are paying a rookie guard $11,000. Brooklyn is paying Chappuis more than it can afford.

The bigger salaries would be nearly halved without the competitive bidding. The AAC doesn't want the NFL to embrace it—merely a common draft list and respect for each league's claims from the college lists. That won't happen, though, until NFL pride goeth before a deeper fall in the bank account.

Bears Will Abide by Vote To Select Coast Team

Eugene, Oreg., Nov. 15 (U.P.).—California has refused to meet Oregon in a postseason playoff for the Pacific Coast Conference championship and the Rose Bowl berth, Oregon Athletic Director Leo Harris said today.

His statement was confirmed in Berkeley, Calif., by California Athletic Director Brutus Hamilton.

Despite the rejection, Oregon announced that its challenge to California "has not been withdrawn and still stands" because it feels that "everyone interested in intercollegiate football and the rose bowl game would prefer to have the selection depend on the result of a gam ebetween the two schools."

California and Oregon currently are tied for the Coast Conference lead, both undefeated and untied in league play. In the event of a tie, a vote of conference faculty representatives Saturday night will pick the host team in the Rose Bowl.

Harris said Oregon offered to play California at Berkeley either November 27 or December 4 for the championship in the event the two teams finish in a tie for the league lead. He insisted that such a playoff was "perfectly legal" under conference rules.

Playoff Offered Last Thursday

The playoff offer was made Thursday, Harris said, to California's athletic business manager because Hamilton was absent from his office at the time.

"The offer was rejected by the University of California," Harris said.

Hamilton today told reporters flatly, "we will abide by the PCC rules and will not engage in any playoff with the University of Oregon. The team that wins in the balloting Saturday night will receive the invitation to play in the Rose Bowl. If California is not invited, we will close accounts right there.

"The university is not interested in going to the Sugar Bowl or any bowl other than the one at Pasadena."

Not Interested in Sugar

There had been vague reports that California might go to the Sugar Bowl, should Oregon be picked as the Rose Bowl host. But Hamilton pointed out that California has an agreement with its conference neighbor, Stanford, that neither plays any postseason contest other than the Rose Bowl after their annual "big game," which is Saturday.

California is undefeated and untied this season, having won nine games—including four conference clashes—with the Stanford tilt yet to come. Oregon lost to Michigan, but has won all five conference games to date and closes its season against Oregon State Saturday.

Should both teams win their final games, California will have five conference victories and Oregon six. There was the possibility that Oregon might get the Rose Bowl bid on that basis. In the event of a ballot tie, Oregon would get the invitation since it has not played in the Rose Bowl as recently as California.

Harris said Oregon attempted at the conference's 1947 spring meeting in San Francisco to schedule the Bears but California "was unable to make it."

"Now we still feel that the best way to decide the conference's strongest team would be a playoff," he said. "We don't feel that comparative scores reveal the true strength of the teams. California's victories over Navy and Wisconsin shouldn't have any bearing on Oregon's defeat by Michigan, probably the Nation's No. 1 team."

Pick-The-Winners Lineup Final Week

THIS IS the final week of The Washington Post's popular Pick-The-Winners football contest during the regular season.

The game on which you will select the probable score is the hometown meeting of George Washington and Georgetown.

Remember that this contest is designed to reward those who know their teams well and study the accounts of games week by week.

The winner of each weekly contest will receive two (2) tickets to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia, November 27, and an all-expenses paid trip to the big game for two persons.

The person submitting the most accurate entry each week also will receive four (4) tickets to a major college or professional game in this area. This game will be selected by The Washington Post.

The contest each week will include 20 of the major college games. Each contestant will select the winner (or tie) of each of these games.

A twenty-first (21st) game is listed on which the "Probable Score" will be given by each contestant.

No person will be eligible to win the weekly contest twice.

GW Vacates Route 1 for 'Secret' Site

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

To prepare for Saturday's traditional tug-of-war with Georgetown, George Washington yesterday deserted its Frog Island practice field for a secret site.

The place is so secret that the GW publicity man, whose business it is to keep abreast of such things, didn't even know where Bo Rowland had hid out his Colonials.

"The only place I didn't go to find the squad was Constitution Hall," said Publicist Tom Coleman, "and I didn't go there because I don't think Rowland would be practicing indoors for an outdoor game."

Rowland confessed that he had moved his flock to "a new place," but wouldn't say where. "We decided to take our boys off exhibition on Frog Island," he said. "There are too many quarterbacks on Route 1 (where Frog Island is located) and this is one week I'd

AAC Rumored At NFL Meeting

Pittsburgh, Nov. 15.—A highly secret midseason meeting of National Football League owners was held here today for the avowed purpose of making divisional playoff plan and discussing the 1949 schedule.

NFL Commissioner Bert Bell refused to comment on the meeting's true purpose, although Public Relations Chief Joe Labrum said no "world shaking" matters were discussed. This was in answer to rumors that owners of the San Francisco 49'ers and Cleveland Browns of the rival All-America Conference also attended the meeting.

The speculation was that NFL owners were summoned, in advance of the A-AC's draft meeting, to consider applications of the Browns and 49'er for admittance to the senior circuit.

Notre Dame Coach Reveals Schedule for '49

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP).—Assistant Coach Bernie Crimmins of Notre Dame, without disclosing dates, revealed today that Notre Dame's 1949 football schedule would include Indiana, Purdue, Iowa, Navy, Michigan State, Southern California, Washington, Tulane and one other team, possibly Southern Methodist.

Tulane and the still undetermined opponent will replace Pittsburgh and Northwestern.

Dawson Stops Milan in 10th

All through the fight, Dawson had shown nothing but a catapulting left which punished but never slowed up the charging Milan. Suddenly, in the ninth, Dawson sprung his right and sent Milan to the floor for three seconds. Milan got up, caught the right again, and fell just as the bell rang.

In the four-round preliminaries, Scott Richardson, 155, of Washington won a technical knockout in 2:46 of the fourth round over Bradley Jim, 160, of Baltimore; Dick Barber, 158½, of Washington drew with Angelo Marini, 153½, of Washington.

In five-rounders, Washington's Garland Edwards, 152, took the decision from Jesse Baker, 150, of Roanoke, Va.; Walter Ham, 128, of Washington, outpointed Don Weber, 127½, of Roanoke.

Red Rolfe Steps Up as Detroit Pilot

Detroit, Nov. 15 (AP).—Robert A. (Red) Rolfe, former New York Yankee third base star, came back to the major leagues today as the new manager of the Detroit Tigers.

He never before has managed a professional baseball team.

In a surprise move, he was promoted from the Detroit farm system in an effort to boost the faltering Tigers back into baseball's limelight. He has headed the farm system for the past year.

Rolfe has been out of the big time six years, except for a tour of duty in 1946 as a Yankee coach.

He succeeds Steve O'Neill, who was fired November 6 after his 1948 Tigers floundered all season and ended up in fifth place.

Not a Bad Ball Club

"This club has its weaknesses," he admitted to newsmen, "but it is not a bad ball club. If we can strengthen two or three spots, we will be up there in the pennant fight."

He specifically mentioned catching, second base and pitching.

"Our outfield is adequate," Rolfe said.

He added that he expects Johnny Groth, the Buffalo Bison star, to gain a regular spot in the Detroit outfield next season.

"Naturally, I'm very happy," Rolfe grinned. "This is a big opportunity. It is somewhat of a surprise, because I've never had any experience as a manager. But I'm thrilled that General Manager Billy Evans, Owner Walter O. Briggs, and his son, Spike Briggs, have this faith in me."

Detroit recently acquired the 32-year-old Aaron Robinson as a catcher from the Chicago White Sox. He may strengthen the Tigers behind the plate at least until a younger prospect develops.

At second base, where the hard-working but aging Eddie Mayo has been filling in, there appeared no

Michigan Far Ahead of Irish In National Football Poll

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Michigan's mighty Wolverines continued to lead the nation's football teams in the weekly Associated Press poll of sports writers today, bettering their first place margin of last week considerably.

Whereas they trailed Notre Dame by three first place ballots in the previous poll, the Big Nine champions gobbled up 130 of the 208 top spots. The other 78 No. 1 picks were divided among nine teams with Notre Dame on 27 first place ballots.

In point scoring, the determining factor, Michigan received 1,952 to 1,721 for the Fighting Irish. No doubt, last Saturday's results influenced a lot of voters. The Wolverines trampled Indiana under a 54-0 score while Notre Dame barely squeezed out a 12-7 triumph over Northwestern.

Notre Dame previously had beaten Indiana 42-6 and Michigan had swept past Northwestern 28-0.

Although they received only three first place votes to 16 for California, Army's Cadets took third place over the Golden Bears, 1,426 points to 1,288. That was the way the two teams stood a week ago.

North Carolina, by virtue of its 49-20 romp over Maryland, mov. I up a peg into fifth place with 1,034 points as 11 voters tabbed the Tar Heels as their No. 1 team.

How They Rank:

Others receiving points were: Duke and William and Mary, 11 each; Vanderbilt, 9; Kansas, Missouri and Appalachian State, 7 each; Nevada, 6; Wake Forest and Tennessee, 3 each; North Carolina State, Carlisle and Utah, 2 each, and Texas, Princeton, Santa Clara, Oregon State and South Carolina, 1 each.

Alexander Gets Football Award

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—W. A. (Bill) Alexander, for many years head coach at Georgia Tech, was named winner of the National Touchdown Club award for 1948 today. The award is given annually to the person voted as having done the most for football over a long period of time.

Metro League Playoff Set

Plans for the Metropolitan Amateur Football League's championship playoffs scheduled for Griffith Stadium next Sunday were completed last night.

The 160-pound game set for 12:30 p. m. will bring together Brookland-Woodridge Merchants, Western Division champions, vs. Northeast Body Works, of the Eastern Division.

The unlimited attraction following the 160-pound attraction involves: Car Credit, Eastern Division champion, and Anacostia Eagles, of the Western Division.

D. C. Schoolboy Title Game Set Dec. 4

Final plans for the first schoolboy football championship football game in Washington were made last night at a meeting at the Hotel 2400.

The inter-high champions, which will probably be Central High, will meet either Gonzaga, St. John's or at Griffith Stadium December 4.

Chains Beats Out Dr. Almac in Bowie's Bel Air Purse

Youel Back . . .

'Skins Really 'Up' for Big Eagle Clash

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

The Washington Redskins, bracing for Sunday's make-or-break game against the Eagles in Philadelphia, yesterday took out a little quarterback insurance when they returned Jimmy Youel's name to the payroll.

They also announced that Eddie Saenz, break-away runner who broke his ankle during fall training in California, is at last in shape to get back into action.

Youel, first-line understudy of Slingin' Sammy Baugh's in 1946-47, rejoins the Tribe today after a hectic tirp around the National Football League. Traded with End Joe Duckworth to Boston for Tackle Tom Deane, the former Iowan was waived first to Philadelphia and then Green Bay. The Packers traded him to Los Angeles and the Rams gave him his unconditional release.

Youel will replace Tippy Madarik, released yesterday, as the 35th man on the 'Skin roster. He falls in line behind Baugh and Tommy Mont at the quarterback slot, and later figures to have injured Harry Gilmer ahead of him, too.

THE REDSKINS will be "up" for Sunday's all-important tangle with the eastern division leaders, and thoroughly unconvinced by the 45-0 pasting the Eagles gave them in their earlier meeting . . . Authority for that sentiment is Head Coach Turk Edwards . . . "The guys have been up for the Eagles so long," he said, "that they almost got licked by the Detroit Lions" . . . If spirit can do it, the 'Skins will whip the Eagles handily, taking top ranking in the east with only three games to play . . . Every man on the squad is positive he's playing on the world championship team of '48.

THE OPTIMISTIC view is that the 'Skins must do only two things to beat Philadelphia and take the sectional lead—(1) Stop the passing of Tommy Thompson and the running of Steve Van Buren and Bosh Pritchard, and (2) show an offense of their own . . . Philadelphia grabbed a 24-0 halftime lead the last time by scoring four of the five times it had possession of the ball . . . The Fifth time Thompson & Co. marched 46 yards to the Redskin 18 when time ran out . . . On the other hand, Washington had the ball four times in the first half and fizzled each time as it tried to use Jim Castiglia on six straight running plays, a Baugh pass was intercepted, two penalties cost the Tribe 20 yards, and a pair of Baugh passes were wide . . . The Redskins are stronger in manpower now . . . Besides Youel and Saeny, they'll have the following players they didn't have before: Fullback Hank Hollar, Halfbacks Steve Bagarus and Howie Livingston, and End Herb Shoener .

Philadelphia's Shibe Park, capacity of 37,000, is certain to be a sellout for the year's most critical eastern division game . . . Eagle headquarters yesterday sold more than $7000 worth of tickets, the line forming long before the ticket office opened . . . It was the Eagles' biggest sale for a single day

Bo and Jim Swap Kudos

Coaches Jim Tatum of Maryland and Bo Rowland of George Washington, beaten by a combined score of 111-20 last Saturday, had warm words for each other at yesterday's Touchdown Club get-together.

"Tough Duke beat us 62-0, and Maryland beat us only 47-0, Maryland has the better team," said Rowland.

"If we had a choice of the two next week, we'd rather play Duke . . . but that's no challenge to Duke. We play 'em next year, and that's soon enough," drawled Rowland.

His voice breaking over Rowland's kind comparison, Tatum replied, "And I believe G. W. will lick Georgetown this Saturday."

Tatum quickly regained his composture, straightened his tie, and continued, "In my five years as a head coach, I'd often wondered how it would feel to get beat real bad. I guess I had to play North Carolina Saturday to learn."

"Aw no you didn't," interrupted Rowland. "I've been at this business for 24 years. You know dern well that if you wanted to find out all you had to do was ask me."

AAC Decides Playoff Sites

Cleveland, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—Commissioner Jonas Ingram of the All America Football Conference today announced a schedule of playoffs to be followed if the Eastern or Western Divisions end in ties.

If the Eastern Division is a three way New York-Buffalo-Baltimore tie, Buffalo will play at New York Wednesday, December 8, and the winner goes to Baltimore, December 12.

If the Eastern Division is a two-way tie, the December 12 playoff will be New York at Baltimore, Buffalo at Baltimore or Buffalo at New York. If San Francisco and Cleveland tie in the Western Division, they will play off December 12, at Cleveland.

Winner Only 4-5s Second Off Records

By Walter Haight

Bowie, Md., Nov. 15.—A 22-year-old track record was missed by only four fifths of a second as Brookmeade Stables' Chains won the $3500 Bel Air Purse, sixth and feature race here today, in a thrilling stretch battle with Mrs. J. V. Stewart's popular Maryland-bred colt, Dr. Almac.

Apprentice Clarence Picou was atop his first winner of the meeting when he drove Chains to the front in the final strides and his mount won by a head while completing the mile and 70 yards in 1:43 4-5.

The track mark of 1.43 was set by Flat Iron in 1926 and matched several years later by Sortie.

Chains, the favorite at $4.60 for $2, and Dr. Almac fought head and head for the last sixteenth of a mile while Christiana Stable's Mark Up, who set the early pace, dropped back to finish third about three lengths behind the leaders. Treplow Stable's Friar Tuck took the fourth money.

The second program of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association's 13-day meeting attracted about 8000 fans and the betting was spirited although Chins was the first favorite to meet with success.

Chains got into the BelAir Purse under only 105 pounds and Picou cleverly took the son of Firethorn and Handcuff back off the early pace on the first turn. Leaving the three-quarter pole, chains moved up to third behind Mark Up and Dr. Almac and continued in that position until the field straightened away for the drive down the stretch.

Several 2-year-olds being pointed for the $10,000-added Endurance Handicap to be run on Thanksgiving Day were given conditioning outing in the fourth race on today's card and C. E. Tuttle's Double Brandy came from next to last to win in 1:44 2-5 for a mile and 70 yards.

After getting to the front momentarily on the last bend, Beverly Broun's Magna Charta tired to finish third about six lengths in back of Gnu and 12 lengths in front of D. A. Rosenbaum's Friendly Frank. The first four horses to cross the line are eligible for the Endurance Handicap.

Mrs. J. V. Stewart's Singing Doll was teamed up with the clever apprentice, Benny Civitello, in the fifth race and proved a winning combination at a $7.40 for $2.

Going Airy, carrying the Ella K. Bryson banners, picked up the place money about a length and a half in front of Mrs. W. W. Vaughan's Briar White, a rank outsider in the field.

Duseks Victors On Uline Mat

Wally and Rudy Dusek pinned Frank Hewitt and Jim Wallis in the featured team match of last night's Uline Arena wrestling card.

In other matches, Rocco Columbo and Gezq Tako drew; Red Kirkpatrick defeated Arnold Skaland; and Pete Peterson won from George Sikorski.

Terp Harrier Sets Record

Bob Palmer, Maryland's sophomore sensation, broke his own 4-mile course record yesterday to lead the Old Liners in successful defense of their Southern Conference cross-country championship.

In winning his second straight conference title, Palmer finished in 19 minutes 40 seconds, 13 seconds better than the course mark he set last year against Georgetown.

Coach Jim Kehoe's team, undefeated in dual competition the past two seasons, retained its championship easily by placing seven among the first 15. Maryland compiled 27 points to second place VPI's 73, the low score winning

The other team scores were: North Carolina 118, William and Mary 135, North Carolina State 140, Duke 164, Davidson 166, VMI 170, and Richmond 180.

The order of finish of the first 15 among the 76 starters was:

The Tiger pitching staff was one of the great disappointments of 1948. Only Hal Newhouser, who won 21 games while losing 12, lived up to advance billing.

There have been reports, not confirmed, that all but Newhouser might be placed on the trading block if the Tigers find themselves in a position to better the team.

Rolfe's successor in the Tiger farm system was not announced. Nor did the new manager give any hint of the coaching aides he will select. Arthur Mills and Riger (Doc) Cramer were dropped and Bill Sweeney, the third coach under O'Neill, resigned several weeks ago.

In 1942, Rolfe quit active play to become basketball and baseball coach at Yale University. In 1946, however, Joe McCarthy, then managing the Yankees, called him back as a coach.

In 1947, the Tigers took him over and named him director of their minor league clubs.

DiMaggio Has Spur Removed From Heel

Baltimore, Nov. 15 (AP).—Joe Di Maggio, New York Yankee outfielder, was operated on today at Johns Hopkins Hospital for removal of a bone spur on his right heel.

Chisox Sell Taft Wright To Athletics

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP).—Outsold by the Chicago White Sox to fielder Taft Wright, 35, today was the Philadelphia Athletics. The Sox described the sale as the opener in other deals with the Athletics.

Wright, who joined the White Soox in 1940, batted .279 last season after a major league hitting mark of .320 for seven previous seasons, including two with the Washington Nats in 1938-39.

Wright's selling price was undisclosed.

Boston Red Sox Release Moses

Boston, Nov. 15 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox today released Wally Moses, 37-year-old outfielder.

Manager Joe McCarthy said he wanted to make room for three young outfielders—Tom Wright, who was with the Sox at the tail-end of last season, and Tom O'Brien and George Wilson coming up from Birmingham.

Moses, who had a lifetime batting average of close to .300, broke into the major leagues with the Philadelphia Athletics in 1935.

Moses played in 76 games for the Red Sox last season. He hit for .261.

Roller Rink Opens Nov. 23

Alice Williams, Washington's 13-year old national women's junior speed skating champ, will appear in a special competition at the opening of the new Alexandria Roller Skating Arena on the evening of November 23.

This newest link in the America-on-Wheels chain, located on Montgomery blvd. and St. Aseph st., will accommodate 3000 skaters at one time. Peggie Opie, 19, of Ossining, N. Y., who won the senior free-style championship, will be the professional at the new rink.

like to practice away from tourists."

Despite their 62-0 whacking at the hands of Duke Saturday, Rowland and his Colonials feel they can take the Hoyas at Griffith Stadium Saturday. If they do, it'll be the first time in the 58-year history of the 18-game series that the Colonials have won.

They've lost every game except two, which they tied, and have only scored in six of the tilts.

At the beginning of the season, Rowland felt his club had a chance to win three games—V. P. I., The Citadel and Georgetown. V.P.I. and The Citadel fell, as expected, but the Colonials surprised Rowland and themselves by adding Virginia to the list and are now out for their biggest victory—Georgetown.

The Colonials won't be at their physical best for the brush. Guard Charlie Gunner and Center Tal Dredge are definitely out of the game.

Over on the Hilltop, the Hoyas clowned their way through a short practice playing touch football.

"It's been a rough season for us," Coach Jack Hagerty said, "and the boys don't feel too good after that beating (36-7) Villanova gave us Friday night.

"Let 'em take it easy for a couple of days, and then we'll buckle down to work. May as well have fun now."

Hoya Grads Hold Smoker

Georgetown's old grads will assemble for a G Club smoker on Friday night at the Washington Hotel on the eve of the Georgetown-George Washington game at Griffith Stadium.

Among those who will attend are former football heroes Tom Gormely, Harry Costello, Dr. Bill Vusack, Bill Martin, Zube Sullivan, Paully Byrne and Dr. Jack Hagerty. Georgetown's great basketball team of 1935 will be represented by Zola, Tommy Nolan, Carroll Shaw, Harry Bassin, Don Gibeau and Freddy Mesmer.

Charlestown Sets Fall Meet Rules

Charles Town, W. Va., Nov. 16.—A. J. Boyle, president and general manager of the Charles Town Jockey Club, issued the following notice to owners whose horses are not stabled on the grounds:

"Owners of horses stabled outside the premises of the Charles Town Jockey Club, Inc., wishing to race at the fall meeting (opening November 29) shall file list of same with the management and have same approved before entries are made, giving name, age and for what selling price they last ran, and whether they are maidens or winners, if winners—date of last race won. Application for blank forms of approval can be had upon request to the Charles Town Jockey Club, Inc.

R. I. Runner Wins IC4A

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Defending Champion Bob Black of Rhode Island State today scored a repeat victory in the fortieth annual IC4A cross-country championships.

Black covered the 5-mile course in Van Cortlandt Park in 25 minutes and four-tenths of a second to win by 200 yards over Horace Ashenfelter of Penn State. Ashenfelter was runner-up to Black last year, too.

Michigan State won the team title with a low score of 55.

Black's time bettered his own one-year course record of 25:37.1. The course was changed last year and his winning time automatically became the standard then.

Browning Ross of Villanova, a member of the United States Olympic track and field team, was third. Ross competed in the Olympic Steeplechase event.

Dick Church of Syracuse was fourth and Warren Druetzler of Michigan State was fifth.

Uline Midget Card Completed

Director Tom Lane last night announced that 14 big name drivers have accepted bids to compete in the weekly midget automobile competition set for Uline Arena Thursday night.

Ernie McCoy, winner of the last two feature events at Uline's heads the list which also includes Carl Miller, Charlie Miller, Vernon and Walt Gregory, Don Gordon, Dee Toran, Mike Joseph, Shorty Bowers, Mike Nazaruk, Vic Sloan, Clarence LaRue, Larry Bloomer and Buddy Powers also will compete. Lane hereafter intends bringing drivers in by invitation only.

Heiress Sues To Get Million

Mrs. Madeleine du Pont Ruoff, daughter of the late multimillionaire Alfred I. du Pont, filed suit yesterday in District Court to recover her fortune of more than one million dollars seized by the Alien Property Custodian.

Mrs. Ruoff, through her attorney, Raoul Berger, challenged the right of the Government to seize the property of American citizens who marry enemy aliens. The Government contends, however, that Mrs. Ruoff is a German citizen.

Mrs. Ruoff went to Europe in the 1920s and married a German, thus losing her American citizenship. In 1931, after the other marriage ended, she married Hermann Ruoff of Germany, and in 1933 returned here and was repatriated. She then returned to Germany with her husband and remained there with him until 1946, when she came back to this country.

When industrialist-financier Alfred I. du Pont died in 1935, his estate was valued at 50 million dollars. The daughter obtained stocks and a trust fund.

But at present Mrs. Ruoff, who resides at Mountainhome, Pa., is "having difficulty raising money for living expenses," according to Berger.

Her property seized under the Trading with the Enemy Act included, stocks, bonds, debts, Pennsylvania real estate, and trust funds.

16 Indicted

Eight persons were charged with complicity in Washington's numbers racket by the District grand jury yesterday.

The charges were among 16 indictments returned by the talesmen in District Court.

Stephen Ealey, 32, of 106 Canal st. sw., was accused of operating a lottery, possession of numbers slips and setting up a gaming table for race-horse bets.

Helen Hamilton, 36, of 635 N st. nw., was charged with taking numbers bets in a restaurant.

Jointly charged with lottery operation were Ralph W. McKnight, 36, of 836 Division ave. ne; Othello Washington, 38, 2029 Flagler pl. nw.; Charles King, 29, 1343 Q st. nw.; Ben C Jackson, 51, 612 Kenilworth ave. ne., and Nancy Buxton, 50, 1711 Euclid st. ne.

The other numbers demendant was Marvin W. Jones, 30, of 1012 Park rd. nw.

Charged with stealing $81 from John T. Brinkley, 80, of 311 3d st. se., was Allen S. Jackson, 48, of 23 Virginia ave. sw. According to police, Jackson used a 12-year-old boy to go through Brinkley's pockets. The boy was held for Juvenile Court action.

Abraham L. Johnson, 36, 4421 E st. se., was charged with attempting to take indecent liberties with a 15-year-old newspaper delivery boy.

Four men were charged with the $75 holdup of the Little Tavern at 718 H st. ne. The defendants are Vincent W. Bateman, 25, of Baltimore, Md.; John E. Deadmon, 44, of 3710 9th st. nw.; Lubbie D. Harris, 28, of Baltimore, Md., and John L. Steele, 29, of Norfolk, Va.

Woman Has 25th Operation, Hopes to Walk After 28th

The Washington Post

HOPES TO WALK—Mrs. Richard C. Shreve, 40

By Robert P. Jordan
Post Reporter

If Mrs. Richard C. Shreve were writing a book, she'd be just about to wind it up with a happy ending.

Actually she's in Emergency Hospital recovering from her twenty-fifth operation. Three more are in prospect, perhaps more.

But the way she figures it, about two years from now that happy ending will become a fact. So far as she is concerned, the book is plotted and written right down to the last chapter.

It started back on January 18, 1947. She was waiting for a bus at the corner of Nichals ave. and Atlantic st. sw. about 5:30 p. m. Seemingly out of nowhere came a careening taxi which mounted the curb and struck her. Both her legs were terribly crushed.

They said she'd never walk again.

She was unconscious for 18 days. Then came months of pain, operations. And something else.

Mrs. Shreve, 39, wasn't married at the time of her accident. She was engaged, however, to Richard C. Shreve, a personnel supervisor at the Naval Research Laboratory. Just six months after her injury, she rolled down the aisle in a wheel chair to the strains of "Here Comes the Bride." Her marriage cemented her determination to walk again. Back to the hospital she went.

That's where she's been most of the time since her accident. In the 22 months, only five have been spent at the Shreve apartment, 3968 Nichols ave. sw., between operations. When she's there she gets about in a wheel chair, does the cooking, sews, and makes things.

Mrs. Shreve, pert, smiling, talkative, last night was relating something of her experiences, and of her hopes.

Mrs. Shreve tells of her operations—the endless skin grafting, the taking of bone from her hips to graft to her shattered legs. She has actually witnessed five of the operations.

Why does she want to walk again so very much? (She was five feet, five inches tall when injured—her bones were crushed so badly she is now an inch shorter.)

"There are so many things in life I've always wanted," she smiles. "I've always wanted a home. I don't like living in an apartment."

"We're planning on getting a home, depending on how this thing pans out. Just so I can have a little yard the whole way 'round and my flowers and maybe a little garden . . ."

That's the happy ending Mrs. Shreve is determined to have.

President Expects 'Courtesy' Resignations From Many Officials

A broad hint has been given to officials in half a dozen agencies that it's in order for them to submit "routine and courtesy" resignations to the President.

Several presidential appointees are known to have inquired discreetly if they were expected to submit resignations—officials who hope to keep their jobs. The answer, it's reported, has been a polite yes.

It's explained that the President should have a free hand in the selection of his advisers for his second term. Also, that he's likely to reject most of the resignations but on the other hand it's a good bet he'll pull another surprise and unexpectedly accept some of them.

LOYALTY: The Civil Service loyalty review board will hold its first hearing next week on the William Remington case. A commerce official, Remington, was accused before congressional hearings by Elizabeth Bentley, the self-confessed former Soviet spy. Miss Bentley will be asked to testify at the closed hearing, if she can be located.

SEC: The Securities & Exchange Commission is unhappy with its offices in several temporary buildings here. It plans to ask Congress to build it a permanent home here . . . POSTOFFICE has been paying a night differential for years to its employes who work Saturday and Sunday nights. Tentatively, the General Accounting Office has declared these payments to be illegal and postmasters have been warned that future payments are to be made at their own risk.

HOLIDAY: Up to this time there has been no official decision for a Christmas holiday for Federal workers. Christmas this year falls on a Saturday which means there will be no time off unless the President orders it.

However, it's known that the White House is looking with favor on a suggestion that Friday, December 24, be made a holiday in Government. In fact, I advise you to plan on it. We'll have a definite decision no later than December 1. New Year's Day also falls on a Saturday. Whether the Friday before it will be a full holiday is very much in doubt.

STORY: A Federal official I know was sure in his own mind that Dewey would be the next President. He was so confident of it that he would call worried subordinates into his private office and tell them something like this:

"I'm in solid with Tom; he and I have an understanding. When Tom gets into the White House we're going to make some changes around here; there'll be better jobs opening up, and I'll keep you in mind for one of them if you'll play ball with me."

Now the worm has hurriedly turned. The other day this same official, who's now worried himself, asked one of his election-happy employes to say a good word for him to a Democratic friend in the Senate

JOB NEWS: Civil Service today is accepting applications for personnel officer, apprenticeship representatives, highway engineer trainee, junior hand compositor and printer . . . Non-status phone operators who made eligible ratings in the recent operator test but whose ratings are not reached for certification by the next of this month must be fired along with those who either failed the test or didn't take it. This is a clear-cut Civil Service ruling.

REVENUE: Cash awards for work-saving suggestions have been given to four more Internal Revenue employes here who are: Paul R. Miller, Richard W. Barkley, Florence Stellwagen, and Helen L. Donaldson . . . HOLIDAY JOBS: The City Postoffice here is accepting applications for temporary jobs during the Christmas. Upward of 4000 will be hired during the rush season. Postoffices in nearby Maryland and Virginia also will expand.

SECRETARY FORRESTAL is one Cabinet member who appreciates the work of Government people. He recently told the Army's civilian personnel officers:

"I know the public has little awareness or understanding of the deep loyalty, of the energy or industry which the men and women in Civil Service devote to their country. It is frequently an inconspicuous service and you are subject at times to the same categorical assumption by the public that such employes all go on the pay roll because the only other alternative was the poor house or some relative.

"I have been here 8½ years and I happen to know the Government could not run without the devotion and consistent interest that is displayed by the men and women in Civil Service throughout the entire Government, and in the military establishment. Particularly, I have been impressed by the high degree of skill and understanding in the problems of handling people.

"Government service is, broadly speaking, I think, relatively underpaid for the contribution people make. In particular, the avenues to top management in Government are not adequate and it is my hope that in due course the country will come to realize that if you want competent Government it cannot be obtained by a Monday morning prayer or a speech in Congress. It has to come from human brains and human skill."

Well put, Mr. Secretary.

Auto Permit Revocation Code Change Is Held Up

Traffic Board Asks District To Delay Pending Further Study

The District Commissioners Traffic Advisory Board last night voted to request the commissioners to withhold action on proposed changes in permit revocation procedures pending further study.

Traffic Director George Keneipp has urged elimination of the existing Board of Revocation and Restoration of Operators' Permits. His plan also guaranteed traffic violators a hearing before their permits are revoked.

Under present regulations, the permit may be arbitrarily revoked with the motorist given the right to appeal for a review by the same board which revoked the permit originally.

Proposes to Act as Agent

Keneipp proposes, under his plan, to act as agent of the commissioners in conducting hearings in such cases.

While asserting that "a tremendous amount of public ill-will is growing out of the present revocation procedure," Nathan Lubar, chairman of the board's committee on laws and regulations, moved that the commissioners defer action until the question can be studied by his committee, the enforcement committee and the committee on motor vehicle administration.

Keneipp's plan was commended by Julian Brylawski, chairman of the education committee, who saw it as offering the motorist "a chance for fair play." He criticized the "arbitrariness" with which the revocation board acts in revoking permits without a hearing.

Traffic improvement methods also were discussed last night at the meeting in the District Building. Keneipp told the board that he had recommended to the Commissioners that red lights be installed at all traffic signal intersections between 1 a. m. and 6 a. m. Sole exception to this, he said, would be Rhode Island ave. nw., where the present flashing amber signals would be continued.

Keneipp said the chief traffic trouble spots were at the triple intersection of 4th st., Florida ave., and Rhode Island av. nw.; the four-ply intersection at 15th and Irving sts, 16th and Irving sts, 16th st. and Colorado rd., and 16th and Harvard sts. nw.; and at Union Plaza.

Union Plaza Changes Planned

He said he proposed by means of lights to turn traffic off Rhode Island ave. at the 4th st. and Florida ave. intersection into S st. nw.

As far as the second trouble spot centering around 15th and 16th and Irving sts. nw., is concerned, he said, "a major operation is being worked out."

"Something drastic" must be worked out to ameliorate conditions at Union Plaza, also, he said.

He reported lights will be installed shortly at 15th and W sts. nw.; New Hampshire and Florida aves. nw.; 4th st. and Pennsylvania ave. se.; 21st st. and Benning rd. ne.; Wisconsin ave. and Van Ness st. nw.; Georgia ave. and Irving st. nw., and at 14th and H sts. ne.

The director reported that 44 more traffic lights are scheduled for installation pending delivery.

A city-wide survey of commercial loading zones to eliminate as many as possible for traffic space is now being conducted, he said.

Bus Operator Held in Death Of Dr. Brown

6-Man Jury Deliberates Half-Hour; Driver To Be Arranged Today

A coroner's jury yesterday held William H. Evers, 28-year-old Capital Transit bus operator, responsible for the death, November 12 of Dr. Sara Winifred Brown, 80, a retired physician.

The six-man jury, after half hour's deliberation, ordered Evers held for action of the Municipal Court under the Negligent Homicide Act. He is slated for arraignment this morning.

Dr. Brown, a philanthropist and first alumna named to the board of trustees at Howard University, was fatally injured when she was struck by a bus operated by Evers. The retired physician was crossing K st. at 12th st. nw.

Huntley Ruff, of 528 24th st. nw., a truck driver for the Kane Transfer Co., testified Dr. Brown was crossing the street with the light in her favor when the bus turned onto K st. from 12th and struck her.

Evers, who lives at 13-U Ridge rd., Greenbelt, Md., did not testify.

Earlier, the jury found that the death of Mrs. Caroline McCauley, 67, of 1954 Columbia rd., was accidental.

Mrs. McCauley, wife of a retired Government worker, was struck by a streetcar operated by William F. Watson, 51, of 1019 B st. ne., November 6 at Columbia rd. and Mintwood pl. nw. Leonard Nessell, of 2523 14th st. nw., a Government clerk, testified Mrs. McCauley "attempted to get in front of the streetcar."

Other witnesses also testified that she stepped in the path of the streetcar.

Pilot Killed In Crash of State Plane

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 15 (Special). A Maryland Tidewater Fisheries Commission pilot was killed and his mechanic injured today in the crash of a light patrol plane in a cove near Riva.

The pilot, identified as Charles H. Masters, 27, of Eastport, had been hired about 30 days ago, commission officials said. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Emergency Hospital here.

Hospital officials said Masters apparently bled to death while pinned in the partially submerged cockpit of the plane. He eventually was freed from the wreckage by John P. Dabbs, a resident of near-by South Down Shores, who rowed a quarter of a mile across the cove to give aid.

Admitted to the hospital for treatment of facial lacerations and shock was William Hobbs, about 27, of Brooklyn, Md., a mechanic at the Lee Airport near here.

Hyattsville Exposition Is Opened

Hyattsville businessmen lifted the lid on the town's first annual business exposition last night at Hyattsville Armory, where more than 20 commercial exhibits have been installed as features of the week-long event.

The exhibit, which will be open nightly through Saturday, from 7:30 to 10:30 is sponsored by the Hyattsville Professional and Businessmen's Association, Anti-Tank Company 115 of the Maryland National Guard, and the Snyder-Farmer-Butler Post No. 3 of the American Legion.

Patterned after the recent District Home Show, its purpose is to outline to residents of the community the variety of wares offered by its merchants. Among the exhibits are lastest model automobiles, household furnishings and equipment, radios and electrical appliances and numerous other commercial products.

Admission is free but invitations must be obtained from participating merchants.

Two District Chest Units Report Today

Government and business units of the Community Chest campaign will turn in reports at a luncheon meeting today at 12:15 p. m. in the Washington Hotel, Campaign Chairman Chauncey G. Parker announced yesterday.

The Chest reported 65.71 per cent of its $4,566,790 goal filled as of last Friday.

Suburban and residential units will not report until Wednesday, Parker said. Because of the long distances these volunteers must cover, he "had to agree with unit chairmen that Tuesday would be a more productive day if the suburban workers used the day to reach contributors, instead of making the trip to campaign headquarters."

About 750 volunteers cover the 485 square miles in Prince Georges County. In Montgomery, 1200 campaigners are raising funds throughout the county's 440 square miles, and in Fairfax, 1200 workers cover 450 square miles.

Alexandria has about 500 volunteers, and Arlington County has 600 who must solicit its 24 square miles which include many large apartment developments.

"To stay on the job in these areas and drive long miles for a small gift or two, day in and day out, call for real devotion to the cause, to the welfare of the community that is the Nation's Capital," Parker said.

The five suburban units have a combined quota of $410,053. Washington's residential unit, with 2400 volunteers, has a quota of $482,479.

Greenbelt Health Officer Pay Held Up Pending Investigation

The Greenbelt (Md.) Town Council last night voted to withhold part of the town health officer's 1947 salary pending an investigation as to his services during the period, for which he is still unpaid.

The action was precipitated by a statement from Mrs. Elizabeth Harrington, a council member, that she was "uncertain" whether the health officer, Dr. William Eisen, had performed his "required duties" during the last six months of 1947.

Mrs. Harrington said she received complaints that Dr. Eisen had not been present for scheduled innoculation clinics, and said she knew from personal observation that he had failed to conduct physical examinations in the town's schools at any time during the year.

A motion calling for an investigation of the health officer's services was adopted after the council was informed by Town Manager Charles T. McDonald that the health officer had not received $886 of last year's salary. The salary holdup, McDonald said, was the result of a misunderstanding over the legality of a salary reduction ordered by the previous town council.

During the discussion, Mayor Thomas J. Canning remarked that "after all the stories I've heard about his not being on the job half the time I'd certainly want to see more proof that he performed his duties before approving the payment."

The town manager was asked to have Dr. Eisen present at the next regular meeting of the council. Dr. Eisen serves the town as health officer on a part-time basis, currently drawing $1260 a year.

In other action, the Greenbelt Council last night authorized the town manager to accept a Public Buildings Administration lease on the Greenbelt Community Building to forestall its sale to the Prince Georges County Board of Education.

Fake Holdup Was Planned, Police Say

Police Announce He Fixed $3000 Affair; Accomplice Skipped With Money, Is Belief

The 23-year-old manager of a Giant Food Store at 10th and U sts. nw admitted, police announced yesterday, that he and an accomplice had planned the $3000 robbery there November 1.

The manager, Robert Garsh, son of prize fight manager Harry Garsh, was charged with grand larceny and making a false report. He elected to forfeit $25 collateral on the latter charge and was released under $1000 bond for his appearance today in Municipal Court on the larceny charge.

The accomplice, described by police as a light-skinned Negro about 25 years old, has not been apprehended. Police said he left Washington with all of the money the day of the thert.

Garsch, who lives at 2808 S st., Arlington, Va., was treated at Garfield Hospital for shock after he was found unconscious on the floor of his office in the store about 10 minutes after the holdup.

He told police at the time that the bandit had struck him in the face, but admitted yesterday that it was part of the holdup plan. Police said they became suspicious of his story, since his injury did not seem serious enough to have knocked him out for that length of time.

Armed with a description of the bandit from several persons in the store, they soon learned his identity, they said. They learned, further, that he and Garsch had been seen several times together.

In announcing the confession, Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett said Garsh was confronted with these facts and finally admitted that the whole thing had been planned. Garsch was quoted as saying the thief "had been after him" about a week to stage the fake holdup and had visited the store twice November 1 before taking the money.

According to Garsh's original story, the man gained access to the office by showing a slip of paper which apparently was a check he wanted cashed, then put his hand in his pocket as though he had a gun and forced Garsh to open a safe concealed beneath the floor of the office. He placed the $3000 in bills in a paper bag but refused to take the change, Garsh had told police.

Civil Defense Report Wins Favor Here

Approval "in principle" of the report of the Office of Civil Defense Planning on atomic warfare protection was voted last night by the Interfederation Council of the Greater Metropolitan Area of Washington.

The council, composed of delegates from all federations of citizens associations of Greater Washington, met in Room 531 of the Evening Star Building.

The council voted to request District Commissioners and the Governors of Maryland and Virginia to consult the council on any appointments to a Greater Washington civilian committee if such a committee is set up.

A motion to request setting aside of land which might be used as the right-of-way to join segments of Western, Eastern and Southern aves., was referred to the federation's committee on zoning, highways and city planning.

The motion was offered after the council heard a report that a building has been started near Maple and Carroll sts., Takoma Park, on land which may be on the proposed right of way of Western ave.

Department's Control Of Play Areas Backed

The Lincoln Park Citizens Association last night directed a resolution at the District Commissioners, approving control of playgrounds by the Recreation Department.

Meeting at Epworth Methodist Church, 13th st. and North Carolina ave. ne., the 25 members present also indorsed a proposal that District teachers be given 10 days' sick leave annually.

Indorsement of individual hearings for persons facing suspension or revocation of their driver's licenses also was voted at the busy session, as was a recommendation that Adelbert W. Lee be reappointed to the School Board.

West Kensington Civic Body Meets

The newly formed West Kensington Civic Association held its first meeting last night at Kensington, Md., Elementary School.

Members of the organization, representing more than 200 families in the area, selected H. Donald Leatherwood of 62 Knowles ave., Kensington, as temporary chairman, and adopted a constitution to govern the organization.

In its first business action, the association named a three-man committee to study the possibility of establishing a cooperative telephone company to service Kensington, now without phones.

Parnall Thomas (left), head of the House Committee investigating un-American activities, is shown leaving the United States Marshal's office yesterday after being fingerprinted following his arraignment on charges of defrauding the Government through payroll padding. He denied the charges. He is accompaniad by his attorney, William Collins

Police to Keep Tabs on Minor Sex Offenders

Repeaters to Face Mental Tests and Hospital Treatment

United States Attorney George Morris Fay disclosed yesterday that his office and the Metropolitan Police Department will keep records of minor sex offenders who have escaped with the charge of disorderly conduct.

Fay said records have been lacking of men who repeatedly have been found to be abusing themselves in public places or who have "made passes at other men."

Henceforth, a record will be kept of those charged with indecent disorderly conduct.

Fay said he will charge repeaters under the District's new sex law which provides for mental examination and incarceration in St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Briton Tells About New Heart Studies

Britain's physicians and surgeons have opened a new field of research into the characteristics of the human heart, Dr. John McMichael, University of London professor of surgery, said last night.

Speaking to more than 500 District physicians, surgeons and medical students, Dr. McMichael discussed "Some Peripheral Vascular Reactions of Surgical Interest," at the William C. Borden lecture at the George Washington University School of Medicine, 1335 H st. nw.

Dr. McMichael, a medical pioneer in diagnosis of different types of heart failure, said new medical determinations have been realized by putting a hollow metal tube into a vein of the upper arm, passing it through the side of the human body and into one of the heart's chambers to gauge heart reaction to shock and hemorrhage.

The Scotch surgeon said this form of injection of a catheter, more commonly passed through mucous tracts of the body to withdraw fluids from an internal cavity, was first tried by a German surgeon in 1929.

Dr. McMichael reported that Britain's wartime surgeons have obtained, for the first time in human history, the blood flow rate in human bones.

He said recent discoveries of the heart's characteristics have created more problems for research than they have solved. Dr. McMichael promised his listeners that "any research in the field of cardiac characterization" richly rewards effort and concentration with results.

Jury Finds

Man Guilty Of Assaulting Girl, 8

A District court grand jury last night found Harold D. Meekins, 32, of 2800 13th st. nw., guilty of assault with intent to obtain carnal knowledge of an 8-year-old Alexandria, Va., girl.

Meekins had been charged with having carnal relations with the girl July 1 in his room at 1325 Harvard st. nw., where he then lived.

The jury returned its verdict on a lesser charge of assault and attempt at carnal knowledge after a 6-hour deliberation and Judge Richmond B. Keech adjourned the court until 9:30 a. m. today without passing sentence.

According to testimony, Meekins, a painter, went to Alexandria to get the girl, who is a distant relative by marriage, to stay with him and his wife.

A statement signed by Meekins after his arrest and introduced in court said Meekins had relations with the girl on his bed while his wife was away from their home. In the statement Meekins claimed the girl had tried to seduce him and that he had been drinking heavily.

Hopewell Fire, Blast Cause $50,000 Loss

Hopewell, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—Hopewell's waterfront was shaken today by near catastrophe—an explosion and $50,000 fire on a barge and tug loaded with 171,000 gallons of gasoline and 52,000 gallons of fuel oil at City Point Terminal.

A breathless two hours saw firemen pouring airfoam and fog into the blazing tank as the fire spread to the tug, Fisher No. 15, tied alongside the barge, and threatened large gasoline storage tanks adjacent to the pier.

Fire equipment from Richmond, nearby Byrd Airport, Camp Lee, Petersburg and Norfolk was called, but the blaze was under control before all of it arrived.

The fire gutted the tug, which burned loose and drifted down the river, and left the No. 4 tank of the barge Beverley burned out. A good part of her hull was twisted and warped.

No theory had been advanced as to the cause of the explosion and blaze on the tanker.

Captain Q. D. Ainsley, owner and master of the barge and tug, estimated the loss in damages to tug, barge and cargo at about $50,000.

He said it was impossible to get a good look at the barge, but that damage to the Fisher, gutted and with only her hull remaining, would run about $30,000.

Detectives Trap Two Youths Charged With Housebreaking

Two youths yesterday walked into a police trap with the loot from a housebreaking that had not been reported.

Police said the two boys, 15 and 16, had several hundred dollars' worth of clothes when they walked into their room at the Embassy Hotel, 1627 16th st. nw., where detectives were waiting at 1:30 a. m.

The clothes were traced to Barsky's Tailor Shop, 1622 Q st. nw., which had been entered a short time before, police said.

The youths also were charged with the theft of $784 in cash and five cigarette lighters from the Westchester Pharmacy, 4000 Cathedral ave. nw. Irwin Lupin, proprietor, said the store was entered Saturday night. Police said they found $353 in the hotel room.

The youths also will be charged with assaulting and robbing Phillip Garcia, 50, of 1740 P st. nw., Sunday night after he had invited them to his apartment for a drink. Police said he was robbed of $18 and a ring. He was treated at Emergency Hospital for head contusions.

The ring, in an Indian head design, was observed on the finger of one of the youths when the pair was being questioned, police said.

The youths said they had been in Washington about a month after coming here from Florida. Police are holding them for questioning about other housebreakings.

Two other robberies were reported to police yesterday. Maurice J. Robinson, proprietor of a tailor shop at 1835 7th st. nw., was admitted to Freedmen's Hospital in serious condition after he was beaten and robbed of $75 by two men in his shop Sunday night.

Bess M. Johnson, of 1516 D st. ne., reported that $126 in cash was taken from her pocketbook Friday while she was standing on a streetcar loading platform at 7th and F sts. nw.

High Court Will Review Plea for New Griffin Trial

Attorney Claims Perjured Testimony Used to Convict Slayer of Hunter

The Supreme Court yesterday agreed to review a contention by counsel for Baxter Griffin, convicted of murder, that he should be granted a new trial.

Griffin was convicted of fatally shooting Lee Hunter, 23, at Hunter's home, 1718 9th st. nw., following an argument over a card game in February, 1947.

John W. Holzworth, attorney for Griffin, claimed new evidence and perjured testimony by witnesses warranted a new trial for Griffin. Holzworth charged that the United States attorney's office deliberately suppressed evidence that Hunter had his hand on a knife and cards in his pocket when shot. This substantiates Griffin's plea that he acted in self defense, Holzworth argued.

District Court had turned down a motion for a new trial. The United States Court of Appeals later refused an appeal from the District Court ruling. The Supreme Court's action yesterday took the form of granting a review of the Court of Appeals' action.

Griffin has received a series of delays in execution dates since he was originally sentenced to be electrocuted in July, 1947. The most recent stay was granted by Chief Justice Fred Vinson last July 8, after the apparently doomed man had already eaten his "last supper." Execution, set for the next morning, was stayed pending the appeal to the Supreme Court. A previous appeal to the Supreme Court was denied in February.

Bernstein Killers Get Execution Delay

Two convicted holdup-slayers were given a "final extension" of life yesterday in District Court when Judge Alexander Holtzoff postponed their executions from November 19 to December 3.

The men are Jesse James Patton, 23, and Reginald J. Wheeler, 27. They were convicted of murder in the fatal holdup shooting of Maurice L. Bernstein, a druggist, in the summer of 1946.

First sentenced to die in March, 1947, they have been given 11 postponements as their attorneys presented legal moves in their behalf.

This time, Judge Holtzoff granted the stay in order that the men may take a habeas corpus appeal to the Supreme Court and to give them time to perfect new petitions for executive clemency. President Truman has already denied their first petition.

James J. Laughlin, Curtis Mitchell and Wesley S. Williams, attorneys for Patton and Wheele, filed the habeas corpus petitions on the premise that during an appeal, the Chief Judge of the United States Court of Appeals did not participate in the decision.

Madame Yvonne Loses Appeal For New Trial

Madame Yvonne, Washington spiritualist, yesterday lost a plea for a new trial in connection with her recent conviction of receiving $18,000 in stolen bank funds. Her four-year sentence, however, was held up pending appeal to a higher court.

Defense Attorney Glen H. Davis, Arlington, said he would apply to the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals for a writ of error in a move to take the case there on appeal.

The motion to set aside the verdict and order a retrial was denied by Judge William P. Woolls in Alexandria Corporation Court. The judge stayed execution of sentence for 60 days.

Madame Yvonne, whose real name is Eulalia Matthews, lives at 3944 Benning rd. ne. She was convicted November 5 of receiving the money from David Briggs, erstwhile bank janitor, who had confessed stealing it from the First National Bank of Alexandria in June, 1947.

Area News in Brief

Poison Puts Five Children in Hospital

Physicians at Children's Hospital yesterday cautioned parents against storing common household poisons within reach of small children.

Occasioning the warning, they said, were emergency admissions over the weekend of five children, ranging in age from 1 to 3 years, for accidental poisonings.

One had swallowed turpentine, two had taken campor and two others oil of wintergreen compounds.

All were reported out of danger last night.

Offices Get New Locks

New locks are being supplied for several offices in the New House Office Building because a thief stole 17 keys over the weekend. The keys, kept on five rings, for doors of rooms 1523 to 1541, inclusive, were taken from the office of Archie E. Ridgell, building superintendent, police said.

Delinquency Case Fine

Theodore Austin, 40, was fined $50 in Juvenile Court yesterday after he entered a nolo contendere plea to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of two teen-age girls by giving them intoxicants.

Austin, father of a 16-year-old girl, appeared before Judge Walter J. Casey.

According to police, a 12-year-old and a 15-year-old, daughters of neighbors, came to Austin's room at 1324 10th st. nw., last June 11 to get his daughter to play with them.

Austin refused unless they took a drink, police said. The girls became so intoxicated, police reported, that they were carried unconscious to the Women's Bureau.

Wife-Beater Jailed

Charley Myer, jr., 35, of 1250 7th st. nw., was sentenced to 120 days in jail yesterday in Municipal Court on a charge of beating his wife, Mary Beatrice Myer, 33. Myer pleaded self-defense. Police said the beating took place during an argument Sunday at their home.

Last Man Leaves

Montgomery County welfare and health officials yesterday finally prevailed on George Peters, 70, to agree to leave the county alms house at Rockville.

Peters was the last resident of the alms house, which was ordered closed several months ago. He had refused to leave for sentimental reasons.

Officials said the legless indigent signed removel papers yesterday and was transferred to Ritchie State Hospital near Blue Ridge Summit, Md.

Woman Fined $300

Mrs. Ellen Briggs Chapman, 47, no known address, was fined $300 or 180 days in jail yesterday in Municipal Court when she was found guilty of 24 cases of petty larceny and false pretenses. According to police, Mrs. Chapman obtained merchandise valued at almost $200 in department stores by using the charge account of friends and former neighbors. She told the court when arraigned in September that she had spent the summer sleeping on park benches.

Woman Held for Jury

Mrs. Doris Mae Leonard, 25, of 4806 Chevy Chase blvd., yesterday waived a preliminary hearing on false pretense charges in Bethesda Police Court and was ordered held for the county grand jury under $500 bond.

Mrs' Leonard is the stepdaughter of W. Marvin Smith, Justice Department lawyer who leaped five floors to his death at the Justice Department Building, October 20. She is charged with forging the names of dry-cleaning customers at her place of employment to three checks totaling $55.

Charged with gambling by playing three-card monte in the stands at the Bowie race track yesterday, Gilbert R. Wayman, 39, of 25 S st. ne., was held in $1000 bond in Hyattsville Police Court. Arrested by Prince Georges County Police Sergt. E. R. Thompson, Wayman will have a hearing November 26 in Upper Marlboro Police Court.

TV Planned at Norfolk

Larus & Brother Co., Inc., yesterday applied to the Communications Commission for a new commercial television station at Norfolk, Va.

Catholic Resettlement Head Here for Parley

MEETING OF HIERARCHY—Msgr. Edward E. Swanstrom, executive director of War Relief Services of the National Catholic Welfare Conference and chairman of the National Catholic Resettlement Council, reads day-by-day log kept by two little Polish girls since they left displaced persons camp in Germany. The director is here for the annual meeting of the Catholic Hierarchy Wednesday and Thursday at Catholic University

Overloading Drive Halts 450 Trucks

Richmond, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—The State Highway Department today was making a drive to stop overloading of trucks.

In a surprise raid on Route 1 from 2 p.m., yesterday until 6 a.m., today, a weighing crew nabbed one out of five trucks checked.

A count early today showed the crew had checked 450 trucks in the 16-hour period. Eighty-seven, or 19.2 per cent, were charged with violation of the load limit laws.

Travelers on Route 1 reported that scores of trucks were jammed up north and south of the loading crew's location at the Chickahominy River Bridge, 6 miles out of Richmond, apparently in an effort to "sit out" the department's surprise campaign.

Grand Jury Draws Blank On Gambling

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 15 (AP).—The Washington County grand jury reported today there is probably plenty of gambling and bookmaking going on around here but it can't get the evidence on anybody.

"Little can be done to correct the evil," it said, "until such time as the public becomes conscious of its duty by reporting violations."

The grand jury said it also found that Sheriff Joseph D. Baker had violated no law by permitting county jail prisoners to work outside for private contractors.

This is a rather common practice, the jury said, and the Maryland General Assembly should pass a law legalizing it.

Both matters were brought to a head last week when Chief Judge Joseph D. Mish, a Hagerstown resident, ordered the grand jurors to investigate.

He warned that he would bring in State and Federal law enforcement officers because he is convinced there is little effort by city and county authorities to "locate and suppress this flourishing gambling business."

The judge invited citizens to come forward.

In its report, the jurymen said not a single complaint against any individual or establishment had been made.

Police Car Voted for Hyattsville

Hyattsville City Council last night voted to purchase a new police car to facilitate collection of receipts from 178 parking meters.

The car will be paid for from meter funds. Meters, since they were installed October 12, have yielded $813, while an additional $144 has been collected in fines for violations, it was announced.

The council also voted to ask the State Roads Commission to authorize parking at a 45-degree angle on the north side of Hamilton st., in the Queens Chapel shopping center. Merchants complained that parallel parking regulations has caused business to drop 10 to 50 per cent.

Dance at Airport

Final plans for a dance at National Airport, November 27, will be discussed by members of the District of Columbia Chapter, Rainbow Division Veterans, at 8:15 p. m. Friday. The meeting will be held at the National Press Club.

Correspondent C. S. Groves Is Dead at 80

Charles Stuart Groves, 80, Washington correspondent for the Boston Globe for nearly 35 years, died early yesterday at Garfield Hospital following a heart attack.

Mr. Groves

A native of Montreal, Canada, Mr. Groves came to Hingham, Mass., and joined the staff of the Globe nearly 60 years ago. He attained early prominence as a political writer and was assigned to Washington as the newspaper's Capital correspondent in 1914 after he had interrupted his newspaper career for two years to become secretary to Massachusetts Gov. Curtis Guild.

One of the Capital's best-known newsmen, Mr. Groves was closely associated with a number of high-ranking officials here and in Massachusetts. He was an intimate friend of the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, and was the author of "Henry Cabot Lodge—the Statesman," an account of the Senator's public service.

He also was a close friend of the late President Calvin Coolidge.

Mr. Groves, who lived at 1742 Q st. nw., was a member of the Gridiron Club of which he served as president in 1930; the Chevy Chase Club, National Press Club and St. Thomas Episcopal Church.

He is survived by his wife, the former Emily Cross Blossom, of Hingham; two sons, John Groves of New York City and Churchill B. Groves, assistant classified advertising manager of the Evening Star, and a daughter, Mrs. Paul Squibb of Los Olivos, Calif.

Funeral services will be held at noon Wednesday at St. Thomas Church, Church and 18th sts. nw. Burial will be private.

Group Would Transfer Playground Control

Transfer of the District's 62 disputed recreation areas from the Recreation Board to the Interior Department was advocated last night by the Capitol View Civic Association, meeting at Richardson School, 53d and Blaine sts. ne.

This action was taken by the group in recognition of the Interior Department's "known stand in opposition to segregation."

The Highway Department was asked to improve East Capitol st. to the District Line and to construct a bridge over the Anacostia River. This would provide an alternate route to the downtown section and alleviate the rush-hour congestion on Benning rd., it was said.

Hit-Run Death Truck Found But Driver Is Still Missing

Fairfax County police said yesterday they have found the truck, but not the driver, that was involved in the hit-run traffic death Saturday night of Robert Lee Wells, 19, of 6 E. Swann ave., Alexandria.

Police said the truck belonged to Carter Magill, a dairy farmer near Floris, Va., who notified police when he returned from a weekend in New York that he found his truck apparently had been in an accident.

A warrant charging manslaughter was sworn out against James Fincham, 29, one of Magill's farmers, after police said they had taken a statement from another man naming Fincham as driver of the truck. Fincham disappeared Sunday morning, police said.

Wells, a Capital Airlines baggage clerk at National Airport, was killed instantly just after midnight Saturday when struck on Route No. 211, 1½ miles east of Centerville.

Navy Officer Accused Of Drunken Driving

Lieut. Comdr. Kenneth W. Garwood, 30, of the Norfolk Naval Base was charged yesterday in Municipal Court with drunken driving and leaving after colliding and was released under $800 bond.

Trial by jury was set for December 14 after Garwood pleaded innocent.

The Navy officer was arrested after a collision at 17th and P sts. nw. Sunday. John Terrell, of 4566 Lilyponds dr. ne., was named as driver of the other car and charged with failing to halt at a stop sign.

Miss Mary Alice Johnson, 23, of 1632 Nicholson st. nw., a passenger in Garwood's car, forfeited $35 collateral on drunk and disorderly charges, police said.

Motorcyclist, Child Injured in Accidents

A motorcyclist and a 4-year-old child were injured yesterday in District traffic accidents.

James Owens, 25, of 605 N. Carolina ave. se., was admitted to Emergency Hospital with a possible fractured back after his motorcycle collided with an auto, which was turning into the entrance of a parking lot at 300 Constitution ave. nw. Owens, a messenger for Macky Radio, was reported in good condition. The driver of the auto was listed as Ellen Burnett, 29, of 3705 4th st. ne.

The child, Lawrence Blair, of 1106 Shepherd ct. nw., was admitted to Children's Hospital with a fractured left leg. Police said he was injured in an alley near 9th and L sts. nw., when he was struck by a dump truck operated by Frederick Johnson, 31, of 1626 Swann st. nw.

De Grange Rites to Be In Maryland

Miss Lenore Marie de Grange, theater worker, who died following a heart attack Sunday at her home, 1756 Kilbourne pl. nw., will be buried in Williamsport, Md.

Funeral services for Miss de Grange, who devoted her life to organizing and directing children's dramatic groups here after giving up a promising stage career herself, will be held probably on Thursday at the Coffman funeral home, Martinsburg, W. Va.

While she had no close relatives, she is survived by two aunts, Miss Edith de Grange and Mrs. Bertha Appleby of Martinsburg, and an uncle, Percy de Grange of Washington.

Cared for Ill Mother

Miss deGrange, who was 67, had studied dramatics and set her heart on becoming an actress. She received an audition with David Belasco in New York, who told her she was very talented and offered to help her career. She gave up her ambition, however, to help care for her mother, who became ill with tuberculosis.

Retaining her intense interest in the theater, she organized many groups of children's players here and occasionally acted herself in amateur plays. For two years she was dramatic director for the District public schools.

Was in Religious Play

Later she gave dramatic readings, and last year appeared in a religious play, "The Christus," in several Washington churches. She left instructions that she should be buried in the white satin costume she wore for these readings.

A native of Martinsburg, she came to Washington as a girl with her parents. Her father, Col. J. William de Grangge, served 43 years in the War Department.

She was a member of the Eastern Presbyterian Church and the Washington Christian Institute. She also was a member of the Storytellers' League the Poetry Reading Society of the YWCA, and the Washington Readers Club, which will hold a memorial service for her at the close of their meeting Wednesday night at St. John's Parish Hall, 3240 O st. nw.

Miss Charlotte B. Elliott

Scarsdale, N. Y., Nov. 15 (AP).—Miss Charlotte Barnwell Elliott, 73, a member of a prominent Southern family, died today.

A relative said she died as members of her family were in Philadelphia attending the funeral of her brother, Huger Elliott, educator and architect, who died last Saturday.

Miss Elliott was the daughter of the late Dr. John B. Elliott, New Orleans, La., physician, and granddaughter of the late Bishop Shephen Elliott of Mississippi. Bishop Elliott, with two other Protestant Episcopal bishops, founded the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn.

Miss Elliott had been visiting at the Scarsdale home of a sister, Mrs. Warren W. Cunningham.

Surviving are Mrs. Cunningham, another sister, Miss Esther Huger Elliott, Highlands, N. C., and two brothers, Joseph H. Elliott, Ocean Spring, Miss., and Percival Elliott, Washington, D. C.

Funeral services will be held at Sewanee, the relative said. The time has not been decided.

Mrs. Capitola Beckman

Funeral services were held at Cumberland, Md., yesterday for Mrs. Capitola V. Beckman, 85, of 3031 7th st. ne., who died here Friday after a two-month illness.

Mrs. Beckman was born in Elk Garden, W. Va., six days after West Virginia became a State. Her husband, Daniel T. Beckman, a coal mine superintendent, died in 1909. She had lived here for eight years at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Jessie B. Keller. Mrs. Beckman's brother, Judge C. Ervin Nethken, is chairman of the West Virginia Public Service Commission. She was a member of McKinley Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, at Cumberland.

Norris Dodd's Reception Honors FAO Delegates From 57 Nations

By Elizabeth Maguire

DELEGATES of 57 member countries of the Food and Agricultural Organization attended a reception yesterday at the Shoreham Hotel. The host, Norris E. Dodd, director general of the FAO, received in the Louis XVI Room with his daughter, Mrs. Mary D. Lewis, and the deputy director general, Sir Herbert Broadley.

Representatives of every country in the FAO attended the party, as yesterday was the opening day of the annual conference being held in Washington for two weeks. The Secretary of Agriculture, Charles Franklin Brannan, who was elected chairman of the conference, came with Mrs. Brannan. Three vice chairmen of the conference also at the party were the Chinese Ambassador, Wellington Koo; the Irish Minister of Agriculture, James N. Dillon, and the Cuban delegate, Jose Casanova.

Big Crop in Finland

The Swiss Counselor and Mme. Fuchss were there, and the Finnish Minister and Mme. Jutila. Queried about the food situation in Finland, Dr. Jutila said, "we have more potatoes than we know what to do with." "And a good potato crop always means a lot of marriages," he added.

Mr. and Mrs. David Lubbock, son-in-law and daughter of Sir John Boyd-Orr, former director general of EAO, were at the party talking with Viscount Bruce of Melbourne and Lady Bruce. Sir John was not there, as he returned to London, when he resigned from the FAO last year.

Talking with the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Brannan was Dr. Norman Wright, scientific adviser to the Ministry of Food in London. He reported that while in Chicago recently he had paid a visit to Mr. Swift, and there he had been presented with a 15 pound ham. That ham, he said, would have to last an Englishman five years, according to the new bacon ration in Great Britain.

Diplomats There

A large number of Indian delegates were at the fete, including the Ambassador and Lady Rama Rau. From the Syrian Legation came the Minister and Mme. El-Khouri. Julio Ernesto Heurtematte, Commercial Counselor of Panama, had a cocktail at the party with the Ambassador of Ecuador, Augusto Dillon. The latter said Senora de Dillion was attending several teas, and that he would join her later and go on to dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Carroll Graves.

Among the several hundred other guests at the FAO reception were the Ambassador of Norway and Mme. Morgenstierne, the Ambassador of Belgium, Baron Silvercruys, the Ambassador of Italy and Signora Tarchiani, the Ambassador of the Dominican Republic and Senora de Thomen, the chief of the Belgian Economic Mission, Pierre Jaspar; the French Minister of Agriculture, Pierre Pflimlin; the special representative of the State of Israel, Eliahu Eilat, and Mrs. Eilat; the Irish Minister, Sean Nunan; the Charge d'Affaires of Iraq, Ahmed Izzet Mohammed, and the Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. Le Gallais.

New Officers Elected By District CAR

The officers are Mrs. George D. Nolan, Mrs. Ford E. Young, jr., and Col. Wade H. Cooper, vice presidents; Mrs. Clifford W. Hurley, chaplain; Mrs. Mayberry G. Hughes, recording secretary; Mrs. Robert W. Carroll, treasurer; Miss Marshall Brooke, registrar; Mrs. Charles A. Waldron, historian; Mrs. William N. Elam, Mrs. Frank C. Morrison, Mrs. Ellsworth C. Clark, Mrs. Francis M. Hoffheins, senior society presidents.

The committee chairmen are Mrs. Mary Carroll Greathouse, American Indians; Mrs. Maude Tormohlen, American music; Mrs. Jerome Butler, approved schools; Mrs. Gelebert W. Nash, auditing; Miss Mary Glenn Newell, correct use of the flag; Mrs. John Morrison Kerr, constitution and by-laws; Mrs. J. Edwin Lawton, entertainment; Mrs. H. C. McConaughty, grandmothers; Mrs. Dorothy McLean, membership; Mrs. F. P. Litchert, printing, and Mrs. Lewis B. Rhodes, publicity.

MISS HARRIET TAILER DYER
Bradford Bachrach
. . . to marry son of Justice Reed

Stanley Reed, Jr., to Marry Miss Harriet Dyer of Newport

MR. AND MRS. WALTER GURNEE Dyer of Farmlands, Newport, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Harriet Tailer Dyer, to Stanley Forman Reed, jr., of New York City, son of Associate Justice Stanley Forman Reed and Mrs. Reed of Washington and Maysville, Ky. The wedding will take place in Newport next spring.

The bride-elect was graduated frm St. Timothy's School, Catonsville, Md., in 1947, and she has been attending Barnard College. She was introduced to society at a dinner dance given in Newport in August, 1947. Her family have been prominent in New York, Rhode Island and Maryland society for generations.

Mr. Reed was graduated from Taft School, Yale University, class of 1935, and Harvard Law School in 1938. During the war he served as a naval reserve officer in the European theater, being discharged with the rank of lieutenant commander.

At the Mayflower Fashion Show

THE weekly fashion show at the Mayflower yesterday drew many Washington fashionables, including Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, Mrs. Pierpont Morgan Hamilton, Mrs. Nathaniel Luttrell and Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner. The latter was lunching with Carroll Righter.

Mrs. James L. Nixon, Mrs. Walter Maloney and Mrs. Harold Cook sat at a table together, and at another table sat Miss Hilda Vallarino with a group of young friends.

Others enjoying the fashion show included Mrs. Hope Ridings Miller, Mrs. William C. Douglas, Mrs. Robert Sherrod, Mrs. Douglas Hatch, Mrs. Bruce Smith, Mrs. Walter Wyatt, Mrs. Mitchell Palmer and Mrs. Fred A. Britten.

Mrs. Whitney, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Luttrell and Mrs. Miller were interviewed at luncheon for last night's weekly broadcast called "Lunching in the Mayflower with Bab Lincoln."

Sees Marshall Plan Restoring Europe's Faith

GOOD WILL and goods are the two main contributions of the Marshall Plan, according to Gordon Huson, Second Secretary of the British Embassy. Mr. Huson spoke yesterday before the Women's National Democratic Club at a luncheon held at 12:30 o'clock.

Another important factor to bear in mind in discussing the Marshall Plan, the speaker added, is the fact that supplementary aid flowing to England from Australia, Canada and South Africa has enabled Great Britain to pass on to Europe about 40 per cent of the aid from the United States.

In the world of true values stated Mr. Huson, restoration of faith is more important than contribution of goods. "Lack of faith in the future," he said, "was the tragedy in postwar Europe." Our interest in the future of Europe, he maintained, has brought faith back.

It was on this faith and also on dollars provided, Mr. Huson said, that the Organization for European Economic Cooperation was founded. In tracing results of ERP, Mr. Huson pointed out that after the coal and sterling crisis of 1947, his country was running downhill rapidly when the Marshall Plan came to the rescue. American generosity and willingness to cooperate in Europe, he said, restored confidence, and today Great Britain has reduced her debt from the 1947 rate of 10 million dollars a day to three million dollars a day. Another tangible result noted by Mr. Huson is the increase in volume of exports to a level 40 per cent in volume above 1938.

In explaining Britain's dire straits, the speaker brought out the fact that at the close of the Second World War, England was worse off in international indebtedness than even Germany was in 1922.

Looking on the bright side, Mr. Huson announced that jam and marmalade will no longer be rationed in England as of December 5, and the sugar ration will be raised from 8 to 10 ounces a week. A list of other commodities and raw materials will also be released then by the Board of Trade.

Closing his remarks, Mr. Huson said, "ERP aid has in fact made possible a future not only for Britain, but for all the participating countries of Europe within the democratic framework which they nurture and love."

Mr. Huson was introduced at the luncheon by Mrs. Norman Littell, chairman of the program committee. Others seated at the speaker's table were Mrs. Samuel Herrick, Mrs. Melvin Hildreth, Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor, Mrs. Hoyer Millar.

Love Is Shadowed by Two Obstacles: Man's Divorce, Taboo in Girl's Church, and His Parents' Religious Bias Against Her Faith

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 23, a member of the Air Force, stationed some distance from my home; and on a furlough home some time ago I met a fine girl, 19, of wonderful family, and fell in love with her. By all indications she loves me, too, and it would give me utmost happiness to have her as mine and share life with her.

Unfortunately I was married before, but my wife and I knew soon after marriage that it wasn't love but infatuation, and I got my divorce a year ago. Later, when I met Dora, I didn't tell her about my past right off, as I felt it was a private matter; and when I did tell her, after we had gone together about three months, she cried bitterly.

She said she couldn't marry a divorced person unless some flaw in the previous ceremony rendered the marriage invalid from her church's view. Oddly enough, my first wife's religion is the same as Dora's, and as we weren't married by the church, I believe fate is on my side.

Girl's Parents Behave Kindly

Dora's parents—who didn't know about my past, nor even that Dora and I were serious—took the story very well when Dora told them; and they wrote to me immediately, saying they wanted to talk to me on my next visit home.

I went to see them as quickly as I could; and after some questioning, about my feelings for Dora and my broken marriage, they seemed satisfied with my intentions. They felt that I'd been around too much in the service and had swept Dora off her feet, but they said the decision was up to her, and she wants to marry me, of course.

As Dora is only 19, we will have to wait two years to be married, which I think is a good idea, as it gives us time to learn if this is true love and reduces the risk of repeating my former mistake. However, my folks disapprove the whole proposition, because I would have to join Dora's church to marry her. They say they will never see me married in her church, meaning that they would refuse to attend the ceremony. So what am I to do? Please advise. F. R.

Parental Attitudes Illuminate Impasse

DEAR F. R.: Need I emphasize that Dora's parents can't possibly like the proposition any better than your folks do; yet the striking difference between their reasonable handling of the situation, and your parents' purely emotional reaction, is very significant.

It illuminates root-reasons why (1) Dora's character is "fine," keyed to honest cooperative relationship dealings, and thoughtful adherence to ethical principles; and why (2) your character is childish, unstable, irresolute; craven at times, and without foresight except as it is forced upon you by stronger minds.

Obviously Dora's parents believe in helping youth develop valid convictions of personal adequacy for dealing with life in prudent satisfactory ways that add up to a general pattern of reliability.

Witness the fact that even now—in this family crisis precipitated by your tacit deceit in courting Dora and winning her heart before disclosing your "tabu" divorce status—when their minds are troubled, I am sure, by realization that you are a bad marriage risk, they are vesting their final decision in Dora, trusting her to make a right decision, if given time to think things through and

Some Light on Choosing Lamps

Lights around the house often seem dim at this time of year when evenings are longer. The light from lamps often can be increased simply by arranging for more and better reflection, according to home electrification specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

White or light colors reflect light but dark colors absorb it. So a lamp shade which is dark inside actually wastes light. A white paper lining or a coat of white paint or even white shoe polish on the inside may double or treble the light given off.

The shape of the shade counts, too, in the amount of light shed. Wide flaring shades give off more than narrow shades with straight sides. For best distribution of light table lamps need shades 14 to 16 inches across the bottom, and large floor lamps need shades 18 to 20 inches across the bottom.

The height of the lamp also is important. A short floor lamp—about 45 inches from the floor to bottom of shade, for example—is usually better than a tall one because the light source is nearer the book or other place where ample light is needed. A table lamp, on the other hand, should not be so short that the shade comes close to the table and cuts off the spread of light needed.

Women Voters Visit Jail on 'Go See' Tour

MEMBERS of the District of Columbia League of Women Voters visited the Industrial Home School and the District Jail yesterday in the second of a series of "Go See" tours designed to give the league first-hand information about Washington institutions.

At the Industrial Home School the group, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Monroe Burke, was welcomed by Mrs. Mamie Mizen of the Department of Public Welfare.

Donald Clemmer, director of the Department of Corrections for the District, greeted the group at the District Jail after which Col. Curtis Reid, superintendent, showed them the facilities.

The next "Go See" tour is slated for November 22 when the league members will visit representative schools of the community.

Mrs. Ivan L. Willis of Flossmoor, Ill., national vice president of Alpha Chi Omega, will be guest speaker at the meeting of the sorority's Washington alumnae group Wednesday, 8 p.m., at the home of Mrs. Owen L. Scott, 2001 Plymouth st. nw.

Mrs. Willis will discuss the sorority's cerebral palsy project. Alpha Chi Omega contributes $7500 each year for training specialists in treating child victims of this paralysis.

Mrs. Richard Rossman, Woodley 9402, is taking reservations for the meeting.

Mrs. Bernard Sherman was elected first vice president and Mrs. James Hendelberg, second vice president, of the Agudath Achim Sisterhood at an election last week.

The vacancies in the officers branch occurred with the resignation of the president and the second vice president. Mrs. Augustus Selis, elected first vice president, assumed the presidency according to the ruling of the executive board.

The new list of officers are Mrs. Augustus Selis, president; Mrs. Bernard Sherman, first vice president; Mrs. James Hendelberg, second vice president; Mrs. Louis Morganstein, recording secretary; Mrs. Nathan Morris, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Stanley Wertlieb, financial secretary, and Mrs. Louis Levy, treasurer.

The Sisterhood is planning a gala Chanukah luncheon under the direction of Mrs. Sherman. The luncheon will take place in Stansbury Hall, 5832 Georgia ave. nw., on December 20.

Mrs. Marcella Rubel, national membership consultant for Hadassah, will be in Washington on Thursday, November 18, to consult with membership captains on plans for the "H-Day" membership drive for the Washington Chapter scheduled for the first week of December.

Adviser to the Stars

Elizabeth's Son—A Scorpio—Should Make Good General, Says Hollywood Astrologer

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

BECAUSE CARROLL RIGHTER, the astrologer who's addressing the Women's National Press Club today, has advised such Hollywood stars as Maria Montez and Pierre Aumont the precisely propitious signs under which to produce offspring, we queried him about Princess Elizabeth's and Prince Philip's lad. Mr. Righter, breathless from his forty-ninth flight from the movie capital, hadn't had time to plot the young prince's horoscope (an all day job) but vouchsafed a few generalities about Scorpios—the astrological sign for those born this time of year.

"Never fight with a Scorpio," he admonished sternly. "They've got innate vitality, are resourceful and armed on all points." We promised to keep our fingers off any recognized Scorpios. "They're good at understanding money, can handle all sorts of difficult situations. They can soar with the eagle, crawl with the scorpion, behave like a prince or a rascal, all to attain their own salvation. They make good generals, by the way."

Until he'd further studied the stars, drawn an accurate horoscope, Carroll would give no more. However, a versatile Gemini, we wormed that Eisenenhower is not a Scorpio, that Theodore Roosevelt was. "Warren Harding was a Scorpio," said Mr. Righter, adding hastily, "but I guess we had better not mention THAT!"

Here's to the British prince who will make a good general, understand money, and be armed on all points. All qualities which should insure a most successful reign—if there's any reigning to be done this next decade.

Carroll Righter, incidentally, never greets friends by their names. He chirps cheerily, "Hello Gemini, how are you?" Or, "Hello, June 16th, how are you?"

Lately, besides fixing the stars' lives astrologically, he has been spending some time in New York, drawing charts for big business organizations. Mr. R.'s at the Fairfax—handy to know in case a Scorpio does you dirt.

Incidental Intelligence

DISMAYING SIGHT to conscientious barbers was the luncheon tete-a-tete of John L. Lewis and George Creel. Mr. L.'s steely gray pompadour foaming in virile abandon; Mr. C.'s silvery locks waving lushly down temple, tipping starched collar.

Funny facet in Eric Johnston's lightly tossed off tome "We're All in It" was his Moscow-enforced nut diet! The Motion Picture Association of America's President munched nuts with such gusto at his first Russian repast that attentive Soviet chaperones conjured more at each succeeding meal. A fine sense of public relations forced Johnston to down all nuts offered. "I am sure," he made moan, "the surplus thrust upon me would have kept every squirrel in Washington happy!"

Armistice Day two wreaths were placed at Mount Vernon. The Siamese government's flowers lay on Martha Washington's tomb, an Argentine offering on our First President's.

Gayest moment of the Fourth Conference of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations now functioning at the Shoreham will be Friday's Portugese Wine Party. Lucky guests are invited to tipple Portugal's most lovely wines—Madeiras, Ports, both red and white; lesser wines like Grandjo and Lancers.

In the good old days the Czar of Russia used to send special ships to the Island of Madeira, and American connoisseurs had Madeira dispatched on vessels sailing around the Cape, the waves' motion settling the wine's delicate flavor. No respectable ancestor could polish off dinner without a warming glass of port. At the Portuguese Embassy, by the by, a case of 1850 Port is held in reserve for some very, very grand occasion.

Acheson on Marshall Plan

HAS ANYONE noted lately that Dean Acheson, if-and-when supposed inside choice for Secretary of State, laid down the genesis for the Marshall Plan back on May 8, 1947? The occasion was a speech called "The Requirements of Reconstruction" made before the Delta Council at Cleveland, Miss. The final paragraph reads "Not only do human beings and nations exist in narrow economic margins, but also human dignity, human freedom, and democratic institutions. It is one of the principal aims of our foreign policy today to use our economic and financial resources to widen these margins." It is necessary for our national security. And it is our duty and our privilege as human beings."

Triangle Club Will Perform In Capital

Princeton University undergraduates numbering 75, will add a splash of orange and black to the Christmas season this year when the Triangle Club comes to Washington December 20.

The musical comedy group, sponsored here by the Princeton Club of Washington, will perform at Lisner Auditorium at 8:30 p. m.

Theater and debutante parties are being planned for the occasion, which is always a major social event here and makes Princetonians hustle into their "white ties and tails."

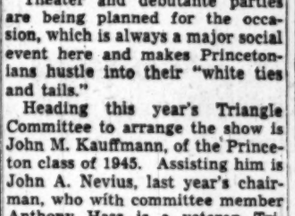
Heading this year's Triangle Committee to arrange the show is John M. Kauffmann, of the Princeton class of 1945. Assisting him is John A. Nevius, last year's chairman, who with committee member Anthony Hass is a veteran Triangler. Also serving on the committee are James Wyper, jr., J. Henry Hoskinson, Walter F. Chappell and Huntington T. Block. Both Walter and Bucky Block were graduated from Princeton last year.

Trinity Alumnae Give Reception

The Washington Chapter, Trinity College Alumnae, held a reception and tea at Trinity on Saturday in honor of the college preparatory students in the junior and senior classes of the Catholic and public high schools of Washington.

A group of alumnae, headed by the president of the Washington Chapter, Miss Mary Schaefer, and the chairman of the open house, Miss Margaret O'Connor, welcomed the students.

A tour of the school and brief orientation program was presented by members of the Trinity student body.



Orange Marmalade Cookies

½ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
1 egg
6 tbsps. orange marmalade
1½ cups sifted flour
2 tsps. Double Acting Rumford Baking Powder
¼ tsp. salt

Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, creaming until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well. Fold in marmalade. Sift flour, Rumford Baking Powder (no alum) and salt and add to creamed mixture, mixing well. Rumford Baking Powder, trusted by three generations of good cooks, is "Bake-Tested" daily in our laboratory kitchen. Drop by teaspoonfuls on greased baking sheet and bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 8-10 minutes. Makes 3 to 3½ dozen cookies. FREE booklet, "Captivating Cookies", contains 21 delicious recipes. Tested ideas for Christmas baking. Write to Rumford Kitchens, Dept. A, Rumford 16, R. I.

About Cleaning Hardwood Floors

I would like to know if there is any way to clean hardwood floors other than using cleaning fluids? O. B. L.

If your floors are not too soiled, they can be satisfactorily cleaned by wiping them with liquid or cream wax. As the cloth becomes soiled change it to remove a maximum amount of dirt. This method is preferred by many because it does not completely remove the remaining wax on the floor and does not raise the grain as using water sometimes does. However, there are times when the floor is so soiled that it is necessary to use water with a cleaning agent in it to get them thoroughly clean. There are several good powdered floor cleaners for use in water on the market. Be sure to follow directions on the product you buy.

I have tried many ways to remove the odor of onions from my hands after slicing them to use for cooking. Among other things, I have tried lemon juice and alcohol with no result. Would appreciate your advice. R. E. O'N.

Touching the fingers to the wick of a wick-type room deodorizer will help to remove onion odors from the hands. Wash the hands after rubbing the deodorizer over them. There is also a new deodorant soap on the market which is quite effective.

Could you tell me where I could find an outlet around Washington for some handicraft items? The items consist of such things as ceramics, shell jewelry, hand-edged linen handkerchiefs. M. E. S.

There is a gift shop on 39th st. which sells hand-made articles for their customers. It can be reached by calling Emerson 1484. Also, there is another shop reached by calling Tuckerman 0220 which may be able to handle them for you.

What bug eats a round hole in silk and rayon and what can be done about it? I had thought the space the nicked garments were in was well protected with paradi-benzene; perhaps it wasn't; perhaps the bug that made the hole doesn't mind. What about DDT, bug bombs, etc., for the critters? H. T. C.

Since the bugs attack just silks and rayons, possibly they are silverfish. Silverfish are half an inch long or less, silvery or pearl white, and quick moving. They feed on rayons, starch sizings, in clothes and books, wallpaper, etc. A preventative for them is fresh pyrethrum powder. Dust this or any other good silverfish preventative into the stored garments. Dust it also in cracks along the closet or wherever they may be seen. If this doesn't get rid of them, try a bug bomb.

We would appreciate your telling us how to finish the knotty pine paneling in our new summer home. We do not want to use shellac or varnish and would like to keep the natural color of the wood if possible. Would wax alone finish it properly or should some sort of filler be used first? And, would this darken the wood? How should cracks and nail holes be hidden? Also, will you tell us how to refinish an old walnut chest and a maple table? I would like to finish it by the method whereby oil is used and the furniture is rubbed to a satiny finish. What is the procedure? Can the walls be finished in a similar manner? F. L.

The usual finish for knotty pine is a half-and-half mixture of raw linseed oil and tuprpentine. Use as much of this solution as the wood will absorb. After an hour or so, wipe the surface and repeat the treatment in 24 hours. This will slightly darken the wood. Or, you could apply a clear wax directly to the unfinished pine, no filler being necessary. The clear wax will not darken the wood appreciably, but all pine tends to darken and mellow with age.

Nail holes and small cracks can be filled with prepared wood crack fillers to be had at a paint store. If these do not match perfectly, they can be mixed with varnish stain to make them the exact color. Or you can make a filler which will match exactly by using pine sawdust mixed with enough spar varnish to bind the particles together. When thoroughly hardened, sand until smooth.

The oil finish for furniture is accomplished by rubbing linseed oil into the raw wood, allowing several hours for it to soak in, then wiping off the excess. Rub well. After several days, with daily rubbings, apply another coat of oil and repeat the above treatment. Keep adding oil at weekly intervals until more is absorbed, rubbing daily. A gloss will develop with the rubbings.

Best Part Now, With Least Harm Done Girl

Your parents' reaction is just the opposite, as if they assumed you have no sense or judgment whatever, nor any rights of personal inclination not subject to their dictates, but rather owed their feelings blind obedience. And this attitude of theirs probably epitomizes your mother's habitual method of "managing" you, and perhaps explains why you rushed headlong into marriage the first time—in rebellious haste to launch the adventure before she could block it.

For advice: you are piteously ill equipped for marriage, on the score of character and psychological grounding. You seem to think that "love" gives magic passport to happiness in that relationship; and that therefore "real love" to start is all that matters; that no tiresome, troublesome, difficult snags can ever arise, where it exists. Which isn't true. A marriage consists of all the qualities, for better or worse, that the contracting parties bring to it; and its staying powers are never better than the weakest link in the character of either.

I believe that you and Dora haven't enough in common, beyond sex attraction, to justify "mixed marriage"; and that if you tried it, your family's attitude alone would wreck it as infatuation waned; so best part now, with least harm done her. M. H.

If you want to be an angel from every angle instead of a carbon copy of someone else, look for the Warner's that's "individually yours." They're famous for fit because they're styled in 3-Way Sizes:

1. Your correct length—Choose from short, medium, long and extra long lengths.
2. Your correct hip size—Choose from straight, average and full hips.
3. Your choice of control—Choose from many fabrics and designs to give you as little or as much control as you want.

Among Warner's hundreds of styles and sizes is this lovely Le Gant corselette #3829B, featuring the ingenious "Free-Lift." It frees the bra from the corset section, eliminating bustline drag. In pink, white, black. $29.50 at finer stores. Warner's corselettes come in your correct bra cup size with just the amount of uplift you want and in half-sizes for short-waisted women.

Mizrachi Votes $50,000 to Care For Israeli Orphans

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 15 (AP).—Mizrachi, the religious women's Zionist organization, today adopted a $1,375,000 budget for 1949, allocating $50,000 of it to care for the orphans of Jews killed in the Israel war.

Mizrachi, which operates 47 child care and social welfare projects in Israel, set aside $750,000 of the budget for that work.

Representative Emanuel Celler (D., N. Y.), who recently toured Israel, told delegates to Mizrachi's twenty-third annual convention "Israel is indestructible."

"What I saw and heard in Israel convinced me that the ideal which carried the Jews forward to Israel could never be destroyed," Celler said.

The convention closes tomorrow with election of officers.

BEWARE OF PIN-WORMS

Medical reports reveal that an amazing number of children and adults are victims of Pin-Worms.

Watch for the warning signs, especially the embarrassing, nagging rectal itch. After centuries of Pin-Worm distress a really effective way to deal with them has been established through JAYNE'S P-W, the new Pin-Worm treatment developed in the laboratories of Dr. D. Jayne & Son. The small, easy-to-take P-W tablets give satisfaction or your money back. So why take chances on Pin-Worms! If you suspect this ugly infection, ask your druggist for P-W and follow the directions. It's easy to remember: P-W for Pin-Worms!

Beginning Reading

Is your child in the first grade? If so, he's been at school for several months and still may not be reading. Does it bother you? It does most parents.

What about reading? When you and I were first in school, we started out on reading almost at once. Soon we were learning all about the little red hen and other equally uninteresting subjects. "But," you say, "at least we learned to read."

Even that is a question. Tests show that far too few of us who were taught to read in the old

A-B-C-D way, mouthing out the sounds, struggling with uninteresting material, ever have learned to read as well as we should.

It's important that children have a lot of experience with all sorts of things so that when they begin to read about airplanes and tractors, farms and cities, they have something with which to connect the words, phrases and sentences they are learning to recognize. Such experiences, which are often a part of school work today through trips and excursions, imaginative play and moving pictures, will do much to get your youngster on his way to being a good reader. So, don't be too hasty to criticize the school. Let the teacher explain to you how the children's program is connected with the development of reading skills.

"Ah-h-h!..now I can breathe again!"

For almost instant relief from stuffy, cold-clogged nose and sniffly distress of head colds, put a few Vicks Va-tro-nol Nose Drops in each nostril. Comforting relief comes so fast because Vicks Va-tro-nol works right where trouble is. And if stuffy congestion at night sometimes makes it hard to breathe and you can't get to sleep, Va-tro-nol quickly opens up the nose and lets you breathe again. Try it!

B. & O. Votes $1 Dividend As Net Spurts

By S. Oliver Goodman

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad stockholders received a double-barreled shot of good news at the 122nd annual stockholders meeting yesterday in Baltimore.

R. B. White

A $1 a share dividend on preferred stock was declared, the first such paid since 1932.

President Roy B. White reported that net earnings in the first 10 months this year totaled $19,043,131, a gain of $2,836,113 over the same 1947 period.

The last preferred dividend of $1 was declared in December, 1931, and paid the following March. The last common dividend, also $1, was paid in December of 1931.

President White emphasized that "future dividends will depend on earnings and it is hoped the volume of business in the country and action on pending rate and wage matters will enable the company to sustain its earnings."

White added that directors expect the general level of business to hold steady during the early part of 1949. No reduction in coal traffic is foreseen, he said, but there may be some softening in prices.

The 12 B & O directors were reelected. Stockholders approved taking into direct ownership two B. & O. subsidiaries—the Baltimore & Ohio and Chicago Railroad Co. and the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railroad Co.

REALTY NOTE: Housing supply and demand are closer to a balance than most persons think, the president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards said. At the forty-first convention of the association yesterday, Hobart C. Grady declared: "Builders are finding a longer lag in selling and renting after a property becomes available, and luxury apartments are going begging now."

OPENS OFFICES: The Refrigeration Equipment Manufacturers Association has opened new offices at 1346 Connecticut ave. W. Vernon Brumbaugh is newly appointed executive secretary of the group, which has 118 companies as members. Brumbaugh, a veteran of 22 years in the trade association field, is a former president of the Washington Trade Association Executives. Other members of the REMA staff, who will make their headquarters and homes in Washington from December 1 on, are: George E. Mills, public relations director, and Harry Fouts, head of the statistical and credit division.

RECOGNITION: Ten local members of the "Million-Dollar-Roundtable," insurance salesmen who have written more than that amount this year, were introduced yesterday at a luncheon of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association in the Mayflower. They are Leopold V. Freudberg, Massachusettes Mutual; Ray Green, Equitable of New York; Louis T. Grayson, Travelers; William L. Porte, Mutual Life of New York; Allan Rutledge, Mitchell T. Curtis, W. P. Graham, John D. Marsh, Daniel I. Moler and Ray Woodside, all of Lincoln National Life Insurance Co. Principal speaker was Harold J. Cummings, president of Minnesota Mutual, who emphasized how the individual's tax burden has leaped since grandfather's time. More than 300 attended the session.

REELECTS HEADS: All officers of Perpetual Building Association were reelected at the sixty-seventh annual meeting last night. They include Edward C. Baltz, president; Marvin A. Custis, board chairman; Thornton W. Owen and Samuel Scrivener, vice presidents; William H. Dyer, secretary, and W. S. Martindill, treasurer. Preceding the directors, meeting, shareholders reelected all directors.

ODD LOTS: Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co. asked SEC authority to sell 30 million dollars in new 25-year debentures . . . Steel output this week is estimated at 99 per cent of rated capacity, off slightly from last week's record pace of 99.4 per cent . . . Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, assistant to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, will address the Investment Bankers Association at the annual convention in Hollywood, Fla. . . . Mercer Hicks & Co. and Colony Co. yesterday offered 149,000 shares of common stock of Continental Radiant Glass Heating Corp. at $2 a share . . . Harold P. Goodbody, partner in Goodbody & Co, was elected president of the Association of Stock Exchange Firms . .

EARNINGS: Schenley Distillers Corp. reported net income of $29,524,365 for fiscal year ended August 31, equal to $8.20 a common share, compared with $26,844,733 or $7.45 a share in previous year. Other income reports follow:

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP).—The grain market overcame early weakness, moved ahead briskly and ended with fair-sized gains today. Final prices were just about the day's top.

The impressive part of the action, traders said, was the fact that it came in the face of what has been considered unfavorable news—the strike of longshoremen along most of the Atlantic Coast. Such a strike, if continued, would cut exports to Europe.

Once the accumulation of small overnight selling orders was out of the way, the market met very little selling pressure. That disturbed traders who were short in both wheat and corn, and who had expected a more drastic price decline. Traders said buying by these shorts was a big factor in the market's strength.

Wheat closed 1 to 2⅜ higher. Corn was 1 to 1¾ higher. Oats were ¼ to 1¼ higher. Rye was 2 to 3 cents higher. Soybeans were 3¾ to 4¾ higher, and lard was 17 to 32 cents 100 pounds higher.

Late in the day a dispatch from Washington said Federal conciliation officials expressed hope of an early settlement of the West Coast longshoremen's strike, which is now 75 days old. Although the market had firmed up earlier, this news accounted for a renewed spurt in the closing minutes.

New York Cotton

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Cotton futures were irregular today, with buying of nearby deliveries against export business the feature of trading. Final prices were 75 cents a bale higher to 10 cents lower.

Shippers were estimated to have covered about 10,000 bales of export sales in the hearby December and March deliveries. The prospect of a more active foreign demand drew new buying to the old crop months.

Washington trade advices said that ECA expects to move about 1,500,000 more bales of cotton with the current crop year ending next July, bringing the total ECA exports to around 2,500,000 bales.

Western Union Plans GHQ at Fontainebleau

Paris, Nov. 15 (NYHT.).—The western European defense forces, headed by Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, will establish continental headquarters this week at Fontainebleau, 35 miles southeast of Paris.

A staff of 120 officers and 200 noncommissioned officers will live and work in near-by hotels and in the famous old chateau where Francois I, Louis XIII, and Charles V and Napoleon Bonaparte resided. They will plan the coordinated use of the land, sea and air might of Great Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg in case any one of them is the victim of aggression in Europe by any other power.

YOU'RE WASTING THE MELODRAMA, JOLLY JOE! SHE DOESN'T KNOW ANYTHING--SHE COULDN'T TELL YOU IF SHE WANTED TO!
BUT YOU CAN, MR. TEMPLAR. AND IT'S YOUR CHIVALRY THAT I'M RELYING ON TO SAVE THE LADY THIS-- HO! HO!--INVIGORATING FACIAL.
WHY DON'T YOU TELL HIM, SAINT?
WHAT--AND TAKE AWAY THE ONLY REASON HE HAS FOR KEEPING US ALIVE?
PERHAPS YOU SHOULD ASK THE LADY, MR. TEMPLAR, HOW SHE WOULD LIKE TO LIVE BLINDED AND DISFIGURED--THE COUNT IS--TWO!
I'M WARNING YOU, JOLLY JOE. IF YOU PULL THAT TRIGGER, THE CONSEQUENCES WILL BE ON YOUR OWN HEAD!
A FINE SPEECH, MY FRIEND. BUT I'M ONLY INTERESTED IN FACTS. THE STRIKE IS--THREE!

We'll Pick a Fight With Anybody But Godfrey

Helen Van Doren of 5320 Illinois ave. nw. is what we might call a semipro proofreader. She works on the Roosevelt Reporter.

The other day our radio log listed: "WTOP—8:30. Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts features a baritone soprano."

Helen wants to know whether it's a typo, or whether Arthur has really discovered such an animal.

On anybody's else's program, I'd call it a typo. But with Godfrey, one never knows. Even if Arthur said he had a guy who could sing all four parts from the "Quartet From Rigoletto" simultaneously, I'd have to believe it.

STREET SCENE

It was at the Georgetown Playground the other Sunday morning. A dozen young boys, white and Negro, had gotten up a scrub game of touch football.

One of the players was an adult—well built, but balding and getting along in years. Obviously not a member of the Redskins.

Dressed in an old sweater and a pair of slacks, he was the picture of informality as he gave his all to the matter of leading his teammates to victory.

When the game was over, John J. McCloy sighed a bit, and went back to being president of the World Bank.

MISCELLANY

Some days we can't get away with a thing. Two District Liners (W. J. Armstrong of the Monticello Hotel, Alexandria, Va., and Paul F. Benedict of 2704 Allison st., Mount Rainier, Md.) jointly lift their eyebrows at one of our recent Radio Highlights listings. At 2:15 we recommended WMAL for a report of the game between Georgia Tech and Penn State, and directly below, also at 2:15 we offered the alternative of WMAL for a report of the game between Georgia Tech and Tennessee . . . My sharp-eyed readers offer the observation that "those Georgia Tech boys must have been plum tuckered out by the end of the second game" . . . St. Stephen and the Incarnation Episcopal Church will hold a bazaar Wednesday (3 p. m., 16th and Newton sts. nw.) and dinner will be served by the ladies of the church from 5 to 7 p. m. Theodore M. Collier of 1105 Park st. ne., tells me that the purpose of the bazaar is to get one step nearer the realization of the parish slogan, "Debt Free by Fifty-three" . . . Stamp and coin collectors are reminded that there will be another public auction Wednesday (7 p. m., Room 3083, Main Postoffice, N. Capitol st. and Massachusetts ave.) and as usual, you'd better bring green money if you intend to bid. They don't take personal checks . . . About the only time Uncle Sam will accept your personal check is when you're paying your taxes.

RED FLANNELS VS. DECOLLETE

PBA's acting deputy commissioner, Gilbert Stanley Underwood, is back from a tour of Europe, where he studied hospital construction.

On reporting to his boss, Federal Works Administrator Fleming, Underwood recalled an odd situation which is puzzling Norwegian architects.

It gets quite cold in Norway, of course, so everybody dresses accordingly. Both men and women have to wear long, heavy underwear when they venture out into those icy temperatures.

But when the women are en route to a party or a fashionable ball, this creates quite a problem. One just doesn't wear red flannels under an evening gown.

So the architects are trying to design mansions for the wealthy (and some kinds of public buildings) which provide extra dressing, or "undressing," rooms for the ladies.

The gals wear their winter woolies to the party, go to their special dressing room, change to evening gowns, and are ready for a night of swank hijinks. When it's time to go home, they climb back into their heavy-duty gear.

It just goes to show that even nature can't stop a determined woman.

TREASURER'S REPORT

Elizabeth Daggit, 1100 Janney's lane., Alexandria, Va.; J. Shepherd; Mrs. Raymond Wollock, 1413 S. Kent st., Arlington, Va.; Marc Rosenblum; Suzanne and Betsy Wigglesworth, 4447 Albemarle st. nw. (plus cash and war stamps); Fred Mintz, Cabin John, Md.; R. L. Kaplow, 4079 Minnesota ave. ne.; Mrs. J. C. Lavin, 3703 S. Kemper rd., Arlington, Va.; Lee Baker, 402 4th st. ne., and Mrs. Ruth S. Swann, 319 4th st. se.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I was surprised that you agreed with the lady who complained about mothers who don't hold their children on their laps on streetcars.

I know the office workers are tired, but so is a mother who has had to drag a young child along on a shopping trip downtown.

What difference does it make whether the child is riding free or has paid its fare? The mother should be allowed the privilege of having her child sit beside her, instead of on her.

Mrs. M. G. D.

Dear Mrs. D.:

I can't agree. Infants ride free because it's presumed they won't occupy a seat at times when there aren't enough seats to go around.

If there are plenty of seats, the transit company and your fellow passengers are perfectly willing that you make yourself as comfortable as possible.

But during rush hours, I don't think it's fair to expect paying passengers to stand while a non-paying infant is parked on a seat instead of in his mother's lap.

If I'm wrong, it won't be the first time; but that's my opinion.

Bill.

WHAT A JOB!

I'm sorry for poor Mr. Austin
Because of the patience it's costin'
For him to debate
With some addlepate
Must really be very exhaustin.'

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Ortiz Rubio, who was sent by the Mexican government to The Netherlands, spent long weeks learning the Dutch words he would use in his meeting with Queen Wilhelmina. Rubio finally mastered the words, and recited them, he believed, perfectly . . . Queen Wilhelmina listened, and then told him: "I'd like to learn the language of Cervantes, so that I could understand what you said to me."

Aline Bernstein, the author and stage designer, told The Woman Pays Club this week about her problems. The successful costume and stage designer, she said, must combine the qualities of an Einstein and a Freud, because the problems concern Space and People . . . She told of designing "Caesar and Cleopatra" when, in discussing the costumes with Lionel Atwill, who was playing Caesar, he told her: "I think the purpose of costuming is to show off the actors' best points." The designer asked him: "And what are your best points?" Lionel told her: "My torso" . . . She designed for him a leather jacket with special hooks, so that it could be shed quickly. He shed it in one scene, bared his torso—and it stopped the show.

Gerald Kersh, the British novelist, worked for the Ministry of Information during the war. He was intrigued by the governmental red-tape. Once when a clerk filed a request for paper-clips, the request was sent up through channels. Kersh noticed the file of papers necessitated by this simple request and scribbled across it the word "Nuts." Then he thought this might be offensive, erased the word "Nuts" and substituted its broad, technical equivalent, "Round Objects" . . . The next day the clerk was notified that his request had been turned down, because of Mr. Round's objection.

The best publicity campaign for any book this year is being waged for Billy Rose's "Wine, Women & Words." Rose is one of the shrewdest space-dealers in the business. One season Gilbert Miller sighed: "I produced three shows this year, two hits and one flop. And all three shows put together received less publicity than Billy Rose got for 'Henry VIII,'—which he never even produced."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

W. O. Douglas for State Post?

By Drew Pearson

President Truman is doing some real soul searching about the man who is to be his new Secretary of State. White House intimates say he has two things in mind:

1. The most important issue facing the entire country is peace, and Truman has got to find the No. 1 man in the country to solve it.

2. He doesn't want to make the mistake Franklin Roosevelt did of not building up new blood for the Presidency. Therefore, if the man he picks as Secretary of State is able to iron out the tangled state of the world, he would be Truman's logical successor in 1952.

The man tops on Truman's list—if he were not Chief Justice of the United States—is his old friend Fred Vinson. Once before Vinson was asked to step down from an important judicial post—the Court of Appeals—to take over the thankless job of Economic Stabilizer. And unquestionably, if Truman asked him to, he would step down again.

However, rather than ask Vinson to make this sacrifice, the President is considering Justice William O. Douglas, 48 years old, with a great record on the Securities and Exchange Commission, and a man whom FDR himself recommended side-by-side with Truman as presidential timber.

So keep an eye on Bill Douglas as the next Secretary of State.

T.-H. Law Comes Second

The Fair Labor Standards Act—not the Taft-Hartley law—will get first attention from the new Democratic Congress, according to Senator Elbert Thomas of Utah, who will succeed Senator Robert Taft as chairman of the Senate Labor Committee.

The scholarly Mormon former missionary points out that the Eightieth Congress not only passed the Taft-Hartley law but crippled the Fair Labor Standards Act, which affects 20 million unorganized workers. He believes these 20 million need legislative help ahead of the 15 million organized workers who oppose the Taft-Hartley law.

Thomas is determined, however, that there will be no undue delay in tackling the Taft-Hartley law. But noting reports that Labor Secretary Maurice Tobin is preparing to rewrite the labor laws, Thomas emphasized that his committee, not the Labor Department, will do the rewriting.

Note—Senator Thomas has a cons stent, prolabor voting record in the Senate.

Senator Jenner Cools Off

Humbled by Democratic victory, GOP Senators, once hell-bent on probing senatorial elections from Tennessee to Texas, pulled in their horns last week and spoke loftily of "nonpartisan investigations."

A few days earlier, fire-breathing GOP Chairman Bill Jenner of Indiana was screaming fraud against certain Democratic candidates, and his investigators, one of them the law partner of Ku Klux Klansman Bob Lyons, had gone on rampage in Oklahoma and Texas.

It was a much-subdued Senator Jenner, however, who reviewed these same cases at a closed-door session of the Elections Subcommittee. It wouldn't be necessary to hold hearings after all, said the gentleman from Indiana, but he would turn complete reports over to the democrats who inherit the committee.

Senator Francis Myers of Pennsylvania, only Democrat present, asked why the Democrats hadn't been consulted before the Oklahoma and Texas investigations were launched. Jenner ducked the question but sputtered back that "no political motives whatsoever" had influenced the decision.

"They why," asked Myers, "were reports released to the press just before the election?"

"Oh," mumbled Jenner, "the newspapers were piling up on us."

Myers also demanded an explanation from the committee's chief counsel, Nelson Deranian, who had been quoted in the press that same day as planning to rush the investigations in order to finish before the Democrats came into control. Deranian was put in this key committee spot by Bob Lyons of KKK and chain-store fame, the man who engineered Jenner's election to the Senate.

Deranian had no adequate explanation for the newspaper stories, but he did give the committee a verbal report on each case. From the Oklahoma file Deranian pulled out affidavits charging that Senator-elect Robert Kerr might not be responsible for expenditures which he knew nothing about.

Note—What Republicans are worried about is that the Democrats will really dig into the Michigan election, returns of their colleague, Senator Homer Ferguson.

Truman Troubles

Although the Democratic election sweep may stop the GOP-led Senate Expenditures Committee from skeleton hunting in the Administration's closets, President Truman won't be able to breathe easily long.

For the Senate Expenditures Committee will be inherited by Democratic Senators never friendly to Truman. In the order of seniority, they are:

Senators John McClellan of Arkansas, James Fastland of Mississippi, an out-and-out Dixiecrat; Clyde Hoey of North Carolina, who has voted against most key Truman policies; Glen Taylor of Idaho, Henry Wallace's vice presidential runningmate; A. Willis Robertson of Virginia, a member of the anti-Truman Byrd machine, and Herbert O'Conor of Maryland, a Republicrat.

These are the Democrats who will now be charged with keeping an eye on the executive departments.
